SOLEMN SERVICE

Held Over the Remains of Mrs. Mansfield

AT ST. MICHAEL'S CHURCH THIS EVENING.

Large Attendance at the Funeral.

Solemn service was held in St. Michael's church this morning over the remains of Mrs. Matthew Mansfield.

Within the church every seat was occupied, the attendance testifying to the grand esteem in which the deceased was held by those who knew her and respected her for her many fine traits of character and her sweet, beautiful disposition.

In the large congregation were many of Lowell's leading citizens and several city officials, with whom the young husband of the deceased has been associated during his service in the city council. The funeral cortege, which left the home on Shedd street, reached the church shortly after 10 o'clock. The seats in the main aisle were reserved for the relatives and mourners and so many of these were there that they occupied every pew and some were compelled to sit in the side aisles.

Solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. John Gilday with Rev. Fr. Sullivan of Somerville, deacon and Rev. David J. Murphy of Salem, sub-deacon. The master of ceremonies was Rev. Richard Boland. The altar was heavily draped and the beautiful candelabra had coverings of black, relieved with bows of white. The handsome casket, which contained the remains rested on a catafalque, which was also draped in mourning.

The choir was composed of the choice of the Catholic choirs of the city. There were singers from St Peter's, the Immaculate Conception, St. Patrick's, the Sacred Heart, as well as St. Michael's church. John Warburton directed and the organist was Miss Teresa Corbett. Schmidt's mass was sung, the chorus parts being sung by the choir of forty voices being particularly strong. At the offertory the "Domine" was sung with solo by Mrs. Mabel Ware Murphy.

At the conclusion of the mass Mrs. Murphy sang the hymn, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought." The final prayers were pronounced and just prior to the time of leaving the church Mr. James E. Donnelly sang, "I Love To Hear My Savior's Voice." The rich baritone notes filling the edifice. The casket was borne from the church by the pall bearers, Messrs. William Foley, of Boston, Charles Burns, John Sullivan, James J. Gallagher, John H. Barry and Bernard Callahan. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Mr. Charles R. Murray, assisted by Mr. Joseph Sullivan.

The funeral cortege numbered about forty carriages and proceeded to the Catholic cemetery. Here a service for the dead was held and the body was lowered to its resting place in the family lot. Around the grave were assembled the many relatives and friends of the deceased and as the grave was covered all knelt in prayer. On top of the mound of earth were placed some beautiful floral tributes, which were sent by friends, regardless of the family's request that there be no floral tributes. At the head was a pillow inscribed "Chris" and arranged around the sides were standing wreaths, crosses, anchors, and various other designs, while at intervals were strewn pretty sprays.

BOAT RACE.

WILL TAKE PLACE TODAY WITHOUT FAIL

New London, June 23.—A more unsatisfactory day in the annals of boatracing on the Thames has never been recorded than that which the university crews and the thousands of would-be spectators experienced Wednesday. Three times the referee attempted to start the race, and each time the weather conditions prevented, until at last, just before sunset, after the rain had fallen in torrents, Mr. Melkelham was obliged to put it over until this afternoon.

The early morning gave the very best promise that the day would be an almost ideal one on the river, and for an hour everything went along as smoothly as the most exacting crew could wish. The first break came in the news that a railroad wreck had occurred west of New Haven, which necessitated a considerable delay in the arrival of the New Yorkers who wanted to see the race from the observation train. By hard work the regatta committee was able to persuade the three coaches to put the race over for half an hour in order that the belated travelers might get their money's worth.

The weather held favorable until about an hour before the time set for the start at 2:30, when the wind, which all the morning had been light, shifted to the southwest and blew briskly up the river, kicking up quite a sea and bringing on a downpour, which soaked those on the observation cars and spoiled the racing plans.

CREWS ON HAND

New London, June 23.—The crews were on hand at noon and every prospect is that the race will be pulled off.

TRAINMAN INJURED.

Conductor Jacob Murphy of Billerica, a brother of J. Stuart Murphy, was knocked from the car at Ayer Junction yesterday morning and very badly hurt.

Conductor Murphy runs on the Stony Brook train between this city and Ayer Junction and has been in the company's employ for many years.

At the time of the accident, he was standing on the steps of one of the cars which were moving at a rapid rate and in some manner unknown came in contact with a telegraph pole. He was hurled to the ground and rendered unconscious, in which condition he remained for some time. He was picked up by railroad employes and taken home.

PLEASANT MUSICALE.

A pleasant musicale was given last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Millard P. Wood, 51 Whitney avenue, in honor of Mrs. Ida Spencer of New York, who is on a visit to this city. There was about 18 people present and each one contributed to a grand concert program. Refreshments were served.

GRADUATION EXERCISES.

Whitcomb will make addresses and sub-committee Frank K. Stearns will present the diplomas. No tickets will be required and graduates, parents and friends are invited.

PENSION FRAUD REPORT.

Detectives Bowran and Fairbanks of Boston who have been in town several times in connection with the pension business, have narrowed their case down to one man, against whom it is probable they will press charges of fraud. The charge may or may not be sustained and this is the only foundation for the alleged pension scandals.

ON TO SANTIAGO THE CRY

Of Shafter's Army and the Cuban Allies.

(COPYRIGHT 1898. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Off Juragua, Province of Santiago de Cuba, Wednesday morning, June 22, by Associated Press Despatch Boat Topert, Antonio, Jam., filed Thursday, June 23, 1 a. m.—The troops under Maj. Gen. Shafter, this morning began landing at Juragua, ten miles east of the entrance to Santiago harbor. Little resistance was offered. An immediate advance will be made, and as soon as the military forces are in possession of the hills back of Santiago, a combined attack by the fleet and army will be ordered.

It is expected that before Saturday Santiago with all its fortifications and the strong fleet under Admiral Cervera will have fallen, either captured or destroyed.

CONFERENCE HELD.

A conference was held between Gen. Shafter and Gen. Garcia, and the fate of Santiago was decided upon. They will act in conjunction with the fleet.

HOW THEY LANDED.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

Caeloolo SSol' lolicesdima uuc(the On board the Associated Press Despatch boat, Wanda, Jauquri harbor, Wednesday, June 22,— 5 p m, via Kingston, Jal, Thursday, 2.35 a. m.—At five o'clock 5000 trained American soldiers are encamped in the hills in and around Daiquiri and 10,000 more rest on their arms on board transports off shore, ready to join those who disembarked as soon as the available launches and small boats can carry them ashore.

Time and sea and weather were propitious for the army of invasion. The army and navy co-operated splendidly and as the big war ships closed in on the shore to pave the way for the approach of the transports) and then went back again, three cheers for the navy went up from 10,000 throats and on the troop ships and three cheers for the army arose from ship after ship as the troop ships moved in to take their share in hazardous game. It was war and it was magnificent.

The Cuban insurgents, too, bore their share in the enterprise honorably and well. Five thousand of them, in mountain fastnesses and dark thickets of ravines lay all last night on their guns watching every road and mountain path leading from Santiago to Guantanamo. A thousand of them were within sight of Daiquiri, making the approach of the Spaniards under cover of the darkness an impossibility.

At 4 o'clock, this morning, as the Associated Press despatch boat approached Daiquiri, the entire land of Cuba seemed wrapped in soft mist like that of the dog days in northern latitudes. Dull, leaden clouds lay on the eastern horizon and the color was reflected in the gray waters of the ocean which gently undulated in the lazy breeze. Distant objects loomed dimly but it was seen that many of the troop ships that had been lying several miles in the offing had drawn in towards shore, while three of four war ships lay menacingly near the harbor approach. All around the transports, steam launches and small boats were bobbing about like corks.

TROOPS LAND IN CUBA

Sampson and Shafter Report Debarkation Without Resistance.

Successful Ruse Employed by the Warships—Conference With Gen. Garcia—Prisoners Taken on Prize Vessels to be Sent Back to Spain—One Man Killed on the Texas.

Washington, June 23.—Official dispatches received last night by both Secretary Alger and Secretary Long indicated that the landing of troops near Santiago was progressing most favorably. The first landing was effected at Daiquiri Wednesday morning and met with comparatively slight resistance. This was stated in a dispatch received by Secretary Alger, which though brief was full of news and meaning. It was sent from Playa Del Este, and read as follows:

"Off Daiquiri, Cuba, June 22.—Landing at Daiquiri this morning successful. Very little if any resistance.

(Sig.) "Shafter."

Secretary Alger expressed himself as delighted at the expedition with which the landing was being effected and with the fact that no serious obstacle was being offered by the enemy. He construed the text of Shafter's message to mean that the enemy had made merely a normal and ineffective resistance by firing from the hills at long range.

Shortly after Secretary Alger received his dispatch Secretary Long received a more extended cablegram from Admiral Sampson. It, too, was dated at Playa Del Este. The text translated from the navy department cipher is as follows:

"Landing of the army is progressing favorably at Daiquiri. There is very little if any resistance. The New Orleans, Detroit, Castine, Wasp and Suwanee shelled the vicinity before the landing. We made a demonstration at Cabanas to engage the attention of the enemy. The Texas engaged the west battery for some hours. She had one man killed. Ten submarine mines have been recovered from the channel of Guantanamo. Communication by telegraph has been established at Guantanamo. (Sig.) Sampson."

In both army and navy circles the information contained in the dispatches of General Shafter and Admiral Sampson was received with intense satisfaction. The landing of so large a body of troops as General Shafter's is a task of immense proportions. A prominent official of the war department said that the complete debarkation of the troops, animals, field guns and supplies within a week after their arrival off the Cuban coast would be a task well accomplished. It is probable that only a partial landing of the troops was effected, and that the landing will be continued from day to day until completed. It is not unlikely too that the troops will be landed at several places along the coast, of course within a short distance of the headquarters which General Shafter will establish.

Admiral Sampson's dispatch indicated that he was carrying out his instructions thoroughly to clear a way for the landing of troops. The demonstration which he made with the Texas before Cabanas, which is just east of Guantanamo, may easily have led the Spaniards to suppose that a general landing was to be attempted in that immediate vicinity. It was evident from the text of Sampson's dispatch that a considerable landing had already been effected near Guantanamo, as he noted that communication by telegraph had been reestablished at that point, and that the channel had been cleared of submarine mines. In the opinion of naval officers the landing at Guantanamo was of marines rather than of land forces.

The reinforcement of General Shafter actually began yesterday in the departure of a regiment and a battalion of the troops at Camp Alger for Santiago. They go to Newport News and then by steamer to Santiago. If expectations are realized, these troops are likely to occupy less time in the passage than did the first contingent which left Tampa, notwithstanding the distance is twice as long. Formal orders were issued placing General Henry in charge of the new division of troops composed of Duffield's and Garretson's brigades. Probably some of the troops now at Tampa will be attached also, in which case they will be dispatched in separate transports.

The Thirty-third Michigan and one battalion of the Thirty-fourth Michigan were selected to go first, comprising 1358 men and 63 officers. It is expected that the Harvard will be the ship first ordered. The remaining regiments and battalions of General Duffield's command will leave on Saturday next, taking the Yale. The entire expedition will then proceed under command of General Duffield, whose brigade consists of the Ninth Massachusetts, the Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Michigan and the Third Virginia regiments. General Duffield had a conference with Secretary Alger on Tuesday night, during which the details of this move were gone over. The general has the fullest confidence of the secretary, being a Detroit man and bearing a personal relation to Secretary Alger. General Duffield is regarded as one of the best equipped officers of the volunteer service. He had a long and distinguished service during the civil war, going out with the Ninth Michigan.

BROAD PRINCIPLES.

EQUAL RIGHTS IMPOSSIBLE UNDER OUR PRESENT SYSTEM.

Mothers Must Have a Platform of More Than One Idea—A Stirring Up-to-Date Letter From One of the Century's Greatest Reformers.

Elizabeth Cady Stanton was invited by Susan B. Anthony to send to the Woman Suffrage conference held recently in Rochester a letter on "Woman and the War." Following is Mrs. Stanton's reply addressed to Miss Anthony:

You ask me to send a letter as to woman's position in regard to the war. Many with whom I talk feel aggrieved that they have no voice in declaring war with Spain, or in protesting against it. The vast majority of men are in the same position. Why care for a voice in an event that may happen once in a lifetime more than in those of far greater importance continually before us? Why groan over the horrors of war when the tragedies of peace are forever before us? Our boys in blue, well fed and clothed in camp and hospital, are better off than our boys in rags, overworked in mines, in factories, in prison houses and in bare, dingy dwellings called homes, where the family meet at scanty meals after working ten hours to talk over their hopeless situation in the despair of poverty.

A friend of mine visited the bleaching department in one of our New England factories, where naked boys, oiled from head to foot, are used to tramp pieces of shirting in a large vat. The chemicals necessary for bleaching are so strong as to eat the skin unless well oiled. In time they affect the eyes and lungs. There these boys, in relays, tramp, tramp all day, but not to music or inspired with the love of country. In England they have machinery for such work, but in the land of the Puritans boys are cheaper than machinery.

On a platform of one idea mothers cannot dismiss these wrongs. We may talk of the cruelties in Cuba now on any platform, but not of the outrages of rich manufacturers in the state of Massachusetts.

Under the present competitive system existence is continual war; the law is each one for himself, starvation and death for the hindmost. My message today to our coadjutors is that we have a higher duty than the demand for suffrage. We must now, at the end of 50 years of faithful service, broaden our platform and consider the next step in progress, to which the signs of the times clearly point—namely, co-operation, a new principle in industrial economics. We see that the right of suffrage avails nothing for the masses in competition with the wealthy classes and, worse still, with each other. Women all over the country are working earnestly in many fragmentary reforms, each believing that her own if achieved would usher in a new day of peace and plenty. With woman suffrage, temperance, social purity, rigid Sunday laws and physical culture, could any or all be successful, we should see no change in the condition of the masses. We need all these reforms and many more to make existence endurable. What is life today to the prisoner in his lonely cell, to the feeble hands that keep time with machinery in all our marts of trade, to those that have no abiding place, no title to one foot of land on this green earth? Such are the fruits of competition. Our next experiment is to be made on the broad principle of co-operation. At the end of 50 years, whose achievements we celebrate here today, let us reason together as to the wisdom of laying some new planks in our platform.

The co-operative idea will remodel codes and constitutions, creeds and catechisms, social customs and conventionalisms, the curriculum of schools and colleges. It will give a new sense of justice, liberty and equality in all the relations of life. Those who have eyes to see recognize the fact that the period for all these fragmentary reforms is ended. Agitation of the broader question of philosophical socialism is now in order. This next step in progress has long been foreshadowed by our seers and prophets, from Mazzini and Fourier to Thomas Paine and Henry George, and is now being agitated by able thinkers and writers in all civilized countries.

"The few have no right to the luxuries of life while the many are denied its necessities." This motto is the natural outgrowth of the one so familiar on our platform and our official paper, "Equal rights for all." It is impossible to have "equal rights for all" under our present competitive system. "All men are born free, with an equal right to life, liberty and happiness." The natural outgrowth of this sentiment is the vital principle of the Christian religion, "Love thy neighbor as thyself." In broad, liberal principles the suffrage association should be the leader of thought for women and not narrow its platform from year to year to one idea, rejecting all relative ideas as side issues.

"Progress is the victory of a new thought over old superstitions."

WORK FOR OUR CAVALRY.

An Explanation of Their Embarkation Without Their Horses.

The statement given out by Adjutant General Corbin recently as to the composition of the expedition sent to Santiago puzzled the general public in one respect. It was not understood why the greater part of the United States cavalry with the expedition as well as the four troops of rough riders under the command of Colonel Wood and Lieutenant Colonel Roosevelt had been sent without their horses. The wonder was why the cavalrymen had been sent at all as long as they were not allowed to take their horses with them when there was an abundance of good infantry material at Tampa which could have been employed in their stead.

The explanation is that the cavalrymen, particularly the rough riders, are wanted for their fine marksmanship. The character of the country around Santiago would afford no opportunity for the use of their horses. The animals would only be in the way. But the men can be used as sharpshooters to the greatest advantage. There are no finer marksmen in the world than the United States cavalrymen and the rough riders who have gone with the Santiago expedition. They will, it is said, form the skirmish line of the United States forces. Accustomed to beating the brush, nearly all of them are quick with their guns, and of almost infallible accuracy of aim. They will be well able to dislodge any of the Spanish under cover in the chaparral. When it comes to the bombardment of the outposts of the Spanish, splendid service is expected from the unmounted cavalrymen of General Shafter's army in picking off the Spanish gunners.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

FOR THE BOYS IN BLUE.

Incident on a Wyoming Train Which Illustrates the Patriotism of Women.

An incident occurred on the Union Pacific flier going east from Cheyenne, Wy., at 2 a. m. the other day. On board was Sergeant Ed Glenn of the Alger Light artillery, with 14 men whom he had recruited at Rawlins, Wy., to help bring the battery up to the maximum number. They were in the same car with several ladies. One of the latter, tired and travel stained, calling the handsome young sergeant to her, said: "I have a boy, who has donned the blue uniform you wear, far away out in California. I love it, I am devoted to the cause of freedom for the Cuban patriots, and I want to testify my feeling by a simple act of kindness to your boys, who look worn and tired. Please take this money, $2, and treat them when you get off the train." Sergeant Glenn remonstrated, assured her that he had adequate funds, etc., but nothing would do the lady until he took the money.

In a seat nearly opposite was a beautiful girl, about 19 years of age, who, apparently, taking fire from what had transpired, quickly took her Russian leather purse from her pocket and getting out a $5 goldpiece handed it to a Torrey trooper behind her, saying: "Mo Joe. This is a donation to the Torrey patriots." There was enough patriotism aflame in the car in a moment to have inspired another "charge of the 600."—Rocky Mountain News.

Jos. Chamberlain to Assume Leadership of Unionists

Of the English Government.

London, June 22.—It is rumored that Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, will shortly resign from the ministry in order to assume the leadership of a large number of Unionists in the House of Commons, who are discontented with the foreign policy of the government. There seems to be no doubt that Mr. Chamberlain is dissatisfied with his present position and if affairs in the far east and in West Africa take the turn he expects, his friends believe that he will not remain in the cabinet to share the shipwreck of a policy he never approved. Whatever may be the outcome, the disquieting idea is undoubtedly prevalent, in conservative circles that Mr. Chamberlain can't emulates some sensational move, and the extent to which this is connected shows how little Mr. Chamberlain can count upon Tory confidence.

KINGSTON, JA., June 22.—The captain of the steamer Adula, which arrived here yesterday from Cienfuegos reports that while on the way to this port, he met the U. S. auxiliary cruiser, Yankee, seventy miles off the Cuban coast. This was the only warship he sighted during the voyage. The captain further said he had learned at Cienfuegos that the Spanish steamer Purissima Conception, which sailed from Kingston on June 16 with food supplies for the Spanish troops and carrying, it is said, $100,000 in gold, had arrived at Trinidad, a province of Santa Clara.

THE RACE WAS POSTPONED

Heavy Storm Held Crews in Their Quarters.

Cornell Came Out Ready to Start—Harvard Presents Lehman With Field Glasses—Thousands of People Were Disappointed.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

New London, June 22.—The men of each of the New England colleges woke up to the fact today that the crews were not quite as bad as they had been led to believe and by noon the college loyalty had got over some caution and the Cornell backers began to find considerable use for their money. The crews yesterday showed but little improvement over the previous days, and Cornell's crew had seemingly kept up the same pace which they had set upon their advent on the Thames. Nevertheless, the Cambridge and New Haven men went around town with their heads pretty high in the air and an eager, expectant look that was a decided contrast to the dejected expression of yesterday.

All the boats had taken their position by 10.30 o'clock and the scene while not as imposing as in former years, was nevertheless a picturesque one, while the big gathering was prepared to give the crews a noisy time at the finish.

The delay in the arrival of trains caused a movement about noon on the part of the local management for a postponement of the race for an hour, but this was met by an objection on the part of Cornell. Mr. Cook said Yale would row at any time that was agreeable to the other crews and would abide by the referee's decision in the matter.

The Harvard crew took a run of a mile before breakfast this morning. Contrary to his usual practice, Mr. Lehmann called the crew to the water about half past nine and they were on the river for half an hour trying starts with the pistol.

The crew caught the water quickly and went away with a dash that seemed to please the coach very much. After a short row up the river and back, the eight came back to the boathouse for the customary shower bath and rub down.

The principal event of the morning was the presentation to Mr. Lehmann by the crew, of a fine pair of field glasses.

1.20, p. m.—A squall has come from them the west, the wind is heavy and and the rain is falling fast. The wind does not appear to disturb the river to any extent.

1.30 p. m.—The squall has passed, the sun is shining and the water is smooth. The launch has reched the Cornell boathouse. There is activity on the wharf and the crew has evidently arrived in their boat.

Starting point, 1.40 p. m.—The wind has died down again into almost a dead calm and has shifted so that little breezes from the south are coming up the course.

Two-mile station, 1.45 p. m.—The launch has taken Cornell's shell in tow and is headed up the river. The breeze is freshening fast and the water is getting disturbed.

At the starting point at 2.05, the wind is freshening steadily from the south. All is quiet and still at the quarters. Cornell is approaching slowly. A shallow from the northward indicates that a storm has reached here and the sun is under a heavy bank of clouds. The water is still smooth. The observation train with cheering spectators started at 2.10 and reached the starting point at 2.24. The crowd is unusually quiet. The rain is now increasing and thunder and lightning appear in the north. The water is becoming very rough.

The Cornell crew reached the starting point at 2.15 and the crowds on the shore cheered the eight men. The launch with the shell in tow continued up the river on the west side and approached the Harvard quarters, presumably for a conference regarding the postponement of the race. A few moments later the Cornell shell was pulled in to the shore at the Harvard headquarters and many believed that the race had been postponed.

At 2.42 more uncertain or aggravating conditions could hardly exist. From the northwest a thunder storm is working slowly downtoward the course. Frequent flashes of lightning occur and the thunder is heavy at times.

At the starting point at 2.38 the rain that had been holding off slowly increased and the storm from the north came faster. Not a sound came from the observation train.

At 2.40 the race had not been formally postponed, but no crew was moving. Cornell decided to enter their shell at the Harvard float. The water was gradually becoming rougher. The referee's boat now approached the Harvard quarters.

At 2.40 the referees' launch went to the Yale quarters; Harvard and Cornell had been visited and agreed to a postponement. The rain increased slowly and the referee announced to Mr. Cook at the Yale quarters that the race had been postponed till 3.15. He said that an attempt would be made to start it promptly at that time.

At 3 o'clock the prospects for a race were worse than at any time during the day. The thunderstorm was working down toward the course and the river to the north was inky black. Five minutes later a gale was blowing from the North and the thunder and lightning increased rapidly. The soaking rain came down and it began to look like a long storm. At 3.30 the referee announced that the race had been postponed. He also stated that an effort may be made to have it this evening.

BARONI ARRESTED.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 2.—Antonio Baroni was arrested this morning for the murder of Philip Forestano, whose dismembered body was found in a trunk yesterday morning floating in the harbor. Baroni's wife and two children were also locked up and the former may be held as an accomplice. Baroni admits purchasing the trunk in which the body was stowed. Forestano, it is alleged, has been on intimate terms with Mrs. Baroni for a long time and it is the opinion of the police that she was compelled by her husband to lure the victim to their home in Olga street where he was attacked and murdered by Baroni. The murder occurred between 8 and 10 o'clock Monday morning and the trunk with the body was placed in Blackwell canal that night.

THE GRADUATION

First Portion of High School Exercises Held

IN HIGH SCHOOL HALL YESTERDAY.

Several Creditable Essays Delivered.

The first portion of the graduation exercises of the High school was held yesterday afternoon in High school hall.

Potted plants were placed on the platform and the large semi-chorus occupied seats on the stage.

The opening number, "Let Our Voices Be Glad," was sung by the chorus directed by Dr. Rix. The paper read by Miss Margaret S. Jamieson on "Coleridge's Ancient Mariner" was written by Miss Helen D. Swain.

The grand plea that he made for the American colonies was recalled in Clinton H. Robinson's essay on "Burke's Speech on Conciliation with America," read by Henry A. Ferrin.

"The Vision of Sir Launfal," written by Miss Florence A. Manahan, was read by Miss Annie V. Donoghue. There was poetical sentiment in the written story.

After a "Swing Song" by the chorus Miss Kate M. Snow read an original paper on "Sir Roger de Coverley," that fine old English gentleman who boasted that his coat had been in and out of season twelve times, and whose servants so loved him that they preferred to remain in his service rather than go into business through his generosity.

An extract from one of Hon. John D. Long's memorial addresses was finely given by Lloyd B. Haworth.

Miss Bertha L. Johnson read a very clever paper on "The Flight of the Kalmucks." She told the tragic story of the exodus from Russia, across the desert into China, in a narrative that had action and color.

"Exercise; Its History and Its Need," was the title of a paper by Arthur W. McLean. He argued very strongly for a more general physical training as necessary to the advancement of the race, and predicted a new era of strength for America.

The chorus sang a waltz song and Miss Florence E. Williams recited Edgar Fawcett's "The Tears of Tullia," a difficult poem to handle.

James W. Mudge, spoke for an Anglo-American alliance in his "England and America."

Miss Ethel T. Neale recited Thomas D. English's "Akertos," with spirit and Herbert D. Bixby read the final essay on "Admiral Nelson," one of the best things of the afternoon. The chorus sang the new "Hail Columbia" as the finale to the program.

CRISP GOSSIP.

It is stated that one of our Lowell teachers recently called the attention of her pupils to the fact that bright and cheerful colors prevail in nature. She asked them why, in their opinion, God ordered that the foliage in vegetation should be green rather than black. Promptly one of the small boys replied: "Because he is an Irishman." It is needless to say what was his country, but the "Kid" is now receiving considerable "kidding" in that part of Lowell known as Councilman Lang's "neck of the woods."

John Morley has been received into the Roman Catholic church at the Brompton Oratory ,according to the Irish Independent.

Leo XIII had the highest admiration for Mr. Gladstone, whom he regarded as the greatest Englishman of modern times, and during the illness of Mr. Gladstone, his holiness followed the daily bulletins with the keenest sympathy. His death is the occasion of great grief to the Pope. His holiness has on several occasions told Mgr. Angeli, his private secretary and confidant, that he would die soon after the death of one of the great ones of the century—that is, after the death of either Queen Victoria, Mr. Gladstone or Prince Bismarck. It was therefore, with great caution that Cardinal Rampolla broke the news of Mr. Gladstone's death to him. The news reached the Vatican about eleven o'clock, while the Pope was at mass. After mass Cardinal Rampolla entered the papal apartments and shortly afterwards informed the pope, who said: "Requiem eternam dona ei, Domine", to which the minister replied: "Amen." His holiness was much affected. Last Friday he requested to be kept daily informed of the health of Queen Victoria and Prince Bismarck. His mind is running on his own end and a frequent remark of his to Mgr. Angeli is: "Remember Pius IX ascended eo Heaven a month after Victor Emmanuel."—Vatican correspondence London Daily Mail.

TRANSFERS EXCLUDED.

A change has been adopted on the Low.ll, Lawrence & Haverhill Street railway in the line of ringing fares. The management of the road has decided to discontinue the registering of transfers by the conductors. Hereafter when a person boards a car with a transfer, it will be taken up as usual but not rung in by the conductor as a fare. Since the change went into effect it has been noticed on occasions that the indicator registered eight or ten fares less than there were passengers on the car and passengers wondered how that could be. The above mention of the change explains all.

AT THE CIRCUS

Big Crowds Visit the Fair Grounds Yesterday

AND SAW AN EXCEPTIONALLY CLEVER SHOW.

Some of the Many Fine Features.

At the risk of being called behind the times, I'll express the opinion that there is no circus like the old two-ring affair where one gets a chance to see everything at once without any danger of wrecking his nervous system in "rubbering" his neck out of all proportion, especially when every performer is an artist and every act a feature.

Such a circus is the Walter L. Main circus, and I suppose that following in the argument to its conclusion, there is no circus like the Main circus. There are certainly no more enjoyable circuses.

Yesterday being circus day, the streets were packed with all kinds of humanity for the good impression made by the Main show last year was still about and all turned out to see its street parade which was good, even to the music, an unusual feature of circuses.

But in the tent performance, lies the charm of this particular circus, and despite the terrific downpour of rain and hail the big tent was comfortably filled at the afternoon show. As it cleared up toward evening, it was not surprising to find the tent crowded to the doors almost when the blast of the trumpet announced the coming of the grand opening pageant which introduced the evning's how. A feature of the pageant was young "Dewey" the smallest elephant in the world, who came into the world on Decoration Day and was immediately christened after the hero of Manila. "Dewey" has has been written up at length in the New York papers recently and hence suffice it to state that he is the most interesting little elephant that ever wiggled a trunk.

When the pageant was over the performance was formally opened with an exhibition of man's superiority over beast, in the shape of a den of performing wild animals directed and controlled by one man. To see elephants, horses and dogs perform may be common and not at all startling, but to see a shaggy maned and ferocious African lion jump on the back of a horse and ride around the ring, doing also a hurdle act from the animal's back and to see any ugly-looking leopard jump over elephants and jump through hoops of fire are sights worth going miles to see. It certainly excels any exhibition of trained wild animals that the country has ever seen.

But that is only one feature. There are others For instance, there's Crandall ,the clown donkey rider, who outrides any trick rider in the country and his side splitting antics filled the area with continual roars of laughter.

The clowns, the delight of the children, are numerous and clever workers. In latter day circuses, the clowns are inclined to be loafers but in this show each one has some comedy part of his own and each one executed his part with button-bursting completeness. But to enumerate the features would fill columns as each individual act is worthy of mention. The aerial and trapeze acts, particularly that of the Zenos are among the finest, while the acrobatic and tumbling turns are so far advanced that the double somersault that once we greeted with open-mouthed wonder, in the Main show is only one of the hard turns of the performers. The performing horses were marvels of equine grace and beauty while their riders know no superiors.

Special mention in this feature must be given to Tony Lenando, the most graceful bareback rider in the world, who performed first with two horses and then with four, in the latter act the handsome young performer appearing in evening attire. Prof. Lenando's act was one of the most daring ever seen in any circus and last night one's admiration for him must have been increased upon learning that though apparently gay and dashing, amid smiles and bows in response to the plaudits of the admiring throng, he was ill at heart, his beautiful and talented wife, one of the cleverest lady riders in the circus, being dangerously ill at the Framingham hospital.

The show concluded with well contested and exciting hippodrome races and the great audience left the tent with the firm conviction that there is no better circus on the road than that of W. L. Main.

NURSE GRADUATED.

At St. John's hospital last evening Miss Catherine A. Doogan of Waltham, having completed the two-year course, received her diploma as a trained nurse. All the Sisters of Charity and the pupil nurses were present at the interesting ceremony. The diploma was presented by Rev. John McKenna of St. Peter's church, a cousin of the nurse. Rev. William D. Joyce, O.M.I., was present. After the exercises a little feast was enjoyed in the nurses' refectory, which was patriotically trimmed for the occasion.

FORGOT THE CIRCUS.

William Purcell of Wigginville called down to the circus last night and police officers on duty at the grounds found him insensibly intoxicated with a wound on his head, bleeding profusely. He was sent to the police station in the ambulance.

RECRUITS LEAVE

For Camp Alger to Join the 6th. Regt.

NAMES OF THE SUCCESSFUL APPLICANTS.

News of the Old Military Companies.

Again the armory was yesterday the scene of tearful farewells when another batch of raw recruits took up their grips and marched manfully from home to the depot in order to board trains for Camp Alger where they will augment the Lowell companies now in camp. It was a fateful day for all the applicants, for each was earnest in his endeavor to get into the army and some dreaded the rigid examination of Dr. Dutton, the medical examiner. Shortly after 11 o'clock the result of the examinations was known and about 50 men were soon busily engaged at their homes packing up what belongings they might need at Camp Alger.

In the afternoon, friends of the recruits began to flock into the armory and among them was Mayor Bennett, who made a brief but encouraging speech to the soldier boys.

A little after 5 o'clock the company was drawn up in line in the armory boxes of food distributed and at 5.15 Major Taylor, who was detailed to recruit for the Sixth regiment gave the order to march and after a pause of two or three minutes for goodbyes, the boys took up their grips and bundles and started for the station. They found several hundred people there ahead of them and awaiting their arrival and hasty farewells were said as one after another stepped on the train. Then the handshaking went on, the the soldiers leaning from the windows, and in spite of the fact that they had smiling faces for their friends, the seriousness of it all could be seen.

At 5.25, the conductor called out the "All aboard," and the train moved away while a cheer went up from the spectators.

Dr. Dutton conducted an examination that was severe enough to reject 32 out of 70 men.

Among the well known recruits who were rejected at Camp Dewey and passed here were "Doc." Miles, Corp. Golden and Corp. George E. Worthen and Algernon Varnum. These men are all on their way to Camp Alger and a happier quartette cannot be found in the country.

Corp. Frank Dodge sent down 18 men for Company G as follows:

Charles E. Johnson, 21½ Loring street.
Walter E. Worthen, 27 Forest street.
Wm. N. Prescott, 67 London street.
Fred H. Clifford, 35 South street.

Arthur T. Baker, 67 French street.
William E. Golden, 35 Massachusetts corporation.
Napoleon E. Fisher, 17 London street.
Joseph F. Murphy, 109 Congress street.
Joseph L. Maltrijean, 113 Lakeview avenue.
Francis J. Howe, 175 Smith street.
John W. Wroe, 21 Kirk street.
John J. Connelly, 201 Middlesex street.

John P. Cryan, 49 Clare street.
John W. O'Brien, 167 E. Merrimack street.
Napoleon Sarvais ———.
Frederick R. Cheney, 29 West Ninth street.

Corp. Kittredge sent the following men for Company C:

Arthur Blennerhasset, 5 Rockdale avenue.
George E. Worthen Jr., 27 Forrest street.
Albert R. Archibald, 816 Merrimack street.
John Halloran, 23 Kidder street.
Odina Desmarais, 45 Salem street.
Algernon Varnum, 92 Shaw street.

Addresses unknown—Frank Parks, Frank Kelly, John Brophy, Francis J. O'Hearn, John Williamson, Edward Flannigan, Charles E. Tilton, Willard D. Pratt, Philip E. Abbott, Frank McLaughlin, Orvilla Morin, Thomas Ellis.

The men were under the command of Corp. George E. Worthen, Jr. Upon their arrival at Camp Alger, they will be uniformed.

Corp. Dodge and Sergt. Kittredge will continue to take names but the chances are against another physical examination in this city. The next one will be held for Lowell men in Wakefield with the same surgeon presiding.

John J. Caldwell, John J. Donohoe, and Michael Murray passed the exam., but they did not start with the others. Their turn will come at the latter part of this week.

The company organized to take the place of C was mustered in by Col. Gordon Dexter last night with 43 members present. Immediately after the ceremony an election of officers was held which resulted as follows: Captain, George E. Worthen, Sr.; first lieutenant, A. D. Colby; second lieutenant, George L. Fowler, Jr.

Capt. Worthen is one of the best known military men in the city. His most recent position with the militia has been that of first lieutenant in Company D, Second Corps Cadets. He has two sons now on their way to Camp Alger.

Oscar P. Ellis of 83 White street, Pawtucketville, has passed the mental and physical examinations for the U. S. Engineer Corps, and will leave for the front on Saturday of this week. It is understood that the men recruited in Boston for this department of the service will go direct to Cuba. Mr. Ellis was instructed to that effect before he was accepted.

PIAZZA PARTY

MR. AND MRS. J. CLARK GLIDDEN ENTERTAIN FRIENDS AT THEIR RESIDENCE.

The beautiful residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. Clark Glidden at 1235 Middlesex street, was the scene of a very pleasant piazza party last evening by the members of the Epworth union. On both the first and second floors the verandas were illuminated with Japanese lanterns. There was an impromptu entertainment given as follows:

The entertainment was largely impromptu, but was none the less enjoyable. A series of tableaux, prepared under the direction of Mrs. Howes, assisted by Mrs. Cleworth, was given on the lawn. The tableaux and those taking part were: "Faith, Hope and Charity," Flossie Holgate, Mabel Howe and Bertha Cleworth; "The proposal," Bertha Cady, Bert Keniston and Bertha Cleworth; "Cuba Freed," Lillian Holgate and Mrs. Chas. Dane; "Off for a Wife," Carl Staples and Bertha Cleworth; "Evening Prayer," Bertha Cleworth, Flossie Holgate, and Mabel Howes; "Sleeping Beauty," Addie Howes and Carl Staples; "Goddess of Liberty," Addie Howes; "Good night," the whole company. The red fire used in the tableaux was contributed by Charles E. Carter.

Refreshments were served immediately afterward. Rev. L. W. Staples spoke of his recent trip to Sterling camp ground, expressing his appreciation of the fine building there which is owned by the Lowell union. An Italian harpist was stationed at one end of the hall and played sweetly as a closing feature. It was a pleasant event, and the members of the union and others who attended feel grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Glidden for their generous hospitality.

BUCO REED'S DAY.

The John Reed case is on trial at Brockton today with W. A. Gile of Worcester as counsel. Reed will answer to an indictment charging him with larceny of $2500 from Martin Wood of Bridgewater. In the lower court Reed gave bail and was defaulted. He now comes into the Superior court to plead. He is now serving a ten years' sentence in the state prison for larceny.

ANOTHER SENTENCE.

Plymouth, June 22.—In Superior court, the jury in the case of John Reed for buncoing Martin Wood of Bridgewater out of $1500 returned a verdict of guilty, and he was sentenced to not more than four or less than three years in state prison. Reed took his sentence very coolly and chatted with the lawyers afterward. This makes 11 years Reed has now to serve. Harry S. Richmond of Brockton, for forging a note of $5500 on the Abington Savings bank and one on the Rockland Savings bank for $9000, pleaded guilty.

CHARETTE'S CHUM

"Mickey" Howard of U.S.S. San Francisco

PAID A FLYING VISIT TO LOWELL YESTERDAY.

George Charette and He Enlisted Together.

It was almost like seeing George Charette himself in town when yesterday afternoon I grasped the outstretched hand and received the gorgeous smile of "Mickey" Howard, or to give him his title, Captain of Division, Michael Howard of the U. S. S. San Francisco, who after a long absence of three years, came into town on 48 hours leave, "just to take a look at the place, and see if Lowell appreciated the fact that it is again to the front in war and to see if Lowell is coupling the name of Charette with Ladd and Whitney as she should do."

It took a few minutes for me to assure myself that the handsome fellow in the picturesque uniform of the American tar with the eagle and crossed anchors on his sleeve betokening his rank was Mickey Howard, but he was Mickey, as handsome, gay and muscular as ever with not a word to say about himself but shouting the glory of his old chum of South Common days and later his messmate in the navy, George Charette.

Captain Howard, being a landlubber, I'll call him "captain" was the guest of the Belvidere hotel yesterday, stopping there, as he said, in order to talk over old times with Sammy Cox who was the only one of the little band of South Common heroes who didn't follow the sea.

When I asked him to talk about himself, he said: "Never mind me until I get a chance to do something. "Dutchy" (Charette) is the boy to talk about. Didn't he do a trick to talk about? And he was from Lowell, a product of the Lowell school. Since we heard about the sinking of the Merrimac, I've got the whole ship talking about Lowell.

"Charette, as you know, left the San Francisco when his time expired and after coming home for a short stay paid his own way to Key West and enlisted there. He didn't have any trouble in enlisting, for Charette is an expert torpedo man and without boasting because he's from Lowell, it's my honest opinion that there is not a man in the entire navy, commissioned, warrant, non-commissioned or common seaman, who knows more about torpedoes than George Charette. But I'm running ahead.

When Charette left the ship, I was the last one he shook hands with. He said: 'Mickey, here's where old Lowell friends have got to part.' 'Mickey,' he continued, shaking my hand for all he was worth, "If ever I get the chance I'm going to make my mark and put my name in Lowell history and if you get the chance, you do it, too, and some day we'll do Lowell honor." Then he left me. He's had the chance and he more than made his mark, and if ever I get it, I'll make mine if I have to die to do it, for we must hold up the reputation of the old Eliot street and Edson schools, though I must admit I wasn't the best scholar they ever had. I don't suppose Miss Dillon and Mrs. Turner will ever forgive me. They were fine teachers, though.

"When Charette went off the ship they asked him to stay as chief gunner's mate ,a job where you wear a uniform like a street car conductor. George couldn't see it, though. He wanted to get in the thick of the fight right away and he got there with both feet.

"And while I'm talking of Charette I want to tell you that there isn't a man I know of that knows more about foreign navies than George Charette. I believe he could tell you the tonnage displacement and armament of every ship of any importance in the world. If he ever opens up in Morro, they'll kill him as a spy, for he knows Cervera's fleet as well as if he had served in that navy. It was Charette himself who rigged up the torpedo, as it is called, that blew up the Merrimac with Hobson and the others and himself on deck. It was gun cotton in a common can like the tomato cans you have around here, and it took George to rig it up so fine that it got a perfect result.

"George is a great friend of Admiral Schley, and Schley knows what a valuman he is. McKinley did the best official act of his life when he said he'd hold Blanco personally responsible for the lives of the eight boys of the Merrimac."

Captain Howard then paid a glowing tribute to Lieut. Hobson and explained to me the use of gun cotton, rapid fire guns etc., which unfortunately, for lack of space, I must omit.

Then speaking of himself, he said: "Charette, Frank Stickney and I went into the navy practically together. Charette went in December of 1881 and Stickney and I went a few weeks later. I haven't seen Stickney for some time, but he's all right and is still on ship, since I went into the service I have been on the Wabash, New Hampshire, Saratoga, Juniata, in which I went round the world, Portsmouth Vermont, Boston and Philadelphia, in which we took in the Chilian war, and the Constellation. I left the Constellation a couple of years ago and settled in Brooklyn, but they sent after me and I re-enlisted and went aboard the San Francisco, where I met my old friend 'Dutchy.' ".

"We are now doing duty along the New England coast and as we stopped at Boston for coal I got leave to come up here and see my folks. We chased one merchant ship that I really believe was a Spanish auxiliary cruiser. We didn't overtake her though we were with range of her. We sail for Provincetown tomorrow adn later we expect to be reinforced by the Harvard, Yale, Yesemite and Paine and sail across for a little fun along the coast of Spain or a crack at that hide-and-seek Cadiz fleet."

Mr. Howard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Howard of Rock street.

CHEATED

The merchant who pays for advertising and doesn't get it cries out that advertising doesn't pay. He is wrong. Advertising pays if you get it. If you pay for any commodity that is never delivered, you lose money on it, just the same as you lose on advertising that you pay for but never get.

When merchants learn to buy their advertising space in the newspapers as they buy their merchandise—by measure and weight—it will pay them. Buy space by the inch per thousand of circulation and see that you get what you pay for. Then you will never be cheated in advertising and it will pay you. The Sun will give you more advertising for your money than any other paper in Lowell

LOWELL'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

We are to have another battleship named after the ill-fated Maine and one named in honor of Ensign Bagley who fell at the battle of Cienfuegos.

The legislature before adjourning must pass the Boston aldermanic bill providing that each party shall nominate twelve aldermen. This will leave the voters twenty-four candidates from which to choose one-half that number.

Congressman Bailey of Texas is proving an able leader in congress. He is severely criticised by republicans for drawing party lines. They seem to assume that it should be their exclusive right to draw party lines during the war.

Col. Whitney of the Fifth regiment has caused some surprise in turning down Lieut. Col. Oakes and appointing Capt. E. W. Weaver to that position in the Fifth regiment. Col. Whitney's act is for the good of the service and should be commended.

General Miles has requested Governor Wolcott to give his son a commission in the army. This request comes with poor grace from General Miles. If he followed military principles, he would let his son rise in the ranks by his own merits rather than have him pushed ahead by influence.

The state legislature has refused to grant Mayor Quincy his request for power to appoint temporary heads of departments. He wished to appoint a successor to Col. Bogan, who has gone to the front with the Ninth regiment. Colonel Bogan was inspector of public buildings in Boston, and although the office is now vacant, the legislature refused to allow Mayor Quincy to fill it temporarily.

THE TEXTILE SCHOOL.

The city council has appropriated $5,000 for the Textile school in order to secure the $15,000 offered by the state. It was not intended that the city should have to pay even this amount but certain legislators had matters so arranged and there was no alternative except to close up the school.

There is a sentiment that it is of no benefit to the operatives, but any ambitious operative can easily fit himself for admission to the school and can then pursue any course of instruction he may select.

The chief trouble is that the operatives and the people at large do not seem to appreciate fully the advantages offered by the school.

If parents instead of starting their sons to be lawyers or to fill some other position supposed to be a soft snap, would send them to the Textile school, they would be enabled to earn much more money than they can in the overcrowded professions to which they are assigned by their parents. In many cities and in Lowell among the number, some of the professions are overcrowded. There are too many lawyers to allow any except those who have built up a reputation to make the business pay.

Of such importance have the mechanical trades become—such, for example, as electricians, mill engineers and many others—that men who enter them can earn more than can men of average ability in the professions. There is a fatal tendency prevalent among ambitious young men, which is, that they are afraid to use their hands; they think it somewhat of a disgrace to have to depend upon manual labor for their sustenance. But the sooner this false sentiment disappears, the better.

The Textile school is the only one in Lowell that teaches technical trades, and any young man who avails himself properly of the advantages it offers, will find no difficulty in securing a good position. If the operatives and the young men avail themselves of the courses at the Textile school, the institution will be worth more than $5,000 to the city. If the school fulfills the aim of the founders it will produce skilled workmen and render unnecessary their importation from Europe; it will enable the manufacturers to advance to finer grades of goods and thus defy outside competition, which paralyzes the mills and causes low wages and shutdowns to the injury of the entire community.

ALL SHOULD SWIM.

From the number of drowning accidents which occur every summer around Lowell for the sole reason that the victims cannot swim, it would appear to be a good policy for every boy to learn to swim. As no special place is provided for this purpose, the boys have to resort to the river, and in so doing run the risk of being drowned before they acquire the art of swimming. This brings up the question of public baths. The economic policy now supposed to be in force at city hall will preclude any movement towards providing public bathing places for the people. Public bath houses are provided in Boston and every progressive city. They are doubly needed in inland cities, where the people have not the advantage of the seashore. There may come a time when the city council will be progressive enough and will so overcome the economic pressure that it will be able to provide public bathing houses. From the present aspect, however, this ideal time seems to be lagging a couple of centuries behind the millenium.

B & M. AGENTS.

THEIR MEETING HELD IN MANCHESTER, N. H., TUESDAY.

The monthly meeting of the Boston and Maine agents at the larger stations was held at the Manchester House, Manchester, N. H., by nineteen agents from all over the Boston and Maine system. The affair opened with a banquet at noon followed by the reading of a paper on "Memorandum Way Bills, Their Use and Misuse," by Agents Tatt and Dane, criticism of which was participated in by nearly all present, the views expressed receiving very general endorsement.

Following the paper and a discussion, the entire party went for a trolley ride about the city on one of the Manchester street railway's special cars. Messrs. E. W. Harvey and E. J. Powers, the local agents, were untiring in their efforts to give the boys a good time.

The agents present included C. H. Cummings of Worcester, president of the association; F. P. Grant of Portsmouth, vice-president; G. H. Thorburn of Lynn, secretary and treasurer; Oliver E. Clark, Mystic Wharf, Boston; C. E. Hayward, Lakeport; E. F. Tower, Springfield; A. H. Robinson, Somerville, N. H.; A. B. Kimball, Rochester; F. J. Powers, Manchester; C. D. Parkman, Keene, N. H.; R. A. McClutchey, Portland; E. W. Harvey, Manchester; E. F. Baird, Woodsville; P. J. Bonger, Concord; O. S. Day, Newport; J. K. Horne, Nashua; H. C. Taft, Lowell. Supt. C. E. Lee of the W. and P. division, Nashua was the special guest of the occasion. The next meeting will be at Portsmouth in July.

THE ARENA OF POLITICS

OUR TWO WARS.

Plutocracy Is the Enemy That Threatens the Life of the Republic.

The people of the United States have two wars on hand—a war with Spain and a war with the plutocracy. The war with Spain is a war to avenge the assassination of the Maine, to free Cuba, to put an end to Spanish ferocity on this continent. It is a war for humanity, and unless sinister motives control, if not manipulated in the interest of the bondholders or to influence the coming election, this war will be fought to a successful finish in a very few months.

How about the war against the money power? This is not the first time we have had to wage war against the plutocracy. We waged it 100 years ago, when Jeffersonianism triumphed over Hamiltonianism. It was renewed in the days of Jackson and the United States bank, when the cause of the people again proved victorious. It recurred at the close of the civil war and would long ago again have been decided for the people but for the untimely death of Lincoln. It has been on ever since. It is on now. By flaunting the "bloody shirt," by false appeals to passion and prejudice, the money kings succeeded in intrenching themselves in power in the early seventies and managed to control both of the leading parties up to 1896.

Shall the Spanish war serve to so divert the minds of the people as to prolong the reign of the oligarchy of wealth in the United States?

Unfortunate indeed would it be if it should so result. What would it profit us to conquer Spain and lose our own liberty? How, forsooth, can Cuba be free if America is enslaved? Mammon is no respecter of times. The nation's extremity is Shylock's opportunity. The usurer is not moved by patriotism. While the people are engrossed in the effort to protect the honor of their flag, providing the sinews of war and giving themselves and their sons a willing sacrifice to their country Moneybags is busy getting fat contracts, cornering the supplies of wheat and other necessaries, forming trusts and combines whereby to extort at once from the government and the people, dictating the terms of war revenue bills, so that taxes shall fall not on property but on the necessaries of life and demanding that bonds shall be issued to be owned by the rich and powerful, to be paid by the poor, out of their poverty. If opposition be made to this high handed injustice, the opponents are denounced as narrow minded partisans and obstructors of legislation and as enemies of the country—although they offer to raise, by other methods consistent with the public weal, all the money required to carry on the war. The time has come to be truly patriotic, to unmask the pseudo patriots, to expose their villainy, to refuse to aid or abet, in time of war as well as in time of peace, public robbery and public plunder. We must cast aside all fear that the people will believe the false charges of the tools of the plutocrats and courageously resist the machinations by the exercise of every legitimate power. We must remain true to the people.—National Intelligencer.

The Armor Plate Robbers.

The government is now paying $400 a ton for its armor plate, notwithstanding the fact that a committee reported only a short time ago that it could be manufactured at a profit for $150 a ton. An expert committee admits that a plant involving the expense of $1,000,000 could turn out this armor plate for the government for a much less figure than $150 a ton. Why is it the government does not establish its own plant for the manufacture of this plate when by the simple investment of $1,000,000 or $2,000,000 it could do so? The cost of armor plate for the new boats now being built will amount to nearly $2,000,000 apiece, at the rate of $400 a ton. What a shame and what a commentary upon the good business sense and decency of our administration that goes into cahoots with Carnegie, Hanna and the rest of the scallawags to rob our country in its distress!

We have intimated that we would like to see a Spanish gunboat go up to New York harbor and bombard J. Pierpont Morgan's office. We would like to add that as soon as this war is over we would like to see our navy or the Spanish navy go up to Portland, Me., and bombard the home of Dingley, Hoar and the rest of the schemers who have been backing this armor plate scheme to rob the government.—Denver Road.

The Coming Revolution.

There is no further any doubt that the administration is negotiating an alliance with England, but the encouraging feature of the whole business is that such high handed acts of infamy will the sooner bring about the end. This will help to awaken the people and by no means prevent the coming revolution, and when it comes the present ruling dynasty of both England and America will be wiped from the face of the earth. Go right on, McKinley, and make your alliance; agree to build the Nicaragua canal and give it to England; promise to help her hold Canada in subjection if that great empire ever tires of the despotic rule of some London dude who fills a British throne. Make all the contracts you please. Some time the people will tumble the whole cargo overboard just as surely as they threw the tea overboard in Boston harbor.—Chicago Express.

The Two Patriots.

While our lads on sea and on land will be fighting to take the yoke from the necks of the oppressed of another country the gold ring will be working strenuously through congress to still further tighten its clutch on the throats of our own people. The men who can prevent that infamy will be no less patriots than those who go forth to battle. The men who war against it, even if unsuccessful, will deserve the thanks of their countrymen.—Sacramento Bee.

CYCLING NEWS.

What promises to be one of the most interesting contests of the season in paced racing will be the 50-mile match between William Martin and Harry Elkes at the Charles river track next Saturday afternoon. It will be the longest race of its kind with unlimited pace that has been run on an American track.

It is practically Martin's first big race since his return from Australia, and it will give the followers of the sport an opportunity to judge of his ability at the middle-distance paced game. In his training Martin has given every indication of being a fast, powerful rider. Perhaps he is not as well posted as Elkes in middle distance work but what he lacks in experience, he apparently more than makes up for in strength. Yesterday Martin was pushing a 122-gear, and he took out a three-mile spin, unpaced. The first mile was cut out in 2m., 12 sec., the second in 2m., 15 sec., and the third in 12m., 14 secs. In the afternoon he took a spin behind his pacemakers and reeled off 20 miles in reasonable time considering the wind.

At the present time, Martin is training behind a team of 26 pacemakers, but neither of the contestants has announced how many men he will use on the day of the race.

Martin is a man of large frame and big bones. He is a seasoned athlete. Elkes is a slender youth, but on previous occasions, has demonstrated that he is a rider of great endurance and excellent staying powers. One of the oldest trainers in the sport, recently said that if Elkes did not grow old fast he would be the coming champion. Dave Shafer has great confidence in the boy's ability or he would not have added him to his string, and Dave seldom makes a mistake in picking a winner. With Elkes and Michael, Shafer undoubtedly has the two best middle-distance men in America with the exception of McDuffee and Linton. Great things are expected of French Taylore, but it remains to be seen what he is capable of when he meets McDuffee, Michael or Elkes.

For the past month Elkes has been training under the watchful eye of Shafer and the youngster has shown great improvement. He has improved in his position, and makes his pickups much more smoothly than he did in his race with Linton. Training in second place behind Michael has been excellent practice for him, and if it should come to a pinch, where a pickup is missed his experience will prove of value to him in the coming match.

Martin's pace is handled by Frank Waller, a veteran long-distance man, and a man who performed heroic service for Michael in his 15-mile match with McDuffee a year ago. There is little in connection with the pacing game that Waller does not understand. At the same time he will be met by Dave Shafer who always uses great generalship in the handling of pacemakers under adverse circumstances and in tight places.

When one considers the remarkable time made by McDuffee in his recent match with Major Taylor, it is hardly probable that the records will begin to go inside of the 30-mile mark.

Tom Barnaby of Revere and J. H. Berwin of Manchester, N. H., met yesterday and agreed to ride a match race at ten miles, paced, the latter part of July in Manchester. The purse will be $300 and the side bets are $100.

The racing committee of the Roslindale C. C. denies the report that a protest in intended by that club against the P. C. C. team on the ground that P. F. Logan was not a member of the club the required thirty days.

The Orient C. C. is getting together a pursuit team and will ride a five-mile pursuit race the latter part of August at Charles River park, with the Winthrop C. C. as probable opponents.

Entry blanks for the Speers road race at East Boston are now out and can be obtained. A full list of prizes is to be announced. As Captain Irish is very particular about help, it is suggested that no rider attempt to start unless his wheel has one. Otherwise, he may not be allowed by the police to ride.

A. A. Zimmerman is still on his back at his father's house in Manasquan. He cannot lift hand or foot nor move his head, but is mending slowly. So far, only Charlie Wells, the big California racing man, outside the immediate family of the champion, has visited him.

A new scoring device for middle-distance races has been set up at Manhattan Beach. It consists of a large dial, on which the time in minutes, seconds, and fifths is shown, while the number of miles and laps to the credit of each man are indicated by numbers shown through holes in the dial.

Betting on the Michael-McDuffee match is about even, though some of McDuffee's warm admirers have offered as good odds as three to one. The Michael supporters are quietly picking up every bet in sight, whatever the odds.

The mayor of Chelsea, Mass., has appointed 31 L.A.W. members to serve as special police to prevent careless riding. Any plan which tends to lessen the nonsense of ignorant scorchers is a commendable one and worthy of imitation.

GERMANY IS VERY ANXIOUS

To Have Posession of Some Pacific Islands.

Camara is Boasting of What He May do—Great Activity at Key West—Doings at Washington.

London, June 23.—The Berlin correspondent of The Times, commenting on the continued discussion of the Philippine question, says: "There would be a storm of indignation in the German press if the United States were to become master of the Philippines while Germany got nothing. In the view of many German politicians anything would be better than that, and they would even prefer to see the intervention of several European powers to protect the life and property of their subjects from the rebels, followed by the acquisition of a naval station for each of them. There is in fact a strong inclination to repeat the Chinese drama at Kiao-Chou wherever an opportunity is afforded. Relatively to what Germany already possesses she has everything to gain by such a policy of fair shares all around.

"There can be little doubt that no European power or combination of powers would venture to prevent the United States and Great Britain from settling the future of the Philippines conjointly, or at least under the protection of their conjoint naval forces. Continental opinion would not only speedily acknowledge the strength of an Anglo-American naval alliance, but would be practically unanimous against incurring the risk of the commercial consequences of a breach with the United States."

CAMARA'S BRAGGADOCIO.

London, June 23.—The Gibraltar correspondent of The Daily News says: "No credence need be given to rumors that the Cadiz fleet will return to that port. Admiral Camara could not return without riots at Cadiz and Madrid, particularly as he said at the banquet before his departure that he would never return until his flag had been steeped in American blood. You will find that the next move of the squadron will be to the Canaries."

SOUNDED AS TO MEDIATION.

London, June 23.—The Berlin correspondent of The Standard says: "The queen regent has privately caused those sovereigns who are her relatives to be directly sounded, and those whom she regards as friends to be indirectly sounded, as to whether they are willing to mediate; but the stage of diplomatic negotiations has not yet been reached, and it is very doubtful whether it will be reached for some time to come.

"The semi-official Post hears from Antwerp that persons commissioned by the Washington government to enlist seamen on neutral soil are said to have enlisted more than 1000 German sailors for the American navy and the auxiliary cruisers. This would explain the difficulty German captains have experienced of late in manning their ships."

PRODIGIOUS ACTIVITY.

Key West, June 23.—A warship which arrived yesterday from the blockade of Havana reports that nothing of interest can be seen from the ships there except prodigious activity in the construction of defense works on shore.

The vessel brought in Chief Armorer Henderson and J. Herman, gunner's mate of one of the gunboats, who were wounded while at work in the armor room of the ship trying to extract the fuse from a shell. Henderson was struck in the abdomen by a piece of the shell, and Herman had his right arm lacerated. Both will recover.

LINES DRAWN TIGHTER.

Washington, June 23.—Acting Secretary Spaulding yesterday wired instructions to all Atlantic coast collectors to refuse clearance to any vessel for Cuban or Porto Rican ports with provisions or other material which can be used in maintaining war, regardless of whether the ports are or not blockaded, or whether the cargoes are contraband or not. This action is taken under the joint resolution of April 22, the enforcement of which has been entrusted by the president to the secretary of the treasury. The power bestowed by that resolution is broader than powers under international law as now construed, and its exercise draws tighter the lines about the Spanish West Indies.

RELIABLE OF COURSE.

London, June 23.—The Madrid, correspondent of The Daily Mail says: "Reliable information has been received in diplomatic circles here from South America, that preliminary steps are being taken to summon a conference of all South and Central American republics to consider the advisability of adopting defensive measures against future aggression by the United States. The Hispano-American republics see danger in the prospect that at the moment the United States has effected its purpose in Cuba, it will seek to extend its influence and authority over the Spanish-speaking republics."

ENDORSED CHAMBERLAIN.

London, June 23.—The Marquis of Landsdown, secretary of war, addressing the Conservative unions of London last evening, endorsed the recent Birmingham speech of the secretary of state for the colonies, in which Mr. Chamberlain expressed the hope that the day would come when the stars and stripes and the union jack would wave together over an Anglo-Saxon alliance.

"Depend upon it," said Lord Lansdowne in conclusion, "these are no mere idle dreams or hazy aspirations. The change which has come over the sentiment of each country toward each other during the last year or two is almost immeasurable. One can scarcely believe they are the same United States with whom, only a two years ago, we were on the verge of a serious quarrel. The change is not an ephemeral understanding between diplomatists, but a genuine desire of the two peoples to be friends, and, therefore, it cannot be laughed out of existence by the sort of comment we have lately heard."

BASE BALL.

Chicago, June 23.—Willis was retired in the first inning yesterday. The Chicagos could do nothing with Lewis after the second, and he won his game by a safe drive, scoring Bergen. Attendance, 4000. Score:

Yesterday's game was a pitching contest in Taunton, and had McMackin received competent support, the Pawtuckets would not have seen third base. As it was, they made one run in the last half of the ninth inning. Three of their seven hits were bunched inside the diamond.

Gettig of the New Yorks lasted half an inning and was replaced by Seymour after the Pittsburgs had won. Joyce was put out of the game for questioning decisions. Score: 10 to 5.

Not a member of the Washingtons passed second base in Louisville, and only two reached that bag. The Louisvilles fielded finely and did great base running. Score: 5 to 0.

Tom Flannagan of the Fall Rivers shut the Brocktons out without a hit yesterday in the shortest game of the season. They got but two men to first and nobody to second. A wild pitch gave the Fall Rivers one in the first, and a series of hits added four more in the sixth. Outside of these innings McKenna pitched great ball, but 30 men facing him during the game. Magoon of the Brocktons has joined the Brooklyns. His place at third will be filled by George Moore. Score: 5 to 0.

Bases on balls, daring base running and stupid plays by the Rochesters gave the Providences four runs in the second inning, and the game. Score: 6 to 1.

J. B. Birmingham of Hartford has sold the Hartford franchise to a stock company formed by William Trafley, manager of the team. Barnie, until recently manager of the Brooklyn club, made an effort to buy the franchise from Birmingham, but they could not agree on the price. Barnie is now managing the Springfield club.

A wild throw by Jennings of the Baltimores in the seventh inning bounded into the grandstand and allowed Hill to make the winning run for the Cincinnatis. Score: 8 to 7.

The Quakers won yesterday by hitting at opportune times. The St. Louis team played a listless fielding game, and their errors were costly. Score: 8 to 2.

The Brooklyns could not touch Wilson and the Clevelands gave him good support. The game was snappy on both sides. Score: 5 to 2.

Householder's miserable work at first and errors by Wise were responsible for the loss of yesterday's game by the Buffalos to the Springfields. Reilly's work at short for the winners was wonderfully clever. Score: 10 to 4.

SINE DIE STAGD.

Boston, June 23.—By a vote of 26 to 22, the senate refused to reject the bill to prohibit the use of trading stamps, and it went into the calendar for today.

Last evening the conference committee on the street railway bill reported. The report makes the 1 percent excise tax relate to railways which have earnings of $4000 per mile, instead of $5000 as fixed by the senate and $3000 as fixed by the house.

The senate bill to prevent the desecration of the flag was referred to the next legislature.

The conference committee on the bill to prevent over-insurance reported an amendment which was practically a surrender of the house to the senate idea to provide that interest should be refunded on the premium paid on account of excess of valuation, whether the policy was originally taken out by the company then responsible or by another. The report was accepted without opposition.

The house rejected by a large vote the resolve to authorize the state board of health to report on the advisability and efficiency of the use of tuberculin.

A petition from the mayor of Northampton for permission to remove the sacred codfish from the house of representatives to his city, until Boston shall have withstood the threatened bombardment, was the first business not acted upon by the house, while sitting in mock session yesterday.

RELATING TO BOSTON.

Boston, June 23.—A circular has been issued by the New England Burglary Insurance company, which reinsured all its risks outside of this state last November, canceling all outstanding policies and remitting the amount of unearned premium, preparatory to closing out the company. The company began business in December, 1895, with a capital of $200,000.

The body of James McLaughlin, a Fitchburg railroad yardman, was found floating in the water near the Drawbridge of the Boston and Maine railroad in Charlestown. He fell through the bridge on the night of June 14 while hurrying to flag a train.

The Massachusetts Volunteer Aid association has closed its purchase of the hospital ship Bay State. The money has been paid over and possession taken.

Mrs. Mary Fullerton, who was the oldest original Daughter of the Revolution, is dead. She was 102 years of age. Mrs. Fullerton was born in Tuftonboro, N. H. Her father, James Wiggin, was a lieutenant in the American army at the time of the revolution.

ARGUED WITH A COUPLING PIN.

Providence, June 23.—Horace G. Mullen will spend 30 days in jail because of a dispute in which he participated as to the relative merits of the United States and Spain. He was in a saloon when the topic was taken up, and as he did not agree with the sentiments of some others in the saloon, he went over into a railroad yard and secured a coupling pin, which he hurled as a convincing argument against his opponents, who were Spanish sympathizers. He was indicted for assault with a dangerous weapon, but pleaded nole contendre to simple assault.

HEAD OF OBLATES

FATHER AUGIER, THE NEW SUPERIOR GENERAL, ELECTED BY A LARGE MAJORITY.

The general chapter of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate which was composed of 42 members, eight of whom were bishops, met at the convent in the Rue de St. Petersburg in Paris recently for the election of a new superior general in place of Pere Soullier, who died in October last. At the first scrutiny, Pere Augier, second assistant of the order, was elected by a large majority. He was born in the diocese of Nice in 1815, and at the age of 15 was impelled by his piety to enter the juniorate of Notre Dame des Lumieres. Three years later he entered the novitiate. He next studied at Autun, and after being ordained priest in 1840, was sent to the Grand Seminaire of Ajaccio, which had been founded a short time before by Cardinal Gilbert, and at which Pere Augier professed theology for several years.

His next post was on the staff of the clergy at the Sacre Coeur on Montmartre. In 1852 he was appointed procureur general of his order and remained for the next eight years in Rome. There he founded a flourishing house for higher studies. He left Rome for Paris on being appointed assistant general, in which quality he made a visitation of the most distant missions confided to the order by propaganda in Africa and Asia.—London Tablet.

A LOWELL THIEF

CAUGHT IN THE ACT AT LAWRENCE AND ARRESTED.

James Miller of Quebec, Canada, was charged with drunkenness and larceny in Lawrence Tuesday. On Monday he entered the house of Edward Valcour, 202 Valley street in that city. Mrs. Valcour was out and when she returned she met Miller coming out of her bedroom.

He asked her for ten cents, saying he wanted to go to Lowell where he belonged. She would not give it to him and he went out. Mrs. Valcour went into the bedroom and discovered that one dollar and thirty-five cents and a valuable gold ring had been taken from her husband's trousers.

She quickly gave the alarm and a small boy ran up Broadway and got Officer Martin. He came down and arrested the man. The money and ring also a knife with Mr. Valcour's name on it, a piece of tobacco and an empty pocketbook, the property of Mrs. Valcour, were found on his person.

"On Guard."

When disease shoots the first arrow the truly wise man will come instantly on guard. He will not wait for the attack. He will not hesitate until the full force of disease and misery and death comes crashing about him.

When a man begins to feel "out of sorts," when his appetite is failing and his energy is not up to the mark, when he has bilious attacks and a feeling of lassitude and incapacity, if he is wise, he will take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery right away. It will bring his appetite back again, and what is more it will bring back his digestive powers. It will give all the assimilative functions the edge and power to extract abundant nourishment from the food he eats. It will make good, pure, healthy blood and send it coursing rapidly through his veins and arteries into every organ and tissue of the body. It will put flesh on his bones and force in his muscles; it will give him strength and courage and cheerfulness, in a word it will give him complete health.

It excretes from the system every particle of dead, useless, flabby tissue. It even reduces the weight of the corpulent man at the same time that it builds up his strength and working power. The weight it adds to people who need it is the kind that comes of pure blood and every organ doing its work properly and thoroughly—what pugilists call "fighting weight."

AN ENGLISHMAN IN CUBA

A Reporter's Account of Life In Matanzas and Havana.

EXPERIENCES OF PHIL ROBINSON.

He Used a Napkin as a Truce Flag and Matanzas Welcomed Him—Says Spaniards Are Eager to Fight and Expect to Put Inhabitants of Florida to the Sword. Found the City of Havana Gay—Blanco's Socialistic Orders.

The Pall Mall Gazette's special correspondent, Phil Robinson, writing from Kingston, Jamaica, under the date of June 17 on his recent experiences in Matanzas and Havana, says:

"Finding the local authorities determined to prevent my going to Cuba, I was compelled to escape from Key West after dark on board of a friendly British yacht, which, while passing Admiral Sampson's fleet headed for Cardenas, was fired upon by a patrolling gunboat. We changed our course for Matanzas, and at 4 o'clock in the morning stopped five miles from the coast. Whigham and I left the yacht in a skiff, and owing to the easterly current and strong ebb tide it took three hours to reach the entrance of the harbor and four more to get to the Matanzas jetty, in front of the center of the town.

"As we were approaching the coast the Spanish cavalry patrol detected us and dismounted, apparently contemplating giving us a volley, but while baling the boat with one hand I waved a white napkin with the other, and they accepted the signal. Only one battery threatened us. A man was standing to his gun, but the napkin again saved us, and the situation was without further incident.

"When we reached the jetty, some children who were paddling in the water carried our oars, flags and luggage to the hotel, where our appearance created the utmost astonishment. We were told afterward that the soldiers and the crowds we passed were quite stupefied by the suddenness of our appearance, otherwise they might have done us some mischief. After we had breakfasted we sent for the British consul, who informed the authorities of our presence. We were summoned before the commandant and closely questioned. General Molins was at first incredulous, but ultimately complimented us upon our exploit, laughing heartily at the idea of two men in an open boat running the blockade and rowing right up the middle of the harbor in broad daylight past all of the batteries. He telegraphed to Havana asking permission for us to proceed to the capital, but General Congosto, Captain General Blanco's evil genius, ordered our arrest. At midnight, while we were in a cafe chatting with some Spanish officers, we were arrested and driven to Castle San Severino. Our persons were searched and everything was taken from us. We were locked in a disgustingly filthy cell without one single article of furniture except a hammock.

"The next day we were removed to the commandant's quarters, where we were permitted to furnish a room and obtain food from the hotel. We were treated with the utmost kindness and consideration, but were not allowed to leave our room. During our imprisonment some miscreants spread reports that we had been seen in Matanzas before, that we had been hiding in the town and that our story of rowing up the harbor in a boat was an invention. We were therefore repeatedly examined in minute detail, separately, but after six days of this kind of treatment our veracity was established and we were forwarded under guard to Havana.

"Matanzas from the harbor resembles an Italian seaport and from the land it is doubly beautiful. The river flows inter through the town into the landlocked harbor, which is three miles wide. The land on either side of the harbor rises picturesquely to a considerable height and that behind the town slopes gently upward to a palm crested ridge. Under American enterprise the town will develop into a noble pleasure resort, possessing unique natural beauties, enhanced by grace and antiquity and be a fatal rival to the Florida resorts. The defenses of Matanzas have been greatly strengthened of late. One new battery, at present unknown to the Americans, mounting six large guns, is being completed on the east side of the harbor and a corresponding battery on the opposite side is in course of construction.

"The Spaniards are utterly at a loss to understand why Admiral Sampson did not attack Matanzas in earnest a month ago. The condition of the town admitted it then, as it was not able to withstand an attack. Now, however, the Spaniards are most confident and are spoiling for a fight, expecting, after defeating the fleet, to invade Florida, where General Molins has promised his troops that they shall put the entire population to the sword. The eagerness of the poor, ignorant Spanish officers for battle is quite pathetic, but it is a fact that at present they mean to fight to the death. The explanation given by the Spaniards of the futility of Admiral Sampson's demonstration before Matanzas is that the American shells, notably those fired by the Cincinnati, were defective. Numbers of them which did not explode have since been buried. It is quite certain that not a life was lost, nor was any masonry displaced in the affair.

"The country between Matanzas and Havana is splendidly rich, but has been terribly devastated by the three years' war. Cattle are still abundant and the crops are profuse. The line is guarded by forts throughout, and cavalry patrols and infantry posts were seen continuously from the train. We could also see frequent cavalry skirmishing with insurgents who were concealed in the bush.

"At Matanzas a week ago there was no sign of starvation. The prices at the hotels, cafes and shops were the same as in America, and there were no beggars. Re concentrados with pigs tethered to their huts and chickens running about were numerous. We gave a fat child a penny, and the youngster instantly ran and bought candy from a negro camp peddler. The citizens expected that the supply of flour would be exhausted in ten days and that the supply of wheat would fail in about a month. The supply of fish and vegetables, of course, will never fail.

"Upon reaching Havana we were escorted directly to the headquarters of the police, where we were most kindly treated. The next day, upon our signing a promise to leave Cuba at the earliest opportunity, we were released. Three days later the British cruiser Talbot arrived, and we were deported to Jamaica. During the voyage here we were the guests of Captain Gamble, from whom we received every courtesy. Reasons for our expulsion were refused, but General Blanco's order forbidding correspondents to land in Cuba, which was issued a week after our arrival, was made retroactive. Upon applying to the British consul general for an explanation we were treated impertinently. Meanwhile Knight of the London Times is allowed to remain. Perhaps it is because he was so nearly drowned in trying to land, but our expulsion was unjust and illegical and disgraceful to the Spanish government.

"As soon a week ago it would be impossible for a stranger to imagine that Havana was starving or that the city was blockaded. The band was playing in the Prado and a merry crowd was promenading. Every seat in the cafes was filled, and the theaters, considering the fact that not a woman was present, had good houses nightly. The hotels and shops were charging their usual prices, and we only saw a dozen professional beggars. Daily when the American blockading vessels were sighted great crowds would rush off to the seashore. Every available cab was engaged to take the people to the beach, where they spent their time in jeering the Yankees and daring them to come within reach of the Spanish guns. Then they would return home chattering and laughing as though the blockading of the city were a comic opera.

"The city was tranquil and abnormally free from crime. Havana has 20,000 volunteers, all Spaniards, and responsible men are providing for them. They wore uniforms and were provided with horses. They are armed by the government. These volunteers assure the tranquillity of the city, as they overawe the Cuban canaille. The food supplies were generally sufficient. Today there is a two months' supply of coal in port. A week ago there were 60,000 tons.

"Captain General Blanco recently issued several socialistic orders, limiting the prices of staples, reducing rents 50 per cent and abolishing payments of interest on loans and mortgages, hoping thereby to enable the poorer classes, who are chiefly Cubans, to tide over the war. No starvation exists, but the thrifty ones content themselves with one economical meal daily. The poorer classes are paid for their labor on the old basis, but are paying for their purchases on the new basis. Upon this plan they can only buy one-half what they used to get. The citizens and the army alike are eager for a fight, the officers fiercely denouncing all idea of a compromise."

DEWEY'S NEW SQUADRON.

One of His Men Tells How He Is Making a "Mosquito Fleet" of His Own.

The following letter has been received by Mrs. Kuhlwein of Sag Harbor, from her husband, Jr. J. G. Kuhlwein, the chief gunner of Admiral Dewey's flagship, the Olympia:

U. S. S. OLYMPIA,
MANILA BAY, May 12, 1898.

We have been very successful here in everything so far. At present I am very hard at work taking all the guns out of the Spanish men-of-war which we have sunk in this harbor, and there are about 11 of them, all having from 6 to 14 guns on board. We are going to send them all home on a steamer which we captured today. Early this morning we captured a fine Spanish gunboat, only firing four shots to do it, when they hauled down their flag without firing a shot. This afternoon I was sent out in charge of a tug, with about ten men, to run around the bay to see if I could not find some small steam launches. Well, I did find one launch only, but I captured two very fine tugs, better, both of them, than the one we had. We are getting to have a fleet here, and we are making it all ourselves. Every tug we capture we convert into a small gunboat at once, and the way we do it is to go on board one of the sunken Spanish men-of-war, take a few good guns out of her and mount them, and there is a new addition to our fleet. This harbor is filled with the American flag, and long may she wave! I also secured a large Spanish men-of-war flag from one of the tugs captured, which, of course, is my own and which I shall take home.

A Response.

The "ancient wrong" that is manfully owned,
In the message that sped on the "Gulf Stream gale,"
Is the wrong the confessing has far atoned
And becomes, indeed, as a "warmest tale."

The half of a people brave and sincere,
It comes like the clasp of a friendly hand,
An answer it finds in the hearts of us here,
For frank are we of this western land.

To claim of kinship we also are real;
Our pulses feel the common blood.
Two nations these, but of common weal,
As their shores are beat by one common flood.

They speak their vows in the self same tongue,
Pronounce their faith through a common creed,
And nation old and nation young
Has the soul of the "sea kings" yet in the breed.

A common gospel we preach the world—
We sons of the Anglo-Saxon race—
Wherever the stars and stripes are unfurled,
Where the shamrock and thistle and rose find place—

'Tis the freedom and manhood of man we preach;
The tyrant and craven we scorn alike.
Direct is our purpose, and clear our speech,
And our war guns thunder and terribly strike.

Then here's cheer for your cheer to a kinsman land:
The reign of the tyrant shall cease to be!
Since Saxon and Saxon clasp friendly hand,
And one's to the westland, as one to the sea!

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

REPORT FROM SAMPSON'S SURGEON.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Surgeon General Van Reypen of the navy has received a full report from the surgeon with Admiral Sampson's fleet, who cared for the dying and wounded participants in the Guantanamo fight. The important feature is a definite statement that the corpses were not mutilated, but that the severe wounds were the results of a Mauser ball.

OHIO REPUBLICANS

By Associated Press to The Sun.

Columbus, O., June 23.—The committee on credentials of the republican state convention last night decided not to recognize the McKisson delegation from Cleveland. The republican state convention reconvened this morning when the temporary organization of yesterday was made permanent. There was scarcely any factional minority in the convention as it was organized. What are known as the national administration men as distinguished from the state administration men, had everything their own way without opposition.

The sub-committee on resolutions was kept up during the night because of the differences in the resolutions regarding the state administration and legislature. The sub-committee reported conciliatory resolutions to the full committee.

POSSESSION OF THE PHILIPPINES BY ENGLAND

Is Said to be Very Undesirable.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

Washington, June 23.—The new Russian ambassador, Count Cassini, will be formally received by President McKinley within a day or two.

In response to an inquiry as whether Russia was likely, alone or with other powers to look with disfavor upon the control of the Philippines by the United States, the ambassador said that he did not apprehend any change in the present good relations between the United States and Russia. He added, however, that it seemed to be quite undesirable that possession of the Philippines should pass into the hands of England as that would seriously disturb the equilibrium in the far East.

HANNA AGAIN TRIUMPHS

He Claims That Harmony Has Been Restored.

He Has Control of the Party Organization and Runs Things His Own Way.

Columbus, June 23.—The Republican state convention yesterday was a record breaker. Its session lasted less than two hours, and most of that time was devoted to unseating a small minority of dissenters. After the contests were disposed of everything was unanimous and by acclamation. Five nominations were made within 12 minutes, including the presentation and the seconding speeches. The delegates, after the convention perfected its permanent organization, were all Hanna men. If the factions were not completely wiped out, they were at least shut out. There was some doubt expressed as to two of the 21 members of the state central committee, Brown of Toledo and Croighead of Dayton; but they were not long in announcing themselves as in accord with the majority, so that the party machinery is entirely in the hands of the friends of Senator Hanna for the next year.

While in full sway, there were some who wanted to remove Charles L. Kurtz as the Ohio member of the Republican national committee, but Mr. Hanna's closest friends prevented even consideration of such action. Governor Bushnell was not in the convention hall, and none of his appointees were present to hear the reading of the last resolution in the platform, which is generally accepted as uncomplimentary to the governor and the dissenting Republicans in the legislature.

During the legislative investigation Cyrus Huling and H. M. Daugherty were the attorneys of Senator Hanna. Huling was made chairman of the state central committee and Daugherty is slated for the chairmanship of the state executive committee.

REPORT IS DENIED

Regarding the Attempted Shooting of Blanco.

THE CAPTAIN SAID TO BE HIGHLY ESTEEMED.

His Reasons for Detaining Hobson and Associates.

Havana, June 23.—There is absolutely no foundation for the report of an attempt to assassinate Captain General Blanco by a member of the volunteers whose brother had been shot for complicity in a plot against the government. General Blanco enjoys the esteem of all classes in Havana, including the volunteers, and is regarded with the utmost confidence as the representative of Spanish sovereignty. The Cubans admit that they are under obligations to General Blanco for the establishment of autonomy in the island. The palace guards are from the volunteers, and several officers of that body are aides on the general's staff. General Blanco's public appearance is frequently the occasion of patriotic demonstrations, and that he has no fear of assassination is shown by the fact that he often rides out without escort, visiting the fortifications about Havana without the attendance of the usual bodyguard.

Complete tranquility reigns in Havana. The greatest confidence is felt that the Spanish forces will successfully cope with the American soldiers. There is great enthusiasm among the troops and volunteers, who are all anxious to fight against the invaders.

Captain General Blanco denies that he has decided that there shall be no exchange of prisoners with the United States. At the same time, the captain general says that he cannot allow the exchange of Lieutenant Hobson and the other members of the party who sailed the Merrimac into the mouth of the harbor at Santiago, for the lieutenant and his companies have had opportunities of seeing the harbor and its defenses. The most common prudence, the captain general says, would forbid that these men be now given their liberty as proposed by the United States. Blanco added that he had not forbidden the approach of vessels bearing flags of truce, but had only ordered that no vessel be permitted to approach within six miles of the shore, so that it be made impossible for officers of the United States to make drawings of or inspect fortresses.

TO TALK INDEFINITELY.

Washington, June 23.—The anti-annexationists in the senate privately suggested to the advocates of the Hawaiian resolution that the most practical method of disposing of the question was an agreement upon a time next session to vote, but, while the proposition has not been formally declined, the leading supporters of the resolution say they will not consider it seriously. They say they are having no difficulty in maintaining a quorum, and they expect to be able to keep their men here to the end. The opponents urge that by the opening of the next session the war probably will be concluded and the entire policy of the acquisition of this territory can be passed upon. They say that if the proposition is not accepted the speech-making will go on indefinitely.

VERMONT REPUBLICANS.

A LAWRENCE BOY

Amos G. Towle of Phillips Academy

HELD IN $1000 FOR GRAND LARCENY.

He Stole a Watch and Other Property.

New York, June 23.—Amos O. Towle, 16 years of age, a student at Phillips academy, Andover, was held in $1000 bonds for examination by Magistrate Kudlich yesterday afternoon for grand larceny.

Towle is the son of a well-to-do widow of Lawrence, Mass. In company with Benjamin Aubrey, a Yale student of the class of 1900, he came to this city a week ago and took lodgings at a boarding house kept by Eliza White. Tuesday night Mrs. Amos Greenleaf, who has a room next to that of Towle's, missed a gold watch. She told a detective that she suspected Towle, and on his arrest he admitted the theft. Towle said that the money he expected from home had not come, and Aubrey induced him to take the watch and pawn it, saying he could return it when his money came and before Mrs. Greenleaf would miss it. Towle telegraphed for his mother. Aubrey is still at large.

HYPNOTICALLY INFLUENCED.

London, June 23.—In the Bow street police court yesterday John Tredd, who shot Count Von Arco-Valley, the first secretary of the German embassy here, as the latter was emerging from the embassy on the evening of June 15, was committed for trial. Tredd made a rambling statement to the effect that the German, American and French nations had hypnotically influenced him and pestered him with accusations. He was not sure, he said, whether Irish-Americans were not also guilty of accusations started some years ago by United States Consul General P. A. Collins, who was supported by Germans, the latter being among his first accusers. As the home office had refused to assist him, Tredd said he thought that he would be justified in taking the law into his own hands, which, he added, would be a lesson to Germans not to interfere with the English.

FIVE WERE DROWNED.

WORK OF A MISCREANT.

Norway Lake, Me., June 23.—Considerable excitement has been caused in this vicinity by the discovery that paris green had been placed in a well owned by Emerson Kilgore. A number of families have been using the water daily, and seven persons have already been poisoned, but no fatality has resulted as yet. There is no clew to the perpetrator of the deed.

infantry, of which he became adjutant. Later he went on the staff of General George H. Thomas, in command of the army of the Cumberland, and was with that hero through the notable engagements in which he participated. General Duffield's expedition is expected to report to General Shafter in about four days from the time the ships leave Newport News. It will augment the forces under General Shafter to about 20,000 men. Besides these, the present plan of sending reinforcements contemplates that General Garretson's brigade of 4000 men will go as soon as transports can be secured, which is expected to be at an early day by the purchase outright of the needed vessels.

The secretary of the navy, speaking of the general satisfaction that has been expressed with the navy department, said that in justice it should be borne in mind that the navy is always in a state of mobilization, although the coming of the war had necessitated a vast amount of special preparation and a large increase of vessels and naval force. The secretary added: "I notice what sometimes I get a word of praise and sometimes Mr. Roosevelt, who was my assistant secretary, and who certainly deserved it, as does his successor; but let me tell you that there are men entitled to special gratitude and recognition who never will get half the praise they deserve. These are the chiefs of the various naval bureaus. They have borne the real burden of preparation. When war became imminent they were given large power and were told they would be held responsible for having the work of their bureaus done properly and efficiently. That work they have discharged with the utmost ability, efficiency, thoroughness and success. It is one of the misfortunes of every great era like this that many of the men who do the work and bear the burden are rarely mentioned and never get the credit which belongs to them. If I can do anything to secure these men just appreciation, I want to do it. They are all experts and men of experience in their various lines. It is pretty hard too for some of them who know that the glories of war are won, not in bureaus, but at the front in battle. They have sometimes pleaded hard, and it has not been easy for the department to refuse their requests for active service, or for them to accept the necessity of remaining where they are. Few know the extent of what they have undertaken and done, or their high professional competency, spirit and standard."

The attorney general has decided to surrender to the ambassadors of France and Germany, as the diplomatic representatives of Spain, the non-combatants and crews of the prize merchant vessels captured by ships of our navy since the declaration of war. The department of justice, having no means of feeding these prisoners, turned them over to the war department, but Secretary Alger has now declined to continue the arrangement. The representatives of Spain here were communicated with and their consent was secured to receive the prisoners and ship them back to Spain.

The third military expedition for the Philippines will leave San Francisco Monday on six transports, namely, the Ohio, Indiana, City of Para, Morgan City, Valencia and Newport. General Merritt, commanding the new department of the Pacific and prospective governor general of the Philippines, probably will accompany the expedition on the Indiana. Major General Otis, the next in command, will accompany the fourth expedition to the Philippines.

News has reached here that 12,000 tons of coal are being loaded on shipboard at Valparaiso, Chili. As coal is worth about $18 a ton there, the purchase excites great curiosity here, and it has been suspected that it was being made on Spanish account. If this should prove to be true, it would seem to indicate a purpose on the part of the Spanish naval commander, Camara, to carry the Cadiz fleet into the Pacific and use these colliers to supply the fleet with coal. In this case the object of attack probably would be the west coast of the United States instead of the Philippines. However, the whole thing is still a matter of conjecture.

DOINGS IN THE CAPITOL.

Washington, June 23.—Opponents of the annexation of Hawaii again occupied the attention of the senate yesterday. Mr. White (Dem., Cal.) resumed his speech, but, after speaking two hours, yielded the floor to Mr. Pettigrew, who discussed the resolutions for an hour and a half.

"No one," declared Mr. White, "is seeking for a fight with us, and no one ever will. If the Pacific coast is not well defended now, how will you make it easier to defend by acquiring other territory that also must be determined? If we consummate this scheme we will be told we must have the Philippines because Hawaii is not worth much unless we can have something else to use it for; and when we have annexed the Philippines we must have something else. So we will extend our action around the globe and enter upon an imperialistic policy."

A joint resolution was passed authorizing the president of the United States to invite, through the proper channels, the governments of England, France, Germany, Austria, Russia, Belgium, Switzerland, Mexico and Venezuela to send details of infantry, artillery and cavalry to this country to participate in a military jubilee to be held in Madison square garden, New York, during two weeks, beginning Dec. 26, 1898, by the trustees of the Red Cross society.

The session of the house was uneventful with the exception of a brief, but severe denunciation by Mr. Simpson of Representative Grosvenor's speech at the Ohio Republican convention. The criticised portion was relative to the alleged failure of the Democrats and Populists to vote for appropriation bills succeeding the precipitation of the war and the original appropriation of $50,000,000 for the national defense.

Naval Heroes And Their Records

Some Deeds of American Heroes That Will Live In the World's History.

The Long Roll of Names Finds Many Who Are Now Serving on American Men-of-War

It isn't always the most talked of man who has had the most thrilling experiences afield or afloat. The American navy is a proof of this. Many men in it are practically unknown because they were unfortunate in having no press agent to boom their exploits. The press agent may be a clever vorstifer like Buchanan Read who immortalized Sheridan's ride with a few strokes of his pen, or an every day reporter, whose story strikes the office just when it is "short" of copy, but, however, it may be it does happen time and again through the years that some are blazoned into glory while others equally worthy pass their lives in the shadows of obscurity.

Capt. Silas W. Terry went through a baptism of fire in 1864 not less than that which the heroes of Santiago have passed through. This is what Admiral Porter said about Capt. Terry in a despatch to the Secretary of the Navy May 4, 1864:

"I endeavor to do justice to all officers under my command, but have failed to mention the gallant conduct of Ensign S. W. Terry on the expedition up the Red River. He was placed on board of the transport Benefit to take despatches to me at Springfield Landing. I had a field piece and a 24-pound howitzer placed on this vessel and a part of the crew of the flagship to go with her. About fifty miles from Grand Ecore Mr. Terry discovered a battery of four guns facing down the river on which he opened fire with his howitzers and steamed on. The battery opened a quick fire on him, striking the little vessel almost every time. The river Captain of the Benefit was killed and several of the men, but the little transport fought her way through and brought me the despatches, which were important. Such cool and brave conduct gives promise of a good officer; I commend him to the notice of the department."

Capt. Richard P. Leary when senior officer at Samoa in 1888 during the troubles seized an opportunity that made him the talk of the department for some time. The German warships threatened to bombard the town despite the protestations of the American consul. Leary did not have a big enough force to make any showing against the Germans, and decided to resort to other means. The consul put out to his ship in the evening and told him that the town would be bombarded at sunrise the next day.

"I don't think it will be," said Capt. Leary. The consul returned ashore. When night fell the captain doused his lights and stood in toward land. When the German captains woke up in the morning they found Leary's vessels between them and the shore. Capt. Leary sent a launch to ask what the Germans' intentions were. There was no bombardment.

Commander Edwin White looked into portholes of a great Spanish man of war back in 1872. Then he sailed into the harbor of Colon, Central America, and found the Spanish warship Pizarro blocking the American steamer Virginius of filibuster fame. White was then temporarily in charge of the Kansas, about one-fourth the efficiency of the Pizarro. White sent word to the Spanish captain to give the Virginius a free field. The Spaniard replied evasively. White ran his small warship between the Pizarro and the Virginius. The Spaniard cleared for action and ran his guns out. It seemed as if one broadside would utterly annihilate the Kansas. White ordered his vessel cleared for action and took a defiant position.

One of the most daring exploits of the civil war was that of James Forney, who as a lieutenant was sent ashore by Commander Bell at Texas on the Gulf coast to kill cattle for the crew of the Brooklyn. The men had completed their task when a body of Confederate cavalry was seen spinning along the beach. Forney's detachment signalled frantically for the ship's boats to be sent to take them off, but owing to a sudden shift in the tide this could not be done. When the cavalry was within a quarter of a mile Forney gave the order to plunge into the surf, the men having previously taken off their clothing for the swim. The cavalry opened fire on the swimmers and although several were wounded the entire detachment managed to pass through the rain of fire and the danger of sharks and reach the ship's side in safety. For this gallant act he was brevetted a captain. Capt. Forney was born in Philadelphia.

Commander Alexander Colden Rhind, who was born in New York, and Lieut. Preston took part in an undertaking which elicited from Rear Admiral Porter the statement that "they engaged in the most perilous adventure that was perhaps ever undertaken." This estimate of the danger of their undertaking from a man like Porter who was himself indifferent to peril was a lofty testimonial to their courage. In December, 1864, Rhind was detailed by Rear Admiral Porter to command the powder boat Louisiana. On the night of the 23d the vessel was exploded within 250 yards of Fort Fisher, the officers and men being taken off by a steamer. Admiral Porter in his official report said: "No one in the squadron considered that their lives would be saved, and Commander Rhind and Lieut. Preston had made an arrangement to sacrifice themselves in case the vessel was boarded, a thing likely to happen."

"Papa," said Willie, "why did you buy a golf coat?"

"To play golf in, my son," said Mr. Willis.

"Did you require it?"

"Of course I did."

"Then I want a topcoat to play tops in. I seen 'em advertised."

"Heavens!" shrieked the heroine, "I am undone!"

"Come away, John, audibly remarked the old lady in the audience as she rose. "I ain't a-goin' ter let you watch any disrobin' act!"

Haircuts In Vogue In Dogdom This Summer.

Summer dogs do not worry about their raiment. They do not have to. Wherein they have a large advantage over the summer girl and the summer man. They live up to the adage, "Let others do your worrying," and never an extra pant do they pant on account of their attire from the beginning of summer until the end. Their mistresses who belong to the 400, or would like to, pant for them however, designing cuts for the animals they must take with them to Newport, Bar Harbor, Lenox and other places dogs of fashion affect during the vacation season.

It is interesting to watch a "Bud" laying out her ideas in diagram and discussing cuts with the dog trimmer who stands by, his clippers, shears, combs and other implements in hand, deferentially suggesting spots or knobs or puffs and rings, "to be much worn this year, Miss." The Bud has her own ideas likely which are fascinatingly fantastic to the mental eye but sadly unsatisfactory when the shearer tries to put them into practice.

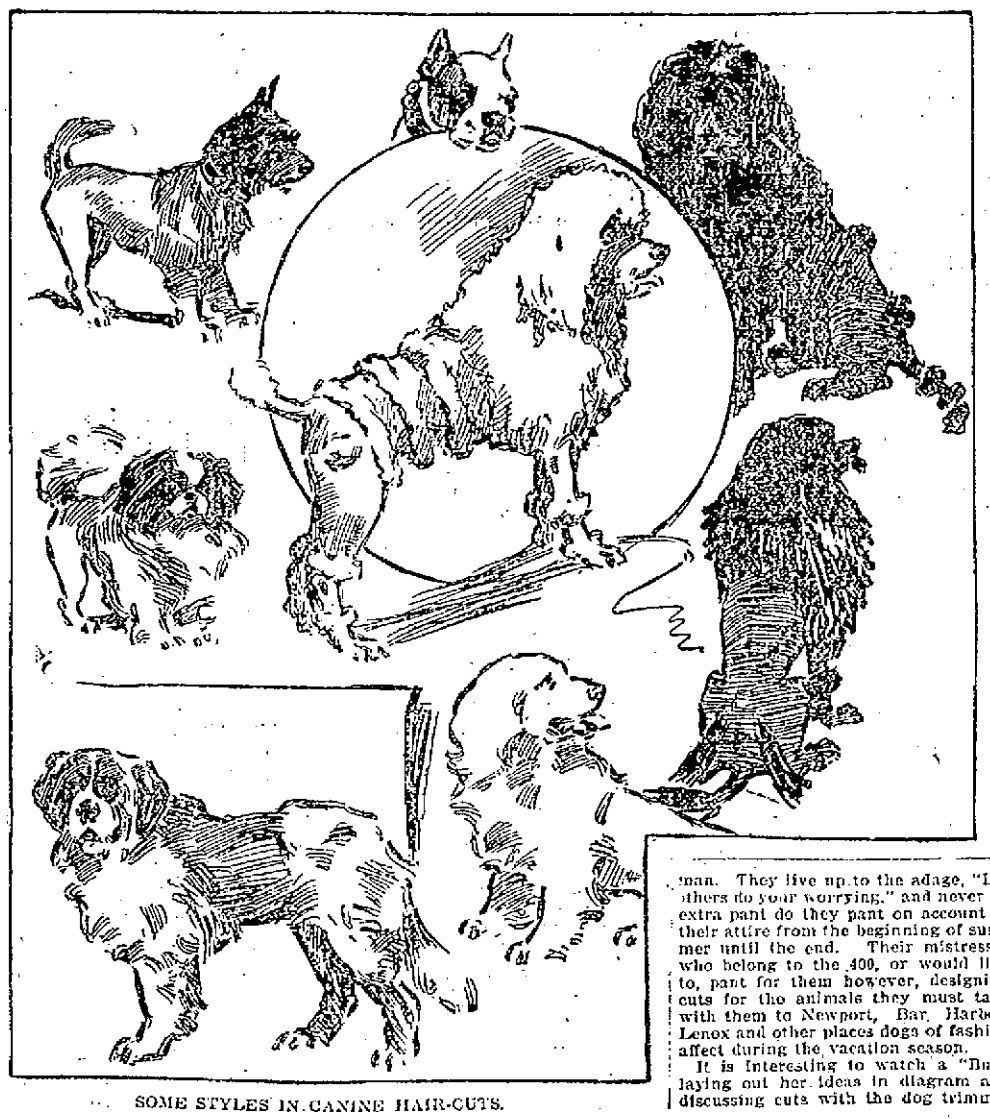

Coats of arms do not come out well, done in hair, even in the fuzzy wool of the French poodle who looks quite sufficiently strenuous and droll in bands, rosettes, and knobs. The French poodle offers all the scope there is for artistic summer cuts and is proud of himself if he has been well clipped. When the job is over and he has realized what an enchanting guy he looks he jumps gratefully over his mistress' head, smiles away back under his ears and abandons himself to ecstacy.

This year he is girt about the loins with parallel rings, has a rosette on each southern quarter, a knob on the free end of his tail, and wristlets above his paws. Here and there a face is unmasked except for certain circles and ridges that give the head the appearance of a sooty, moss grown skull. Tassels on the quarters instead of knobs are well esteemed at Lenox, and doubtless will be seen more or less at Newport. They display to better advantage when the poodle is in repose than when he is in action so those interested in the tassel summer cut generally study it while the wearer is asleep. Tassels aft and stick curls about the neck with a long mop tail make a happy combination for a poodle past middle life when the irrepressible is not paramount in the animal's disposition.

The burr knob will be worn a great deal too this season, as it has been in the past. It varies in size and in arrangement from year to year, but it is fundamentally the same old knob. Much ingenuity is displayed in deciding upon the location of these burr knobs and Bud and the trimmer devote days to the problem studying it with the aid of thistle burrs and a dummy made of an Astrakhan rug and chair legs. It takes the Bud's maid some little time to clean the rug afterwards, but the satisfaction of having settled the cut before work on the hairy dog begins amply repays the Bud for this sacrifice.

Poodles generally go in for more style in cuts than do other dogs, because of their display aptitudes, but the New Foundland has his summer suit each year with regularity. He is more sedate than the smaller dogs and calmer in his style the whole year round. Indeed his chief desire is to be cool and calm and he would not care to lose himself in contemplation of his artistic habiliments. He takes a close gray cut from behind his ears to within 2½ inches of the tip of his tail. This 2½ inches furnishes a good whisp for flies and he manages it with great dexterity. Without the whisp the musca would annoy him in his nakedness as much as the heat would torture him if his full coat of black curly hair were left on. He shows a little shyness or self-consciousness the first day of wearing his summer gray just as a schoolboy who fancies the world has stopped to stare at his new clothes, but with the native bonyancy of his disposition this sense of conspicuousness dissipates and Richard is himself again cooler and death on flies. In Boston the New Foundlander needs not so severe clipping as in other and less cultured regions of these United States, and designs, providing they be of due severity, may be tolerable as not incompatible with essential dignity. In Boston, therefore, Richard's limbs are left in their pristine curly blackness both anteriorilly and posteriorilly, but the thorax may be ornamented with panels in a chequer-board design. Knobs, rosettes and whisps are disapproved emphatically. Beyond this geometrical figures are permitted to a limited extent. It is reported that on Beacon street Richard will wear the zero mark or emblem of the Peace Society. If he is cut in such a manner, however, he will pass his summer in the rear basement.

Skys and the Japanese poodles, or "Chin" as the natives call them, come in for more attention from Bud and the clipper each year. The art of shearing them is in its infancy in America, but with each summer noticeable advance is made, and though the wee dears look scrawny enough the first few days after the operation they are soon the better for it and even happier. They are so much cleaner and harbor fewer microbes. Their legs should be left with all the feathers on and the heads also, nor should the bodies be clipped as closely as possible. A good even mow medium close is best. This leaves the spines not too conspicuous and at the same time lets on the air against their overheated bodies. As to designs, these pets are too small in size to carry any. Some buds clip but half the body, the forward half or the after half, usually the latter, and this appeases the panting to a marked degree. There can hardly be said to be much style to these cuts considered by themselves, but the make for the harmony of the fitness of things, and by leave enough hair of natural length to discover the aristocracy of the breed.

SOME STYLES IN CANINE HAIR-CUTS.

At a dinner party in South Africa the hostess told the Kaffir boy to "bring the champagne." The boy left and returned without the wine. She commanded him again to bring the champagne with the same result. Then he whispered "No wine."

Nonsense," said the woman, "there is plenty."

"No," persisted the native, "me look at all the bottles; all say extra dry."

A second woman engaged a boy in September and at the end of the month gave him his wages. At the end of October she again proceeded to pay him, when he surprised her by objecting to the amount. He wanted to be paid more for thirty-one days than for thirty—not unreasonably. The woman remonstrated and broke into poetry: "Thirty days hath September," etc. "No," said the Kaffir cutely, "no month thirty-one day, all month thirty day. Your month thirty day, then thirty-one, then thirty-two. No, me no stop here," and no logic could induce him to consent to an arrangement that seemed likely to progress indefinitely in favor of his employer.—New York Tribune.

What The Mountain Man Looks Like.

He Has Abjured the Seaside and Is Half Golfer Half Hunter.

He Will Look Like An Alpine Hunter From the Waist Up.—The Rest of Him Will Do For Golf.

Then ho for the mountains,
The cliff and the scar!
Let us leave the blue sea
In the distance afar.

The Highland laddies call to his sweetheart centuries ago will be echoed by the swain who goes for an outing in this year of the Hispano-American war. The tendency toward mountainous outings has received a wonderful stimulus from the war. No self-respecting young man would face with joy the prospect of spooning on the seashore with the possibility of a great big Spanish cannon ball from somewhere out in the offing coming between him and his best girl, or richochetting wantonly along a beach unmindful of the two lone figures half buried under sand and parasol.

The drift mountainward has been steady for the last two or three years, or nearer the Alps, when you thought them altogether the most dashing gallants you ever laid eyes on. Then if you went to Bayreuth to attend the great Wagnerian festivals you saw whole delegations of these young men get off the trains with those loose Alpine hats, with a feather or a squirrel's tail or some other flowing ornament stuck in them somewhere, giving the wearer a breezy Don Cesar de Bazan air that smacks of the gay gallant who makes love to the chorus girls in a comic opera. If you were young and impressionable you thought the headgear very captivating and romantic and wondered why the American men did not adopt it. You had yet to learn that the European, though bound down to older traditions in other respects, still exercises a liberty in clothing himself not enjoyed by the American. If he thinks a certain kind of hat

THE MOUNTAIN BOY OF '98.

The wall of the hotel men by the sad sea waves has been largely founded on this. The absence of young men from the Atlantic seaside resorts is attributable to a change in taste, for there is a taste in the matter of outings as in the dress of either sex. One year it is the bicycle, another it is yachting and another it is tennis. And so the list is ever changing. The craze for loud golf hose with the natural desire to secure echoing facilities may have helped to build up the popularity of gorge and glen. Any way the mountaineer will be the really proper person this summer. Not even the European tourist will be more enregle. He will be a picturesque individual, this mountain boy of 1898, vastly different from the Green Mountains Boys of 1776 who took up guns to fight the British. If clothed as the styles direct he will wear plaid golf hose that would make Handy MacGregor think he had never seen old Scotland. The stripes must be as broad as the stripes on the flag and the colors as vivid as a flash of lightning cutting through an Italian sunset.

The knickerbockers and jacket are to be nothing out of the ordinary but in the hat will lie the crowning glory of the season of 1898. When you see it for the first time, if you have ever toured through Germany, there will come back to you pictures of the young men you saw down in the Black Forest is becoming he will wear it, no matter what style says. So it happens that this picturesque style of hat has survived and is now making its way across the Atlantic, to brighten the mountain solitudes of 1898, and give a touch of Alpine life to the Adirondacks, White Mountains, the Blue Ridge and the Rockies.

Then the popularity of the mountains makes the "hunter" a fad for 1898. He will again don the stalking cape. This combines in itself a complete rig for the all-around sportsman, and effects three or four transformation scenes with a simplicity that will recommend it to the experienced traveller.

Its appearance when worn is much that of the ordinary travelling cape of fashion. To it is affixed what the tailors call an "apron," but which will best convey itself to the lay mind as the front of a Norfolk shooting coat, with cartridge pockets, and so forth. This is kept in place by being buttoned at the neck to the cape and with a strap, and buckle at the waist region at the back. It is simplicity itself, for it can be detached or worn at will, according to the weather. In the occasional rigors of mountain shooting this cape and "apron" will, beyond doubt, prove themselves of great service. Beneath this cape a sleeved waistcoat is discovered, with an arrangement of pockets.

CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.

The latest and more approved cure for rheumatism in Maine is for the afflicted persons to wear neckties made from the skins of the banded water snakes, which are plentiful in boggy places and muddy ponds. Hitherto rheumatic sufferers have rubbed themselves with angle worm oil, hoping to make themselves as limber as the worms are, or with fish oil, because fish can live out in the wet without getting lame. This year the fashion has changed, and no sufferer will think of using anything but the silky skins of the water snakes.

The snakes are skinned, after the manner employed on eels, and the the skins are boiled for several hours in a mixture of hemlock bark and linseed oil, after which they are stretched upon a smooth stick, and placed behind the stove to dry. When thoroughly cured they are made up into bows or four-in-hand ties, according to size, and are worn by those who believe in their efficacy. The colors are alternate rings of dark bottle green and straw yellow, and when these tints are set off with a bright scarf pin and placed in contact with a white linen shirt front, the effect is rather pleasing. The effect of the ties upon rheumatism has not been reported fully enough to pass accurate judgment, but the wearers believe they will be cured if the charms are worn long enough.

A good water snake tie is worth $2.50 in Maine.—New York Sun.

I met an especially charming woman the other day, who has just returned to America, her native land, after twenty years spent in Paris, says a writer in the Washington Post. Contrary to the custom of most Americans who have lived abroad, she is exceedingly enthusiastic in her admiration of America and everything and everybody American. I asked her what things had pleased her most.

"The women, first," said she. "They all look so respectable. The men, second. They are so broad-shouldered, and they look so trustworthy, and third, American table manners, for I think the well-bred American eats in a nicer way than anybody else on earth.

CRISP GOSSIP.

He looked very determined when he entered the recruiting office and walked up to the officer in charge.

"The boys down our way," he said, "told me I was afraid to enlist. They've just been daring me ever since this war broke out, so something had to be done."

"And that's why you're here?" suggested the recruiting officer in a tone of inquiry.

"Yes sir; that's why I'm here," answered the stranger. "There can't [illegible] at my principles and my feelings, but get away with the bluff. I'm here to git in line to do up the Spanish and don't want any one to forget it."

The officer picked up a pen and prepared to write.

"If you're sure you want to enlist," he said, "why——"

"Sure?" broke in the stranger. "Sure! Well, you just bet I'll prove those fellers liars or know the reason why. I don't think much of war as a general proposition, but there can't anybody stand around and dare me more'n six or eight times before something happens. Mebbe I might have stood what the boys had to say but when my wife told me I was afraid to fight it was just a leetle too much. All I'm afraid of is that you won't have me."

"Oh, we'll take you fast enough," regive me your name and——"

"Mebbe I ought to tell you before you go too far," interrupted the valiant youth again, "that I am troubled with hammer toes—two of 'em, one on each foot."

"That doesn't make any difference," replied the recruiting officer.

"Why—why, I thought hammer toes interfered with a man's ability to march," suggested the applicant.

"It does," admitted the recruiting officer, "but we'll put you in the cavalry."

The applicant gave a deep sigh, and suggested that that would suit him first rate, but that he couldn't ride very well.

"Never mind," answered the recruiting officer. "You can soon learn. Now, if you will just give me your name, I'll put it down and send you to the doctors for——"

"That reminds me," broke in the man who wanted to enlist, "that I have been a cigarette smoker for the last ten years."

"No matter. We're not so particular as we were. Just——"

"I have a weak heart, too, and I'm rather short-winded."

"Oh, that's all right. If you're willing to take the chances, we are. Just give me your name and it will be all right."

The youth gave another long sigh before answering.

"Well, I'll tell you how it is," he said, "Mebbe my wife spoke in haste when she said I was afraid to go. I guess I'll just run back and ask her about it before taking a step that she may regret all her life."

The editor riseth in the morning and knoweth not what the day may bring forth. If he telleth all the news, he runneth a great risk of having a tin ear put on him, and if he telleth not the news, the people say he is n. g., and there is no joy in it. The crafty man cajoleth him into giving him a 50-cent puff for a 5-cent cigar, and all fond mothers frown on him if he fails to flatter their freckled-face broods. JUNE WEDDINGS

Bloomed Numerously in Lowell Last Night

AS THEY DID IN THE SUBURBS.

Many Prominent Young People United in Marriage.

The storm with all its fury did not detract from the happiness of the unusually large number of June brides who blossomed forth in all their beauty yesterday. It was a gala day for weddings, as the following list will show:

EMERSON—FENDERSON.

Even the names blended harmoniously at the marriage of Ralph Waldo Emerson and Miss Mabel Fenderson, who were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, 35 Gates street, last evening in the presence of a large number of congratulating relatives and friends, the ceremony being performed by Rev. C. E. Davis of Lynn, the bride's former pastor.

Mr. Emerson is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Emerson of Chelmsford Centre, a member of Troop F Cavalry, postmaster of the Centre village and a very popular young man. The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Stillman Fenderson, of this city, a very estimable young lady and a sub-teacher in the public schools. The house was very prettily decorated by Harvey B. Greene, the Highland florist. The bridal party entered the front parlor to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Miss Edith Alberta Andrews. During the ceremony, Mendelssohn's wedding music was played softly. The bride was attended by Miss Gertrude Palmer of Fall River and Charles Fletcher of Boston officiated as best man.

The bride wore a gown of white corded silk, trimmed with silk chiffon. She wore the conventional veil and carried lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore white muslin and carried a beautiful bouquet of Victoria roses. The ushers were Messrs. Clay C. Bartlett, and A. Hawthorne Howard of Chelmsford Centre and Messrs. C. Fred Hard and A. Howard Green of Lowell. A wedding reception followed from 7 to 8.30. Those who received with the bridal party were Mr. and Mrs. George Stillman Fenderson, father and mother of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. James P. Emerson, father and mother of the groom. The D. L. Page company catered for the event. Lemonade was served in an alcove in the main hall by Miss Edith Temple of Reading and Miss Harriet M. Emerson of South Chelmsford.

The bridesmaid was favored with a handsome bracelet from the bride. After the reception, the happy couple left for an extended wedding tour. Upon their return, they will reside in Chelmsford Centre.

Among the beautiful gifts displayed in one of the rooms above was a $100 bill, the gift of the groom's father, Mr. James P. Emerson, and alongside the bill was a check for $25, and two gold coins.

Among the guests were: Mrs. Frank S. Aken and her daughter, Miss Florence Aken, and Miss Clarissa Buttington of Fall River; Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Emerson, Miss Harriet Emerson and John B. Emerson of South Chelmsford; Mr. Harry B. Emerson, the groom's brother; Miss Addie Ford of Chelmsford Centre.

ANDERSON—PIHL.

The marriage of Mr. Nils Martin Anderson of Tewksbury and Miss Hanna Pihl, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Pihl of Sweden, occurred last evening at the home of the bride's uncle, Mr. John Monson of 97 Forest street, Rev. Mr. Ekman, pastor of the Lutheran Swedish M. E. church officiated. The bride was attended by four bridesmaids, Anna Pihl, Ingrid Monson, Ingrid Pihl, and Hanna Olson. The best man was Mr. Theodore Hanson and Miss Ida Pihl was maid of honor.

The bride wore a very pretty gown of white lansdowne trimmed with white lace, with the conventional veil caught up with white roses. She carried a bouquet of bride roses. The four bridesmaids were gowned in white muslin and they carried pink, white and yellow roses respectively. The maid of honor was very prettily attired in white muslin and she carried Catherine Mermet roses. The bridal party assembled up stairs and marched to the parlor, where the wedding ceremony was performed, the bridesmaids preceding, while Miss Eva Pihl Forsberg played the bridal chorus from Lohengrin. During the short impressive ceremony, Mendelssohn's bridal music was played softly.

The ushers were Ernest Pihl, Martin Pihl, and Otto Pihl. After the ceremony, an informal reception was held and a large number of guests came forward to congratulate the happy pair. A genuine Swedish wedding feast was served by waitresses gowned in white. The D. L. Page company furnished the ices.

COMMUNICATION.

Dear Editor—Do the landlords of Lowell ever think of lowering the rents which take every cent from the poor working man whose pay maybe is five dollars per week? But he has to pay it all out for rent. Provisions have risen and so has every thing necessary to the household, but still the rent is no cheaper. No matter how hard the times are rents will be no cheaper. I am a poor woman and pay an awful high rent. When the fathers of families get home Saturday night, one child cries, "I want some boots;" another one cries, "I want a new dress, papa. Please buy them tonight." But the landlord will not wait. He must be paid or else have his tenement vacated. Is it not time to reduce the rents that are so high?

CORNELL WINS

THE GREAT TRIANGULAR COLLEGE BOAT RACE ON THE THAMES.

Yale Comes in Second and Harvard a Poor Third--- The Time: Cornell 23.48, Yale 24.02, Harvard 24.35---Cornell's Victory Wildly Cheered.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

New London, Conn., June 23.—The first collegiate boat race on the Thames since 1895 was rowed this afternoon, Cornell, Yale and Harvard meeting for the second time in a triangular contest. Cornell won the last race at Poughkeepsie, and had, therefore, the right to choose this year's course, but gracefully yielded to the solicitation of the two New England colleges to race on the Thames, which, for 15 years, has been the scene of a score or more of college races, principally between Harvard and Yale.

The two latter colleges have now been rowing races regularly, 1896 excepted, since 1876, and previous to that date had met in races with half a dozen other colleges.

The first race, however, between the two, with crews of eight, over a four-mile course, was rowed on the Connecticut river at Springfield, June 30, 1876. Yale won the race, but the next year the Cambridge crew came in ahead. After that, the colleges came to New London, and rowed 18 annual races, Yale winning 12 and Harvard 6.

The fastest time over the Thames course was made by the Yale crew of 1888 in 20.10 while Harvard's best time was made by the 1878 crew in 20.44½. In 1895 Yale went to Henley, while Harvard rowed for the first time at Poughkeepsie in a four-cornered contest with Cornell, Columbia, and the University of Pennsylvania. This race was rowed on June 26, 1895, and 50,000 persons saw Cornell win by four lengths with Harvard second, Pennsylvania third and Columbia fourth.

The time in this race was a record-breaker, Cornell rowing the four miles in 19 minutes and 29 seconds, while Harvard was only four seconds slower.

Last year, at Poughkeepsie, Cornell rowed in 20.34 with Yale 20 seconds slower and Harvard in 21 minutes.

Charles E. Courtney coached Cornell last year in what is known as an American stroke while Robert A. Cook taught the Yale oarsmen a combination English-American stroke. Mr. R. C. Lehmann of Oxford University came over especially and showed Harvard how to row a fine English stroke. All three of these gentlemen have charge of the same crews this year.

The stroke rowed last year at Poughkeepsie by the crews was as follows:

	Start	¼	½	¾	1	1¼	1½	1¾	Finish
Cornell	32	32	32	33	32½	32	31	31	20.34
Yale	36	34	35	33	32½	33	31	31	20.44
Harvard	35	32	34	32	31	32	32	30	21

The following is a summary of the Harvard and Yale 'Varsity races at New London:

June 28, 1878—Harvard, 20.44¾; Yale, 21.29.

June 27, 1879.—Harvard, 22.15; Yale, 23.58.

July 1, 1880—Yale 24.27; Harvard 25.09.

July 1, 1881—Yale 22.13; Harvard 22.19

June 30, 1882—Harvard 20.47; Yale, 20.50½.

June 28, 1883—Harvard 24.26; Yale 25.59

June 26, 1884—Yale 20.31; Harvard 20.46.

June 26, 1885—Harvard 25.15½; Yale, 26.20.

July 2, 1886—Yale 20.41¼; Harvard, 20.05 ¾.

June 30, 1893—Yale 25.01½; Harvard, 25.15.

June 26, 1895—Yale 21.30; Harvard 22.05.

The three famous coaches, COURTNEY for Cornell, COOK for Yale, and LEHMAN for Harvard.

Notwithstanding the fact that the weather conditions for the big triangular 'Varsity race between Cornell, and Yale and Harvard this morning were fully as propitious as at the same time yesterday, the thousands or more boating enthusiasts who remained over night in town under the most adverse circumstances viewed the sky and wind after yesterday's unfortunate experience, with suspicion. The damp, northerly winds still blew down the river at dawn, and while it had but little life it brought from over the Connecticut hills a mass of towering clouds that proved anything but attractive to those who had tickets for the observation train.

The wind, however, did not materially affect the water and during the early morning hours there were the best of prospects that the crews would fight it out for the four miles at the scheduled time, half-past twelve.

Fully half of the crowd of yesterday remained over night although there were scores who could find no accommodation and were forced to walk the streets all night.

The crowd began to gather on the big draw bridge and on the banks of the river near the finish about noon and the excursion boats moved up the line. The observation train slowly crawled up to the starting line and the thousands of spectators waited for news that the crews were off.

Yesterday the tickets for the observation train were selling at a premium but this morning it was almost hard to give them away.

The sporting fraternity found enough to discuss last night as to which of the crews would suffer the most by the postponement. It was generally admitted that as both Yale and Harvard had been trained for the day and as Cornell had still another race next week, the latter might be considered as having the best of it, for the reason that the crew would not be over the danger point. The betting was light for about all those who cared for it had placed their money and only the late comers were looking for a chance to back their favorites today.

The disappointment of yesterday's postponement did not appear to have affected the Cornell oarsmen. The Varsity crew did not go out for a row, but Coach Courtney sent the freshmen out for a paddle about 10 o'clock. The water at the time was in beautiful condition.

In the boathouse, Mr. Courtney was to be found. He said to the Associated Press man: "The statement accredited to me, that I refused to have the race rowed at 4 o'clock yesterday is untrue. I wanted the race rowed. Moreover, that race should have been rowed yesterday afternoon, if the crews were ready to start and I understand they were."

Redtop, the Harvard headquarters, was early awake this morning and the opening of the day found the oarsmen of Harvard as well prepared for the important work of the day as they were yesterday. The men spent a good night and tumbled out of bed at 7 o'clock. Every eye was turned upon the water of the Thames and at the great Harvard flag in front of the quarters which served as a weather vane for the oarsmen. Harvard was satisfied with the early morning conditions and preparations for the university race were speedily completed.

At 10.15 the members of the 'Varsity eight were given a light lunch, after which they went to the boat house. The riggers took a last look at the shell and at 11.30 Harvard was ready to go to the starting line as soon as the word could be given.

At Yale quarters in Broadview this morning, the men, the coach, and the attendants were taking things as quietly as if the events of the day were as unimportant as those of a day of training. Bob Cook contented himself with strolling to the river bank to take

Of Shafter's Army and the Cuban Allies.

Off Juragua, Province of Santiago de Cuba, Wednesday morning, June 22, by Associated Press Despatch Boat Topert, Antonio, Jam., filed Thursday, June 23, 1 a. m.—The troops under Maj. Gen. Shafter, this morning began landing at Juragua, ten miles east of the entrance to Santiago harbor. Little resistance was offered. An immediate advance will be made, and as soon as the military forces are in possession of the hills back of Santiago, a combined attack by the fleet and army will be ordered.

It is expected that before Saturday Santiago with all its fortifications and the strong fleet under Admiral Cervera will have fallen, either captured or destroyed.

CONFERENCE HELD.

A conference was held between Gen. Shafter and Gen. Garcia, and the fate of Santiago was decided upon. They will act in conjunction with the fleet.

HOW THEY LANDED.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

On board the Associated Press Despatch boat, Wanda, Jauquri harbor, Wednesday, June 22,— 5 p m, via Kingston, Jai, Thursday, 2.35 a. m.—At five o'clock 6000 trained American soldiers are encamped in the hills in and around Daiquiri and 10,000 more rest on their arms on board transports off shore, ready to join those who disembarked as soon as the available launches and small boats can carry them ashore.

Time and sea and weather were propitious for the army of invasion. The army and navy co-operated splendidly and as the big war ships closed in on the shore to pave the way for the approach of the transports, and then went back again, three cheers for the navy went up from 10,000 throats and on the troop-ships and three cheers for the army arose from ship after ship as the troop ships moved in to take their share in hazardous game. It was war and it was magnificent.

The Cuban insurgents, too, bore their share in the enterprise honorably and well. Five thousand of them, in mountain fastnesses and dark thickets of ravines lay all last night on their guns watching every road and mountain path leading from Santiago to Guantanamo. A thousand of them were within sight of Daiquiri, making the approach of the Spaniards under cover of the darkness an impossibility.

At 4 o'clock, this morning, as the Associated Press despatch boat approached Daiquiri, the entire land of Cuba seemed wrapped in soft mist like that of the dog days in northern latitudes. Dull, leaden clouds lay on the eastern horizon and the color was reflected in the gray waters of the ocean which gently undulated in the lazy breeze. Distant objects loomed dimly but it was seen that many of the troop ships that had been lying several miles in the offing had drawn in towards shore, while three of four war ships lay menacingly near the harbor approach. All around the transports, steam launches and small boats were bobbing about like corks.

TROOPS LAND IN CUBA

Sampson and Shafter Report Debarkation Without Resistance.

Successful Ruse Employed by the Warships--Conference With Gen. Garcia—Prisoners Taken on Prize Vessels to be Sent Back to Spain—One Man Killed on the Texas.

Washington, June 23.—Official dispatches received last night by both Secretary Alger and Secretary Long indicated that the landing of troops near Santiago was progressing most favorably. The first landing was effected at Daiquiri Wednesday morning and met with comparatively slight resistance. This was stated in a dispatch received by Secretary Alger, which though brief was full of news and meaning. It was sent from Playa Del Este, and read as follows:

"Off Daiquiri, Cuba, June 22.—Landing at Daiquiri this morning successful. Very little if any resistance.

(Sig.) "Shafter."

Secretary Alger expressed himself as delighted at the expedition with which the landing was being effected and with the fact that no serious obstacle was being offered by the enemy. He construed the text of Shafter's message to mean that the enemy had made merely a nominal and ineffective resistance by firing from the hills at long range.

Shortly after Secretary Alger received his dispatch Secretary Long received a more extended cablegram from Admiral Sampson. It, too, was dated at Playa Del Este. The text translated from the navy department cipher is as follows:

"Landing of the army is progressing favorably at Daiquiri. There is very little if any resistance. The New Orleans, Detroit, Castine, Wasp and Suwanee shelled the vicinity before the landing. We made a demonstration at Cabanas to engage the attention of the enemy. The Texas engaged the west battery for some hours. She had one man killed. Ten submarine mines have been recovered from the channel of Guantanamo. Communication by telegraph has been established at Guantanamo. (Sig.) Sampson."

In both army and navy circles the information contained in the dispatches of General Shafter and Admiral Sampson was received with intense satisfaction. The landing of so large a body of troops as General Shafter's is a task of immense proportions. A prominent official of the war department said that the complete debarkation of the troops, animals, field guns and supplies within a week after their arrival off the Cuban coast would be a task well accomplished. It is probable that only a partial landing of the troops was effected, and that the landing will be continued from day to day until completed. It is not unlikely too that the troops will be landed at several places along the coast, of course within a short distance of the headquarters which General Shafter will establish.

Admiral Sampson's dispatch indicated that he was carrying out his instructions thoroughly to clear a way for the landing of troops. The demonstration which he made with the Texas before Cabanas, which is just east of Guantanamo, may easily have led the Spaniards to suppose that a general landing was to be attempted in that immediate vicinity. It was evident from the text of Sampson's dispatch that a considerable landing had already been effected near Guantanamo, as he noted that communication by telegraph had been reestablished at that point, and that the channel had been cleared of submarine mines. In the opinion of naval officers the landing at Guantanamo was of marines rather than of land forces.

The reinforcement of General Shafter actually began yesterday in the departure of a regiment and a battalion of the troops at Camp Alger for Santiago. They go to Newport News and then by steamer to Santiago. If expectations are realized, these troops are likely to occupy less time in the passage than did the first contingent which left Tampa, notwithstanding the distance is twice as long. Formal orders were issued placing General Henry, in charge of the new division of troops composed of Duffield's and Carretson's brigades. Probably some of the troops now at Tampa will be attached also, in which case they will be dispatched in separate transports.

The Thirty-third Michigan and one battalion of the Thirty-fourth Michigan were selected to go first, comprising 1360 men and 53 officers. It is expected that the Harvard will be the ship first ordered. The remaining regiments and battalions of General Duffield's command will leave on Saturday next, taking the Yale. The entire expedition will then proceed under command of General Duffield, whose brigade consists of the Ninth Massachusetts, the Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Michigan and the Third Virginia regiments. General Duffield had a conference with Secretary Alger on Tuesday night, during which the details of this move were gone over. The General has the fullest confidence of the secretary, being a Detroit man and bearing a personal relation to Secretary Alger. General Duffield is regarded as one of the best equipped officers of the volunteer service. He had a long and distinguished service during the civil war, going out with the Ninth Michigan

Held Over the Remains of Mrs. Mansfield

AT ST. MICHAEL'S CHURCH THIS MORNING.

Large Attendance at the Funeral.

Solemn service was held in St. Michael's church this morning over the remains of Mrs. Matthew Mansfield.

Within the church every seat was occupied, the attendance testifying to the grand esteem in which the deceased was held by those who knew her and respected her for her many fine traits of character and her sweet, beautiful disposition.

In the large congregation were many of Lowell's leading citizens and several city officials, with whom the young husband of the deceased has been associated during his service in the city council. The funeral cortege, which left the home on Sheedd street, reached the church shortly after 10 o'clock. The seats in the main aisle were reserved for the relatives and mourners and so many of these were there that they occupied every pew and some were compelled to sit in the side aisles.

Solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. John Gilday with Rev. Fr. Sullivan of Somerville, deacon and Rev. David J. Murphy of Salem, sub-deacon. The master of ceremonies was Rev. Richard Boland. The altar was heavily draped and the beautiful candelabra had coverings of black, relieved with bows of white. The handsome casket, which contained the remains rested on a catafalque, which was also draped in mourning.

The choir was composed of the choice of the Catholic choirs of the city. There were singers from St Peter's, the Immaculate Conception, St. Patrick's, the Sacred Heart, as well as St. Michael's church. John Warburton directed and the organist was Miss Teresa Corbett. Schmidt's mass was sung, the chorus parts being sung by the choir of forty voices being particularly strong. At the offertory the "Domine" was sung with solo by Mrs. Mabel Ware Murphy.

At the conclusion of the mass Mrs. Murphy sang the hymn, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought." The final prayers were pronounced and just prior to the time of leaving the church Mr. James E. Donnelly sang, "I Love To Hear My Savior's Voice" the rich baritone notes filling the edifice. The casket was borne from the church by the pall bearers, Messrs. William Foley, of Boston, Charles Burns, John Sullivan, James J. Gallagher, John H. Barry and Bernard Callahan. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Mr. Charles R. Murray, assisted by Mr. Joseph Sullivan.

The funeral cortege numbered about forty carriages and proceeded to the Catholic cemetery. Here a service for the dead was held and the body was lowered to its resting place in the family lot. Around the grave were assembled the many relatives and friends of the deceased and as the grave was covered all knelt in prayer. On top of the mound of earth were placed some beautiful floral tributes, which were sent by friends, regardless of the family's request that there be no floral tributes. At the head was a pillow inscribed "Chris" and arranged around the sides were standing wreaths, crosses, anchors, and various other designs, while at intervals were strewn pretty sprays.

TRAINMAN INJURED.

Conductor Jacob Murphy of Billerica, a brother of J. Stuart Murphy, was knocked from the car at Ayer Junction yesterday morning and very badly hurt.

Conductor Murphy runs on the Stony Brook train between this city and Ayer Junction and has been in the company's employ for many years.

At the time of the accident, he was standing on the steps of one of the cars which were moving at a rapid rate and in some manner unknown came in contact with a telegraph pole. He was hurled to the ground and rendered unconscious, in which condition he remained for some time. He was picked up by railroad employes and taken home.

PLEASANT MUSICALE.

A pleasant musicale was given last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Millard F. Wood, 51 Whitney avenue, in honor of Mrs. Ida Spencer of New York, who is on a visit to this city. There was about 15 people present and each one contributed to a grand concert program. Refreshments were served.

WITHOUT LOSS OF LIFE

Not Even an Accident Attended the Landing of Troops.

Great Cheering When the United States Army Landed on Cuban Soil—Mounted Cubans Join Our Forces.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

On Board the Associated Press Despatch boat Wanda off Baiquiri, Wednesday, June 22, (noon) via Playa Delest Guantanamo Bay, Wednesday afternoon, June 22.—At nine o'clock the hour supposed to have been fixed for commencing the disembarkation, came and passed the expedition was in suspense, but the squadron lay rocking complacently outside the little bay.

About 9.15 a. m., the bombardment of the hills surrounding the village of Juragua, some six miles off, suddenly began to distract our attention from the town affairs. Then steam pinnacles trailing strings of empty boats began speeding to and fro among the transports and gradually, though imperceptibly, filling up with troops. At 9.15 Cuban scouts appeared west of Baiquiri, and immediately the New Orleans, Machias, Detroit Suwanee and Wasp commenced bombarding. Forty five rounds were fired into the bush during the first quarter of an hour, and many rounds from the quick-firing guns. Not a shot was fired in response.

At 9.50 the first boat load, containing the men of the Eighth and First infantry, started for the shore, followed by the Twenty-Fifth (colored), the Tenth and Twelfth infantry at 10.10. Prodigious cheering from the shore caught up by the nearest ships and flying from vessel to vessel through the squadron, announced the momentous fact that the American army had begun a landing on Cuban soil, the honor of setting the first foot on the island falling to a detachment of the Eighth infantry that was towed ashore by the tug Wampatuck.

This important operation completed without loss of life or accident, the troops on land formed and moved up and away to quarters without confusion. A force of mounted Cubans, which had been under cover during the bombardment, now arrived and congratulations were exchanged. The inhabitants of the village, assured that the worst was over, came out—colored women and children creeping into sight from subterranean shelters.

At 11.30 a detachment of the Second Mass. volunteers started for the shore and by noon probably three thousand men had landed. Other detachments were following as rapidly as the steam launches could be made available.

The sea was suspiciously calm and the sky clear. A cool breeze was blowing. The troops were in the highest spirits and the strains of yesterday were greeting every string of boats going in. The correspondent of the Associated Press going ashore at 12.10 p m. found that the Spaniards had done little wanton mischief. A roundhouse, a locomotive, several cars and the railway office had been destroyed, but the bulk of the town was left standing intact. The firing on Juroga still continues, as this despatch passed, but it is desultory and is directed over the first line of hills to clear the country beyond.

CORNELL WINS.

a look at the course and consider the weather conditions. He returned shortly afterwards to the quarters and summoning his university oarsmen instructed them as to the tactics to be used during the race under the weather conditions which promised.

At 11.36, the Cornell launch with the boat in tow started up the river toward the starting point. The launch kept on toward the Harvard headquarters where Cornell decided to board her shell fro mthe Harvard float. The referee's boat ran two miles down the course and then turned back toward the starting line. A few minutes later, the observation train, consisting of 11 tier-seated dat cars, well loaded with spectators, pulled for the starting point. The boats on the river began to fall in line giving clear course to crews. At 12.05, the referees boat pulled into the Harvard float and signalled by whistles to Yale to get ready. In the meantime, the Cornell launch was at the starting point. The Cornell crew entered their shell at the Harvard float at 12.06. The water was as smooth as glass.

It was just 12.17 when the Cornell boys rowed for the starting point and a minute later, Harvard dropped her shell into the water. The two boats were near the starting point. At 12.22 Yale was on her way to the scratch. The crews lined up at 12.32, Cornell having the course at the west bank of the river; Yale was next in position and Harvard on the outside.

The start was made at 12.37, Harvard taking the water first, Yale second, and Cornell a stroke behind. Yale caught Harvard at the 1200 yards mark. At the quarter mile Yale had a clear lead over Harvard and was slightly ahead of the Cambridge men. All were rowing about 34 strokes to the minute. At the half-mile mark, Cornell crossed first, Yale one boat-length behind, and Harvard two boat-lengths behind.

At the one-mile mark, Yale was rowing 34 strokes and Cornell and Harvard were rowing 31 also. Cornell crossed the mile line in six minutes, 34 seconds and a half. Yale followed half a boat length behind, and Harvard was two boat-lengths in the rear.

At the two-mile mark, Cornell still led, pulling a stroke of 28, Yale 30, and Harvard two lengths in the rear.

Coming to the third mile, Cornell was two open boat lengths and a half in the lead, Harvard five lengths behind Yale.

At the third mile, Cornell was still two open lengths in the lead of Yale and was rowing 32 stroke, while Harvard was six lengths behind. Yale was now pulling up with 34 stroke. The time at the third mile was 18.15½.

At the three and a half mile, Cornell led by one length, with Harvard six lengths behind.

Approaching the end of the three and a half mile, all th ecrews pulled beautifully with 32 stroke.

Cornell maintained her position at the three and a half mile mark.

Entering the last half, Cornell maintained her position at the head of the procession but Yale determined to fight it out Harvard was hopelessly in the rear.

Down the finish, the crews pulled furiously. Cornell's crew bent to their work and moved beautifully. Yale fought hard to cut down the lead. At the finishing point, the crowd was yelling itself mad. Strongly Cornell pulled over the line in 23.48, two and one-half lengths ahead of Yale. Harvard was 12 boat-lengths behind Yale.

The official time was: Cornell, first, 23.48; Yale second, 24.02; Harvard, third, 24.32.

LOWELL HIGHS WON

MADE ENOUGH RUNS IN THE EIGHTH TO COME OUT AHEAD.

The Lowell High school team went down to Haverhill yesterday and gathered in 10 runs and the game on the deliveries of O'Connor and Fountain, the opposing twirlers. It was a most exciting contest until Fountain went to pieces in the eighth when Capt. Boyle's team made enough runs to win. Yesterday's defeat was the second dose Lowell had administered to the down-river boys, who would much rather receive the medicine from any other team in the league. If the Lowell bunch only wins that game tomorrow with Lawrence, then the trophy will assuredly come Lowellward and the High school will recognize the efforts of her boys. The score:

THE GRADUATION

First Portion of High School Exercises Held

IN HIGH SCHOOL HALL YESTERDAY.

Several Creditable Essays Delivered.

The first portion of the graduation exercises of the High school was held yesterday afternoon in High school hall.

Potted plants were placed on the platform and the large semi-chorus occupied seats on the stage.

The opening number, "Let Our Voices Be Glad," was sung by the chorus, directed by Dr. Rix. The paper read by Miss Margaret B. Jamieson on "Coleridge's Ancient Mariner" was written by Miss Helen D. Swain.

The grand plan that he made for the American colonies was recalled in Clinton H. Robinson's essay on "Burke's Speech on Conciliation with America," read by Henry A. Ferrin.

"The Vision of Sir Launfal," written by Miss Florence A. Manahan, was read by Miss Annie V. Donoghue. There was poetical sentiment in the written story.

After a "Swing Song" by the chorus Miss Kate M. Snow read an original paper on "Sir Roger de Coverley, that fine old English gentleman who boasted that his coat had been in and out of season twelve times, and whose servants so loved him that they preferred to remain in his service rather than go into business through his generosity.

An extract from one of Hon. John D. Long's memorial addresses was finely given by Lloyd B. Haworth.

Miss Bertha L. Johnson read a very clever paper on "The Flight of the Kalmucks." She told the tragic story of the exodus from Russia, across the desert into China, in a narrative that had action and color.

"Exercise: Its History and Its Need," was the title of a paper by Arthur W. McLean. He argued very strongly for a more general physical training as necessary to the advancement of the race, and predicted a new era of strength for America.

The chorus sang a waltz song and Miss Florence E. Williams recited Edgar Fawcett's "The Tears of Tullia," a difficult poem to handle.

James W. Mudge, spoke for an Anglo-American alliance in his "England and America."

Miss Ethel T. Neale recited Thomas D. English's "Akertos," with spirit and Herbert D. Bixby read the final essay on "Admiral Nelson," one of the best things in the afternoon The chorus sang the new "Hail Columbia" as the finale to the program.

AT THE CIRCUS

Big Crowds Visit the Fair Grounds Yesterday

AND SAW AN EXCEPTIONALLY CLEVER SHOW.

Some of the Many Fine Features.

At the risk of being called behind the times, I'll express the opinion that there is no circus like the old two-ring affair where one gets a chance to see everything at once without any danger of wrecking his nervous system in "rubbering" his neck out of all proportion, especially when every performer is an artist and every act a feature.

Such a circus is the Walter L. Main circus, and I suppose that following in the argument to its conclusion, there is no circus like the Main circus. There are certainly no more enjoyable circuses.

Yesterday being circus day, the streets were packed with all kinds of humanity for the good impression made by the Main show last year was still about and all turned out to see its street parade which was good, even to the music, an unusual feature of circuses.

But in the tent performance, lies the charm of this particular circus, and despite the terrific downpour of rain and hail the big tent was comfortably filled at the afternoon show. As it cleared up toward evening, it was not surprising to find the tent crowded, to the doors almost when the blast of the trumpet announced the coming of the grand opening pageant which introduced the evening's how. A feature of the pageant was young "Dewey" the smallest elephant in the world, who came into the world on Decoration Day and was immediately christened after the hero of Manila. "Dewey" has has been written up at length in the New York papers recently and hence suffice it to state that he is the most interesting little elephant that ever wiggled a trunk.

When the pageant was over the performance was formally opened with an exhibition of man's superiority over beast, in the shape of a den of performing wild animals directed and controlled by one man. To see elephants, horses and dogs perform may be common and not at all startling, but to see a shaggy maned and ferocious African lion jump on the back of a horse and ride around the ring, doing also a humble act from the animal's back and to see any ugly-looking leopard jump over elephants and jump through hoops of fire are sights worth going miles to see. It certainly excels any exhibition of trained wild animals that the country has ever seen.

But that is only one feature. There are others For instance, there's Crandall ,the clown donkey rider, who outrides any trick rider in the country and his side splitting antics filled the area with continual roars of laughter.

The clowns, the delight of the children, are numerous and clever workers. In latter day circuses, the clowns are inclined to be loafers but in this show each one has some comedy part of his own and each one executed his part with button-bursting completeness. But to enumerate the features would fill columns as each individual act is worthy of mention. The aerial and trapeze acts, particularly that of the Zenos are among the finest, while the acrobatic and tumbling turns are so far advanced that the double somersault that once we greeted with open-mouthed wonder, in the Main show is only one of the hard turns of the performers. The performing horses were marvels of equine grace and beauty while their riders know no superiors.

Special mention in this feature must be given to Tony Lenando, the most graceful bareback rider in the world, who performed first with two horses and then with four, in the latter not the handsome young performer appearing in evening attire. Prof. Lenando's act was one of the most daring ever seen in any circus and last night one's admiration for him must have been increased upon learning that though apparently gay and dashing, amid smiles and bows in response to the plaudits of the admiring throng, he was ill at heart, his beautiful and talented wife, one of the cleverest lady riders in the circus, being dangerously ill at the Framingham hospital.

The show concluded with well contested and exciting hippodrome races and the great audience left the tent with the firm conviction that there is no better circus on the road than that of W. L. Main.

NURSE GRADUATED.

At St. John's hospital last evening Miss Catherine A. Doogan of Waltham, having completed the two-year course, received her diploma as a trained nurse. All the Sisters of Charity and the pupil nurses were present at the interesting ceremony. The diploma was presented by Rev. John McKenna of St. Peter's church, a cousin of the nurse. Rev. William D. Joyce, O.M.I., was present. After the exercises a little feast was enjoyed in the nurses' refectory, which was patriotically trimmed for the occasion.

FORGOT THE CIRCUS.

William Purcell of Wigginville called down to the circus last night and police officers on duty at the grounds found him insensibly intoxicated with a wound on his head, bleeding profusely. He was sent to the police station in the ambulance.

CRISP GOSSIP.

It is stated that one of our Lowell teachers recently called the attention of her pupils to the fact that bright and cheerful colors prevail in nature. She asked them why, in their opinion, God ordered that the foliage in vegetation should be green rather than black. Promptly one of the small boys replied: "Because he is an Irishman." It is needless to say what was his country, but the "Kid" is now receiving considerable "kidding" in that part of Lowell known as Councilman Lang's "neck of the woods."

John Morley has been received into the Roman Catholic church at the Brompton Oratory ,according to the Irish Independent.

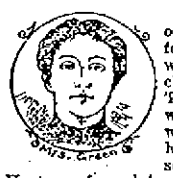

Leo XIII had the highest admiration for Mr. Gladstone, whom he regarded as the greatest Englishman of modern times, and during the illness of Mr. Gladstone, his holiness followed the daily bulletins with the keenest sympathy. His death is the occasion of great grief to the Pope. His holiness has on several occasions told Mgr. Angeli, his private secretary and confidant, that he would die soon after the death of one of the great ones of the century—that is, after the death of either Queen Victoria, Mr. Gladstone or Prince Bismarck. It was therefore, with great caution that Cardinal Rampolla broke the news of Mr. Gladstone's death to him. The news reached the Vatican about eleven o'clock, while the Pope was at mass. After mass Cardinal Rampolla entered the papal apartment and shortly afterwards informed the pope, who said: "Requiem eternam dona ei, Domine", to which the minister replied: "Amen." His holiness was much affected. Last Friday he requested to be kept daily informed of the health of Queen Victoria and Prince Bismarck. His mind is running on his own end and a frequent remark of his to Mgr. Angeli is: "Remember Pius IX ascended to Heaven a month after Victor Emmanuel."—Vatican correspondence London Daily Mail.

TRANSFERS EXCLUDED.

A change has been adopted on the Lowell, Lawrence & Haverhill Street railway in the line of ringing fares. The management of the road has decided to discontinue the registering of transfers by the conductors. Hereafter when a person boards a car with a transfer, it will be taken up as usual but not rung in by the conductor as a fare. Since the change went into effect it has been noticed on occasions that the indicator registered eight or ten fares less than there were passengers on the car and passengers wondered how that could be. The above mention of the change explains all.

RECRUITS LEAVE

For Camp Alger to Join the 6th. Regt.

NAMES OF THE SUCCESSFUL APPLICANTS.

News of the Old Military Companies.

Again the armory was yesterday the scene of tearful farewells when another batch of raw recruits took up their grips and marched manfully from home to the depot in order to board trains for Camp Alger where they will augment the Lowell companies now in camp. It was a fateful day for all the applicants, for each was earnest in his endeavor to get into the army and some dreaded the rigid examination of Dr. Dutton, the medical examiner. Shortly after 11 o'clock the result of the examinations was known and about 50 men were soon busily engaged at their homes packing up what belongings they might need at Camp Alger.

In the afternoon, friends of the recruits began to flock into the armory and among them was Mayor Bennett, who made a brief but encouraging speech to the soldier boys.

A little after 5 o'clock the company was drawn up in line in the armory boxes of food distributed and at 5.15 Major Taylor, who was detailed to recruit for the Sixth regiment gave the order to march and after a pause of two or three minutes for goodbyes, the boys took up their grips and bundles and started for the station. They found several hundred people there ahead of them and awaiting their arrival and hasty farewells were said as one after another stepped on the train. Then the handshaking went on, the the soldiers leaning from the windows, and in spite of the fact that they had smiling faces for their friends, the seriousness of it all could be seen.

At 5.25, the conductor called out the "All aboard," and the train moved away while a cheer went up from the spectators.

Dr. Dutton conducted an examination that was severe enough to reject 32 out of 70 men.

Among the well known recruits who were rejected at Camp Dewey and passed here were "Doc" Miles, Corp. Golden and Corp. George E. Worthen and Algernon Varnum. These men are all on their way to Camp Alger and a happier quartette cannot be found in the country.

Corp. Frank Dodge sent down 18 men for Company G as follows:

Charles E. Johnson, 2115 Loring street.

Walter E. Worthen, 27 Forest street.

Wm. N. Prescott, 67 London street.

Fred H. Clifford, 85 South Street.

Frederick R. Cheney, 29 West Ninth street.

Corp. Kittredge sent the following men for Company C:

Arthur Blennerhasset, 5 Rockdale avenue.

George E. Worthen Jr., 27 Forrest street.

Albert R. Archibald, 815 Merrimack street.

John Halloran, 23 Kidder street.

Odina Desmarais, 45 Salem street.

Algernon Varnum, 92 Shaw street.

Addresses unknown—Frank Parks, Frank Kelly, John Brophy, Francis J. O'Hearn, John Williamson, Edward Flannigan, Charles E. Tillon, Willard D. Pratt, Philip E. Abbott, Frank McLaughlin, Orvilla Morin, Thomas Ellis.

The men were under the command of Corp. George E. Worthen, Jr. Upon their arrival at Camp Alger, they will be uniformed.

Corp. Dodge and Sergt. Kittredge will continue to take names but the chances are against another physical examination in this city. The next one will be held for Lowell men in Wakefield with the same surgeon presiding.

John J. Caldwell, John J. Donohoe, and Michael Murray passed the exam., but they did not start with the others. Their turn will come at the latter part of this week.

The company organized to take the place of C was mustered in by Col. Gordon Dexter last night with 65 members present. Immediately after the ceremony an election of officers was held which resulted as follows: Captain, George E. Worthen, Sr.; first lieutenant, A. D. Colby; second lieutenant, George L. Fowler, Jr.

Capt. Worthen is one of the best known military men in the city. His most recent position with the militia has been that of first lieutenant in Company D, Second Corps Cadets. He has two sons now on their way to Camp Alger.

Oscar P. Ellis of 83 White street, Pawtucketville, has passed the mental and physical examinations for the U. S. Engineer Corps, and will leave for the front on Saturday of this week. It is understood that the men recruited in Boston for this department of the service will go direct to Cuba. Mr. Ellis was instructed to that effect before he was accepted.

PIAZZA PARTY

MR. AND MRS. J. CLARK GLIDDEN ENTERTAIN FRIENDS AT THEIR RESIDENCE.

The beautiful residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. Clark Glidden at 1235 Middlesex street, was the scene of a very pleasant piazza party last evening, by the members of the Epworth union. On both the first and second floors the verandas were illumined with Japanese lanterns. There was an impromptu entertainment given as follows:

The entertainment was largely impromptu, but was none the less enjoyable. A series of tableaux, prepared under the direction of Mrs. Howes, assisted by Mrs. Cleworth, was given on the lawn. The tableaux and those taking part were: "Faith, Hope and Charity," Flossie Holgate, Mabel Howe and Bertha Cleworth; "The proposal," Bertha Cady, Bert Kenlston and Bertha Cleworth; "Cuba Freed," Lillian Holgate and Mrs. Chas. Dane; "Off for a Wife," Carl Staples and Bertha Cleworth; "Evening Prayer," Bertha Cleworth, Flossie Holgate, and Mabel Howes; "Sleeping Beauty," Addie Howes and Carl Staples; "Goddess of Liberty," Addie Howes; "Good night," the whole company. The red fire used in the tableaux was contributed by Charles E. Carter.

Refreshments were served immediately afterward. Rev. L. W. Staples spoke of his recent trip to Sterling camp ground, expressing his appreciation of the fine building there which is owned by the Lowell union. An Italian harpist was stationed at one end of the hall, and played sweetly as a closing feature. It was a pleasant event, and the members of the union and others who attended feel grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Glidden for their generous hospitality.

ANOTHER SENTENCE.

Plymouth, June 22.—In Superior court, the jury in the case of John Reed for buncoing Martin Wood of Bridgewater out of $3500 returned a verdict of guilty, and he was sentenced to not more than four or less than three years in state prison. Reed took his sentence very coolly and chatted with the lawyers afterward. This makes 11 years Reed has now to serve. Harry S. Richmond of Brockton, for forging a note of $6800 on the Abington Savings bank and one on the Rockland Savings bank for $9000, pleaded guilty.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Y.W.C.A. was held last night at the rooms. Mrs. Carll, the president, was in the chair.

The treasurer's report showed $58.81 on hand June 1. During the year $1292.49 was received and $1234.89 was paid out on hand June 1, 1897, $31.31.

The same board of officers was re-elected for another year as follows: President, Mrs. Francis Carll; first vice president, Miss R. B. Bailey; second vice president, Miss M. Ella Russell; treasurer, Miss Nellie Brown; secretary, Mrs. S. H. Thompson. Miss Russell, Mrs. Alvah Sturgess, Dr. Elizabeth Newcomb and Mrs. M. L. Hamblett were elected directors.

PENSION FRAUD REPORT.

Detectives Bowran and Fairbanks of Boston who have been in town several times in connection with the pension business, have narrowed their case down to one man, against whom, it is probable they will press charges of fraud. The charge may or may not be sustained and this is the only foundation for the alleged pension scandals.

CHARETTE'S CHUM

PAID A FLYING VISIT TO LOWELL YESTERDAY.

George Charette and He Enlisted Together.

It was almost like seeing George Charette himself in town when yesterday afternoon I grasped the outstretched hand and received the gorgeous smile of "Mickey" Howard, or to give him his title, Captain of Division, Michael Howard of the U. S. S. San Francisco, who after a long absence of three years, came into town on 45 hours leave. "Just to take a look at the place, and see if Lowell appreciated the fact that it is again to the front in war and to see if Lowell is coupling the name of Charette with Ladd and Whitney as she should do."

It took a few minutes for me to assure myself that the handsome fellow in the picturesque uniform of the American tar with the eagle and crossed anchors on his sleeve betokening his rank was Mickey Howard, but he was Mickey, as handsome, gay and nonsecular as ever with not a word to say about himself but shouting the glory of his old chum of South Common days and later his messmate in the navy, George Charette.

Captain Howard, being a landlubber, I'll call him "captain" was the guest of the Belvidere hotel yesterday, stopping there, as he said, in order to talk over old times with Sammy Cox who was the only one of the little band of South Common heroes who didn't follow the sea.

When I asked him to take about himself, he said: "Never mind me until I get a chance to do something, "Dutchy" (Charette) is the boy to talk about. Didn't he do a trick to talk about? And he was from Lowell, a product of the Lowell school. Since we heard about the sinking of the Merrimac, I've got the whole ship talking about Lowell.

"Charette, as you know, left the San Francisco when his time expired and after coming home for a short stay paid his own way to Key West and enlisted there. He didn't have any trouble in enlisting, for Charette is an expert torpedo man and without boasting because he's from Lowell, it's my honest opinion that there is not a man in the entire navy, commissioned, warrant, non-commissioned or common seaman, who knows more about torpedoes than George Charette. But I'm running ahead.

When Charette left the ship, I was the last one he shook hands with. He said: 'Mickey, here's where old Lowell friends have got to part.' "Mickey," he continued, shaking my hand for all he was worth, "If ever I get the chance I'm going to make my mark and put my name in Lowell history and if you get the chance, you do it, too, and some day we'll do Lowell honor." Then he left me. He's had the chance and he more than made his mark, and if ever I get it, I'll make mine if I have to die to do it, for we must hold up the reputation of the old Eliot street and Edson schools, though I must admit I wasn't the best scholar they ever had. I don't suppose Miss Dillon and Mrs. Turner will ever forgive me. They were fine teachers, though.

"When Charette went off the ship they asked him to stay as chief gunner's mate ,a job where you wear a uniform like a street car conductor. George couldn't see it, though. He wanted to get in the thick of the fight right away and he got there with both feet.

"And while I'm talking of Charette I want to tell you that there is'nt a man I know of that knows more about foreign navies than George Charette. I believe he could tell you the tonnage displacement and armament of every ship of any importance in the world. If he ever opens up in Morro, they'll kill him as a spy, for he knows Cervera's fleet as well as if he had served in that navy. It was Charette himself who rigged up the torpedo, as it is called, that blew up the Merrimac with Hobson and the others and himself on deck. It was gun cotton in a common can like the tomato cans you have around here, and it took George to rig it up so fine that it got a perfect result.

"George is a great friend of Admiral Schley, and Schley knows what a valuman he is. McKinley did the best official act of his life when he said he'd hold Blanco personally responsible for the lives of the eight boys of the Merrimac."

Captain Howard then paid a glowing tribute to Lieut. Hobson and explained to me the use of gun cotton, rapid fire guns etc., which unfortunately, for lack of space, I must omit.

Then speaking of himself, he said: "Charette, Frank Stickney and I went into the navy practically together. Charette went in December of 1894 and Stickney and I went a few weeks later. I haven't seen Stickney for some time, but he's all right and is still on ship. Since I went into the service I have been on the Wabash, New Hampshire, Saratoga, Juniata, in which I went round the world, Portsmouth Vermont, Boston and Philadelphia, in which we took in the Chilian war, and the Constellation. I left the Constellation a couple of years ago and settled in Brooklyn, but they sent after me and I reenlisted and went aboard the San Francisco, where I met my old friend 'Dutchy'.

"We are now doing duty along the New England coast and as we stopped at Boston for coal I got leave to come up here and see my folks. We chased one merchant ship that I really believe was a Spanish auxiliary cruiser. We didn't overtake her though we were within range of her. We sail for Provincetown tomorrow and later we expect to be reinforced by the Harvard, Yale, Yosemite and Prairie and sail across for a little fun along the coast of Spain or a crack at that hide-and-seek Cadiz fleet."

Mr. Howard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Howard of Rock street.

The merchant who pays for advertising and doesn't get it cries out that advertising doesn't pay. He is wrong. Advertising pays if you get it. If you pay for any commodity that is never delivered, you lose money on it, just the same as you lose on advertising that you pay for but never get.

We are to have another battleship named after the ill-fated Maine and one named in honor of Ensign Bagley who fell at the battle of Cienfuegos.

The legislature before adjourning must pass the Boston aldermanic bill providing that each party shall nominate twelve aldermen. This will leave the voters twenty-four candidates from which to choose one-half that number.

Congressman Bailey, of Texas is proving an able leader in congress. He is severely criticised by republicans for drawing party lines. They seem to assume that it should be their exclusive right to draw party lines during the war.

Col. Whitney of the Fifth regiment has caused some surprise in turning down Lieut. Col. Oakes and appointing Capt. E. W. Weaver to that position in the Fifth regiment. Col. Whitney's act is for the good of the service and should be commended.

General Miles has requested Governor Wolcott to give his son a commission in the army. This request comes with poor grace from General Miles. If he followed military principles, he would let his son rise in the ranks by his own merits rather than have him pushed ahead by influence.

The state legislature has refused to grant Mayor Quincy his request for power to appoint temporary heads of departments. He wished to appoint a successor to Col. Bogan, who has gone to the front with the Ninth regiment. Colonel Bogan was inspector of public buildings in Boston, and although the office is now vacant, the legislature refused to allow Mayor Quincy to fill it temporarily.

THE TEXTILE SCHOOL.

The city council has appropriated $5,000 for the Textile school in order to secure the $15,000 offered by the state. It was not intended that the city should have to pay even this amount but certain legislators had matters so arranged and there was no alternative except to close up the school.

There is a sentiment that it is of no benefit to the operatives, but any ambitious operative can easily fit himself for admission to the school and can then pursue any course of instruction he may select.

The chief trouble is that the operatives and the people at large do not seem to appreciate fully the advantages offered by the school.

If parents instead of starting their sons to be lawyers or to fill some other position supposed to be a soft snap, would send them to the Textile school, they would be enabled to earn much more money than they can in the overcrowded professions to which they are assigned by their parents. In many cities and in Lowell among the number, some of the professions are overcrowded. There are too many lawyers to allow any except those who have built up a reputation to make the business pay.

Of such importance have the mechanical trades become—such, for example, as electricians, mill engineers and many others—that men who enter them can earn more than can men of average ability in the professions. There is a fatal tendency prevalent among ambitious young men, which is, that they are afraid to use their hands; they think it somewhat of a disgrace to have to depend upon manual labor for their sustenance. But the sooner this false sentiment disappears, the better.

The Textile school is the only one in Lowell that teaches technical trades, and any young man who avails himself properly of the advantages it offers, will find no difficulty in securing a good position. If the operatives and the young men avail themselves of the courses at the Textile school, the institution will be worth more than $5,000 to the city. If the school fulfils the aim of the founders it will produce skilled workmen and render unnecessary their importation from Europe; it will enable the manufacturers to advance to finer grades of goods and thus defy outside competition, which paralyzes the mills and causes low wages and shutdowns to the injury of the entire community.

ALL SHOULD SWIM.

From the number of drowning accidents which occur every summer around Lowell for the sole reason that the victims cannot swim, it would appear to be a good policy for every boy to learn to swim. As no special place is provided for this purpose, the boys have to resort to the river, and in so doing run the risk of being drowned before they acquire the art of swimming. This brings up the question of public baths. The economic policy now supposed to be in force at city hall will preclude any movement towards providing public bathing places for the people. Public bath houses are provided in Boston and every progressive city. They are doubly needed in inland cities, where the people have not the advantage of the seashore. There may come a time when the city council will be progressive enough and will so overcome the economic pressure that it will be able to provide public bathing houses. From the present aspect, however, this ideal time seems to be lagging a couple of centuries behind the millennium.

B & M. AGENTS.

THEIR MEETING HELD IN MANCHESTER, N. H., TUESDAY.

The monthly meeting of the Boston and Maine agents at the larger stations was held at the Manchester House, Manchester, N. H., by nineteen agents from all over the Boston and Maine system. The affair opened with a banquet at noon followed by the reading of a paper on "Memorandum Way Bills, Their Use and Misuse," by Agents Taft and Dane, criticism of which was participated in by nearly all present, the views expressed receiving very general endorsement.

Following the paper and a discussion, the entire party went for a trolley ride about the city on one of the Manchester street railway's special cars. Messrs. E. W. Harvey and E. J. Powers, the local agents, were untiring in their efforts to give the boys a good time.

The agents present included C. H. Cummings of Worcester, president of the association; F. F. Grant of Portsmouth, vice-president; G. H. Thorburn of Lynn, secretary and treasurer; Oliver E. Clark, Mystic Wharf, Boston; C. E. Hayward, Lakeport; E. F. Tower, Springfield; A. H. Robinson, Sanbornville, N. H.; A. B. Kimball, Rochester; E. J. Powers, Manchester; C. D. Parkman, Keene, N. THE ARENA OF POLITICS

OUR TWO WARS.

Plutocracy Is the Enemy That Threatens the Life of the Republic.

The people of the United States have two wars on hand—a war with Spain and a war with the plutocracy. The war with Spain is a war to avenge the assassination of the Maine, to free Cuba, to put an end to Spanish ferocity on this continent. It is a war for humanity, and unless sinister motives control, if not manipulated in the interest of the bondholders or to influence the coming election, this war will be fought to a successful finish in a very few months.

How about the war against the money power? This is not the first time we have had to wage war against the plutocracy. We waged it 160 years ago, when Jeffersonianism triumphed over Hamiltonianism. It was renewed in the days of Jackson and the United States bank, when the cause of the people again proved victorious. It recurred at the close of the civil war and would long ago again have been decided for the people but for the untimely death of Lincoln. It has been on ever since. It is on now. By flaunting the "bloody shirt," by false appeals to passion and prejudice, the money kings succeeded in intrenching themselves in power in the early seventies and managed to control both of the leading parties up to 1896.

Shall the Spanish war serve to so divert the minds of the people as to prolong the reign of the oligarchy of wealth in the United States?

Unfortunate indeed would it be if it should so result. What would it profit us to conquer Spain and lose our own liberty? How, forsooth, can Cuba be free if America is enslaved? Mammon is no respecter of times. The nation's extremity is Shylock's opportunity. The usurer is not moved by patriotism. While the people are engrossed in the effort to protect the honor of their flag, providing the sinews of war and giving themselves and their sons a willing sacrifice to their country Moneybags is busy getting fat contracts, cornering the supplies of wheat and other necessaries, forming trusts and combines whereby to extort at once from the government and the people, dictating the terms of war revenue bills, so that taxes shall fall not on property but on the necessaries of life and demanding that bonds shall be issued to be owned by the rich and powerful, to be paid by the poor, out of their poverty. If opposition be made to this high handed injustice, the opponents are denounced as narrow minded partisans and obstructors of legislation and as enemies of the country—although they offer to raise, by other methods consistent with the public weal, all the money required to carry on the war. The time has come to be truly patriotic, to unmask the pseudo patriots, to expose their villainy, to refuse to aid or abet, in time of war as well as in time of peace, public robbery and public plunder. We must cast aside all fear that the people will believe the false charges of the tools of the plutocrats and courageously resist the machinations by the exercise of every legitimate power. We must remain true to the people.—National Intelligencer.

The Armor Plate Robbers.

The government is now paying $400 a ton for its armor plate, notwithstanding the fact that a committee reported only a short time ago that it could be manufactured at a profit for $150 a ton. An expert committee admits that a plant involving the expense of $1,000,000 could turn out this armor plate for the government for a much less figure than $150 a ton. Why is it the government does not establish its own plant for the manufacture of this plate when by the simple investment of $1,000,000 or $3,000,000 it could do so? The cost of armor plate for the new boats now being built will amount to nearly $2,000,000 apiece at the rate of $400 a ton. What a shame and what a commentary upon the good business sense and decency of our administration that goes into cahoots with Carnegie, Hanna and the rest of the scallawags to rob our country in its distress!

We have intimated that we would like to see a Spanish gunboat go up to New York harbor and bombard J. Pierpont Morgan's office. We would like to add that as soon as this war is over we would like to see our navy or the Spanish navy go up to Portland, Me., and bombard the home of Dingley, Hear and the rest of the schemers who have been backing this armor plate scheme to rob the government.—Denver Road.

The Coming Revolution.

There is no further any doubt that the administration is negotiating an alliance with England, but the encouraging feature of the whole business is that such high handed acts of infamy will the sooner bring about the end. This will help to awaken the people and by no means prevent the coming revolution, and when it comes the present ruling dynasty of both England and America will be wiped from the face of the earth. Go right on, McKinley, and make your alliance; agree to build the Nicaragua canal and give it to England; promise to help her hold Canada in subjection if that great empire ever tires of the despotic rule of some London dude who fills a British throne. Make all the contracts you please. Some time the people will tumble the whole cargo overboard just as surely as they threw the tea overboard in Boston harbor.—Chicago Express.

The Two Patriots.

While our lads on sea and on land will be fighting to take the yoke from the necks of the oppressed of another country the gold ring will be working strenuously through congress to still further tighten its clutch on the throats of our own people. The men who can prevent that infamy will be no less patriots than those who go forth to battle. The men who war against it, even if unsuccessful, will deserve the thanks of their countrymen.—Sacramento Bee.

CYCLING NEWS.

What promises to be one of the most interesting contests of the season in paced racing will be the 50-mile match between William Martin and Harry Elkes at the Charles river track next Saturday afternoon. It will be the longest race of its kind with unlimited pace that has been run on an American track.

It is practically Martin's first big race since his return from Australia, and it will give the followers of the sport an opportunity to judge of his ability at the middle-distance paced game. In his training Martin has given every indication of being a fast, powerful rider. Perhaps he is not as well posted as Elkes in middle distance work but what he lacks in experience, he apparently more than makes up for in strength. Yesterday Martin was pushing a 122-gear, and he took out a three-mile spin, unpaced. The first mile was cut out in 2m., 12 sec., the second in 2m., 15 sec., and the third in 12m., 19 secs. In the afternoon he took a spin behind his pacemakers and reeled off 20 miles in reasonable time considering the wind.

At the present time, Martin is training behind a team of 36 pacemakers, but neither of the contestants has announced how many men he will use on the day of the race.

Martin is a man of large frame and big bones. He is a seasoned athlete. Elkes is a slender youth, but on previous occasions, has demonstrated that he is a rider of great endurance and excellent staying powers. One of the oldest trainers in the sport, recently said that if Elkes did not grow old fast he would be the coming champion. Dave Shafer has great confidence in the boy's ability or he would not have added him to his string, and Dave seldom makes a mistake in picking a winner. With Elkes and Michael, Shafer undoubtedly has the two best middle-distance men in America with the exception of McDuffee and Linton. Great things are expected of French Taylore, but it remains to be seen what he is capable of when he meets McDuffee, Michael or Elkes.

For the past month Elkes has been training under the watchful eye of Shafer and the youngster has shown great improvement. He has improved in his position, and makes his pickups much more smoothly than he did in his race with Linton. Training in second place behind Michael has been excellent practice for him, and if it should come to a pinch, where a pickup is missed his experience will prove of value to him in the coming match.

Martin's pace is handled by Frank Waller, a veteran long-distance man, and a man who performed heroic service for Michael in his 15-mile match with McDuffee a year ago. There is little in connection with the pacing game that Waller does not understand. At the same time he will be met by Dave Shafer who always uses great generalship in the handling of pacemakers under adverse circumstances and in tight places.

When one considers the remarkable time made by McDuffee in his recent match with Major Taylor, it is hardly probable that the records will begin to go inside of the 30-mile mark.

Tom Barnaby of Revere and J. H. Berwin of Manchester, N. H., met yesterday and agreed to ride a match race at ten miles, paced, the latter part of July in Manchester. The purse will be $300 and the side bets are $100.

The racing committee of the Roslindale C. C. denies the report that a protest in intended by that club against the P. C. C. team on the ground that P. F. Logan was not a member of the club the required thirty days.

The Orient C. C. is getting together a pursuit team and will ride a five-mile pursuit race the latter part of August at Charles River park, with the Winthrop C. C. as probable opponents.

Entry blanks for the Spiers road race at East Boston are now out and can be obtained. A full list of prizes is to be announced. As Captain Irish is very particular about bells, it is suggested that no rider attempt to start unless his wheel has one. Otherwise, he may not be allowed by the police to ride.

A. A. Zimmerman is still on his back at his father's house in Manasquan. He cannot lift hand or foot nor move his head, but is mending slowly. So far, only Charlie Wells, the big California racing man, outside the immediate family of the champion, has visited him.

A new scoring device for middle-distance races has been set up at Manhattan Beach. It consists of a large dial, on which the time in minutes, seconds, and fifths is shown, while the number of miles and laps to the credit of each man are indicated by numbers shown through holes in the dial.

Betting on the Michael-McDuffee match is about even, though some of McDuffee's warm admirers have offered as good odds as three to one. The Michael supporters are quietly picking up every bet in sight, whatever the odds.

The mayor of Chelsea, Mass., has appointed 24 L.A.W. members to serve as special police to prevent careless riding. Any plan which tends to lessen the nonsense of ignorant scorchers is a commendable one and worthy of imitation.

Turcotte, Avila Bourbonnière, Charles H. Boisvert, Aime Gauthier, J. Wilfred Paradis, Clovis Belanger, Jean Baptiste Fillean, Alfred Leblanc, David Parthenais, William Parthenais.

There was an address by Aime Gauthier upon the late Sir Josaph Adolph Chapleau, ex-Lieutenant governor of the Province of Quebec, and resolutions of regret and of sympathy for Lady Chapleau were adopted.

On motion of Ex-Councilman Clovis Belanger, seconded by Ex-Councilman Chas. H. Boisvert, it was voted to present to George Charette, in behalf of the Canadian-Americans of the city, a medal commemorative of his daring act of bravery. The following were chosen a committee to prepare an address for this purpose: Clovis Belanger, Charles H. Boisvert, J. Wilfred Paradis, Aime Gauthier, Avila Bourbonnière.

GERMANY IS VERY ANXIOUS

To Have Posession of Some Pacific Islands.

Camara is Boasting of What He May do—Great Activity at Key West—Doings at Washington.

London, June 23.—The Berlin correspondent of The Times, commenting on the continued discussion of the Philippine question, says: "There would be a storm of indignation in the German press if the United States were to become master of the Philippines while Germany got nothing. In the view of many German politicians anything would be better than that, and they would even prefer to see the intervention of several European powers to protect the life and property of their subjects from the rebels, followed by the acquisition of a naval station for each of them. There is in fact a strong inclination to repeat the Chinese drama at Kiao-Chou wherever an opportunity is afforded. Relatively to what Germany already possesses she has everything to gain by such a policy of fair shares all around.

"There can be little doubt that no European power or combination of powers would venture to prevent the United States and Great Britain from settling the future of the Philippines conjointly, or at least under the protection of their conjoint naval forces. Continental opinion would not only speedily acknowledge the strength of an Anglo-American naval alliance, but would be practically unanimous against incurring the risk of the commercial consequences of a breach with the United States."

CAMARA'S BRAGGADOCIO.

London, June 23.—The Gibraltar correspondent of The Daily News says: "No credence need be given to rumors that the Cadiz fleet will return to that port. Admiral Camara could not return without riots at Cadiz and Madrid, particularly as he said at the banquet before his departure that he would never return until his flag had been steeped in American blood. You will find that the next move of the squadron will be to the Canaries."

SOUNDED AS TO MEDIATION.

London, June 23.—The Berlin correspondent of The Standard says: "The queen regent has privately caused those sovereigns who are her relatives to be directly sounded, and those whom she regards as friends to be indirectly sounded, as to whether they are willing to mediate; but the stage of diplomatic negotiations has not yet been reached, and it is very doubtful whether it will be reached for some time to come.

"The semi-official Post hears from Antwerp that persons commissioned by the Washington government to enlist seamen on neutral soil are said to have enlisted more than 1000 German sailors for the American navy and the auxiliary cruisers. This would explain the difficulty German captains have experienced of late in manning their ships."

PRODIGIOUS ACTIVITY.

Key West, June 23.—A warship which arrived yesterday from the blockade of Havana reports that nothing of interest can be seen from the ships there except prodigious activity in the construction of defense works on shore.

The vessel brought in Chief Armorer Henderson and J. Herman, gunner's mate of one of the gunboats, who were wounded while at work in the armor room of the ship trying to extract the fuse from a shell. Henderson was struck in the abdomen by a piece of the shell, and Herman had his right arm lacerated. Both will recover.

LINES DRAWN TIGHTER.

Washington, June 23.—Acting Secretary Spaulding yesterday wired instructions to all Atlantic coast collectors to refuse clearance to any vessel for Cuban or Porto Rican ports with provisions or other material which can be used in maintaining war, regardless of whether the ports are or not blockaded, or whether the cargoes are contraband or not. This action is taken under the joint resolution of April 22, the enforcement of which has been entrusted by the president to the secretary of the treasury. The power bestowed by that resolution is broader than powers under international law as now construed, and its exercise draws tighter the lines about the Spanish West Indies.

RELIABLE OF COURSE.

London, June 23.—The Madrid, correspondent of The Daily Mail says: "Reliable information has been received in diplomatic circles here from South America, that preliminary steps are being taken to summon a conference of all South and Central American republics to consider the advisability of adopting defensive measures against future aggression by the United States. The Hispano-American republics see danger in the prospect that at the moment the United States has effected its purpose in Cuba, it will seek to extend its influence and authority over the Spanish-speaking republics."

ENDORSED CHAMBERLAIN.

London, June 23.—The Marquis of Lansdown, secretary of war, addressing the Conservative unions of London last evening, endorsed the recent Birmingham speech of the secretary of state for the colonies, in which Mr. Chamberlain expressed the hope that the day would come when the stars and stripes and the union jack would wave together over an Anglo-Saxon alliance.

"Depend upon it," said Lord Lansdowne in conclusion, "these are no mere idle dreams or hazy aspirations. The change which has come over the sentiment of each country toward each other during the last year or two is almost immeasurable. One can scarcely believe they are the same United States with whom, only a two years ago, we were on the verge of a serious quarrel. The change is not an ephemeral understanding between diplomatists, but a genuine desire of the two peoples to be friends, and, therefore, it cannot be laughed out of existence by the sort of comment we have lately heard."

BASE BALL.

Chicago, June 23.—Willis was retired in the first inning yesterday. The Chicagos could do nothing with Lewis after the second, and he won his game by a safe drive, scoring Bergen. Attendance, 4000. Score:

Yesterday's game was a pitching contest in Taunton, and had McMackin received competent support, the Pawtuckets would not have seen third base. As it was, they made one run in the last half of the ninth inning. Three of their seven hits were bunched inside the diamond.

Gettig of the New Yorks lasted half an inning and was replaced by Seymour after the Pittsburgs had won. Joyce was put out of the game for questioning decisions. Score: 10 to 5.

Not a member of the Washingtons passed second base in Louisville, and only two reached that bag. The Louisvilles fielded finely and did great base running. Score: 5 to 0.

Tom Flannagan of the Fall Rivers shut the Brocktons out without a hit yesterday in the shortest game of the season. They got but two men to first and nobody to second. A wild pitch gave the Fall Rivers one in the first, and a series of hits added four more in the sixth. Outside of these innings McKenna pitched great ball, but 30 men faced him during the game. Magoon of the Brocktons has joined the Brooklyns. His place at third will be filled by George Moore. Score: 5 to 0.

Bases on balls, daring base running and stupid plays by the Rochesters gave the Providences four runs in the second inning, and the game. Score: 6 to 1.

J. B. Birmingham of Hartford has sold the Hartford franchise to a stock company formed by William Trafley, manager of the team. Barnie, until recently manager of the Brooklyn club, made an effort to buy the franchise from Birmingham, but they could not agree on the price. Barnie is now managing the Springfield club.

A wild throw by Jennings of the Baltimores in the seventh inning bounded into the grandstand and allowed Hill to make the winning run for the Cincinnatis. Score: 3 to 2.

The Quakers won yesterday by hitting at opportune times. The St. Louis team played a listless fielding game, and their errors were costly. Score: 8 to 2.

The Brooklyns could not touch Wilson and the Clevelands gave him good support. The game was snappy on both sides. Score: 5 to 2.

Householder's miserable work at first and errors by Wise were responsible for the loss of yesterday's game by the Buffalos to the Springfields. Reilly's work at short for the winners was wonderfully clever. Score: 10 to 4.

SINE DIE STAGE.

Boston, June 23.—By a vote of 26 to 22, the senate refused to reject the bill to prohibit the use of trading stamps, and it went into the calendar for today.

Last evening the conference committee on the street railway bill reported. The report makes the 1 percent excise tax relate to railways which have earnings of $4000 per mile, instead of $3000 as fixed by the senate and $2000 as fixed by the house.

The senate bill to prevent the desecration of the flag was referred to the next legislature.

The conference committee on the bill to prevent over-insurance reported an amendment which was practically a surrender of the house to the senate idea to provide that interest should be refunded on the premium paid on account of excess of valuation, whether the policy was originally taken out by the company then responsible or by another. The report was accepted without opposition.

The house rejected by a large vote the resolve to authorize the state board of health to report on the advisability and efficiency of the use of tuberculin.

A petition from the mayor of Northampton for permission to remove the sacred codfish from the house of representatives to his city, until Boston shall have withstood the threatened bombardment, was the first business not acted upon by the house, while sitting in mock session yesterday.

RELATING TO BOSTON.

Boston, June 23.—A circular has been issued by the New England Burglary Insurance company, which reinsured all its risks outside of this state last November, cancelling all outstanding policies and remitting the amount of unearned premium, preparatory to closing out the company. The company began business in December, 1895, with a capital of $200,000.

The body of James McLaughlin, a Fitchburg railroad yardman, was found floating in the water near the drawbridge of the Boston and Maine railroad in Charlestown. He fell through the bridge on the night of June 14 while hurrying to flag a train.

The Massachusetts Volunteer Aid association has closed its purchase of the hospital ship Bay State. The money has been paid over and possession taken.

Mrs. Mary Fullerton, who was the oldest original Daughter of the Revolution, is dead. She was 102 years of age. Mrs. Fullerton was born in Taftonboro, N. H. Her father, James Wiggin, was a lieutenant in the American army at the time of the revolution.

ARGUED WITH A COUPLING PIN.

Providence, June 23.—Horace G. Mullen will spend 30 days in jail because of a dispute in which he participated as to the relative merits of the United States and Spain. He was in a saloon when the topic was taken up, and as he did not agree with the sentiments of some others in the saloon, he went over into a railroad yard and secured a coupling pin, which he hurled as a convincing argument against his opponents, who were Spanish sympathizers. He was indicted for assault with a dangerous weapon, but pleaded nole contendre to simple assault.

HEAD OF OBLATES

FATHER AUGIER, THE NEW SUPERIOR GENERAL, ELECTED BY A LARGE MAJORITY.

The general chapter of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate which was composed of 42 members, eight of whom were bishops, met at the convent in the Rue de St. Petersburg in Paris recently for the election of a new superior general in place of Pere Souillier, who died in October last. At the first scrutiny, Pere Augier, second assistant of the order, was elected by a large majority. He was born in the diocese of Nice in 1845, and at the age of 15 was impelled by his piety to enter the juniorate of Notre Dame des Lumieres. Three years later he entered the novitiate. He next studied at Autun, and after being ordained priest in 1869, was sent to the Grand Seminaire of Aiaccio, which had been founded a short time before by Cardinal Guibert, and at which Pere Augier professed theology for several years.

His next post was on the staff of the clergy at the Sacre Coeur on Montmartre. In 1882 he was appointed procureur general of his order and remained for the next eight years in Rome. There he founded a flourishing house for higher studies. He left Rome for Paris on being appointed assistant general, in which quality he made a visitation of the most distant missions confided to the order by propaganda in Africa and Asia.—London Tablet.

A LOWELL THIEF

CAUGHT IN THE ACT AT LAWRENCE AND ARRESTED.

James Miller of Quebec, Canada, was charged with drunkenness and larceny in Lawrence Tuesday. On Monday he entered the house of Edward Valcour, 202 Valley street in that city. Mrs. Valcour was out and when she returned she met Miller coming out of her bedroom.

He asked her for ten cents, saying he wanted to go to Lowell where he belonged. She would not give it to him and he went out. Mrs. Valcour went into the bedroom and discovered that one dollar and thirty-five cents and a valuable gold ring had been taken from her husband's trousers.

She quickly gave the alarm and a small boy ran up Broadway and got Officer Martin. He came down and arrested the man. The money and ring also a knife with Mr. Valcour's name on it, a piece of tobacco and an empty pocketbook, the property of Mrs. Valcour, were found on his person.

"On Guard."

When disease shoots the first arrow the truly wise man will come instantly on guard. He will not wait for the attack. He will not hesitate until the full force of disease and misery and death comes crashing about him.

When a man begins to feel "out of sorts," when his appetite is failing and his energy is not up to the mark, when he has bilious attacks and a feeling of lassitude and incapacity, if he is wise, he will take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery right away. It will bring his appetite back again, and what is more it will bring back his digestive powers. It will give all the assimilative functions the edge and power to extract abundant nourishment from the food he eats. It will make good, pure, healthy blood and send it coursing rapidly through his veins and arteries into every organ and tissue of the body. It will put flesh on his bones and force in his muscles; it will give him strength and courage and cheerfulness, in a word it will give him complete health.

It excretes from the system every particle of dead, useless, flabby tissue. It even reduces the weight of the corpulent man at the same time that it builds up his strength and working power. The weight it adds to people who need it is the kind that comes of pure blood and every organ doing its work properly and thoroughly—what pugilists call "fighting weight."

AN ENGLISHMAN IN CUBA

EXPERIENCES OF PHIL ROBINSON.

He Used a Napkin as a Truce Flag and Matanzas Welcomed Him—Says Spaniards Are Eager to Fight and Expect to Put Inhabitants of Florida to the Sword. Found the City of Havana Gay—Blanco's Socialistic Orders.

The Pall Mall Gazette's special correspondent, Phil Robinson, writing from Kingston, Jamaica, under the date of June 17 on his recent experiences in Matanzas and Havana, says:

"Finding the local authorities determined to prevent my going to Cuba, I was compelled to escape from Key West after dark on board of a friendly British yacht, which, while passing Admiral Sampson's fleet bedded for Cardenas, was fired upon by a patrolling gunboat. We changed our course for Matanzas, and at 4 o'clock in the morning stopped five miles from the coast. Whigham and I left the yacht in a skiff, and owing to the easterly current and strong ebb tide it took three hours to reach the entrance of the harbor and four more to get to the Matanzas jetty, in front of the center of the town.

"As we were approaching the coast the Spanish cavalry patrol detected us and dismounted, apparently contemplating giving us a volley, but while baling the boat with one hand I waved a white napkin with the other, and they accepted the signal. Only one battery threatened us. A man was standing to his gun, but the napkin again saved us, and the situation was without further incident.

"When we reached the jetty, some children who were paddling in the water carried our oars, flags and luggage to the hotel, where our appearance created the utmost astonishment. We were told afterward that the soldiers and the crowds we passed were quite stupefied by the suddenness of our appearance, otherwise they might have done us some mischief. After we had breakfasted we sent for the British consul, who informed the authorities of our presence. We were summoned before the commandant and closely questioned. General Molina was at first incredulous, but ultimately complimented us upon our exploit, laughing heartily at the idea of two men in an open boat running the blockade and rowing right up the middle of the harbor in broad daylight past all of the batteries. He telegraphed to Havana asking permission for us to proceed to the capital, but General Congosto, Captain General Blanco's evil genius, ordered our arrest. At midnight, while we were in a cafe chatting with some Spanish officers, we were arrested and driven to Castle San Saverino. Our persons were searched and everything was taken from us. We were locked in a disgustingly filthy cell without one single article of furniture except a hammock.

"The next day we were removed to the commandant's quarters, where we were permitted to furnish a room and obtain food from the hotel. We were treated with the utmost kindness and consideration, but were not allowed to leave our room. During our imprisonment some miscreants spread reports that we had been seen in Matanzas before, that we had been hiding in the town and that our story of rowing up the harbor in a boat was an invention. We were therefore repeatedly examined in minute detail, separately, but after six days of this kind of treatment our veracity was established and we were forwarded under guard to Havana.

"Matanzas from the harbor resembles an Italian seaport and from the land it is doubly beautiful. Two rivers loiter through the town into the landlocked harbor, which is three miles wide. The land on either side of the harbor rises picturesquely to a considerable height and that behind the town slopes gently upward to a palm crested ridge. Under American enterprise the town will develop into a noble pleasure resort, possessing unique natural beauties, enhanced by grace and antiquity and be a fatal rival to the Florida resorts. The defenses of Matanzas have been greatly strengthened of late. One new battery, at present unknown to the Americans, mounting six large guns, is being completed on the east side of the harbor and a corresponding battery on the opposite side is in course of construction.

"The Spaniards are utterly at a loss to understand why Admiral Sampson did not attack Matanzas in earnest a month ago. The condition of the town admitted it then, as it was not able to withstand an attack. Now, however, the Spaniards are most confident and are spoiling for a fight, expecting, after defeating the fleet, to invade Florida, where General Molina has promised his troops that they shall put the entire population to the sword. The eagerness of the poor, ignorant Spanish officers for battle is quite pathetic, but it is a fact that at present they mean to fight to the death. The explanation given by the Spaniards of the futility of Admiral Sampson's demonstration before Matanzas is that the American shells, notably those fired by the Cincinnati, were defective. Numbers of them which did not explode have since been buried. It is quite certain that not a life was lost, nor was any masonry displaced in the affair.

"The country between Matanzas and Havana is splendidly rich, but has been terribly devastated by the three years' war. Cattle are still abundant and the crops are profuse. The line is guarded by forts throughout, and cavalry patrols and infantry posts were seen continuously from the train. We could also see frequent cavalry skirmishing with insurgents who were concealed in the bush.

"At Matanzas a week ago there was no sign of starvation. The prices at the hotels, cafes and shops were the same as in America, and there were no beggars. Reconcentrados with pigs tethered to their huts and chickens running about were numerous. We gave a fat child a penny, and the youngster instantly ran and bought candy from a negro camp peddler. The citizens expected that the supply of flour would be exhausted in ten days and that the supply of wheat would fail in about a month. The supply of fish and vegetables, of course, will never fail.

"Upon reaching Havana we were escorted directly to the headquarters of the police, where we were most kindly treated. The next day, upon our signing a promise to leave Cuba at the earliest opportunity, we were released. Three days later the British cruiser Talbot arrived, and we were deported to Jamaica. During the voyage here we were the guests of Captain Gamble, from whom we received every courtesy. Reasons for our expulsion were refused, but General Blanco's order forbidding correspondents to land in Cuba, which was issued a week after our arrival, was made retroactive. Upon applying to the British consul general for an explanation we were treated impertinently. Meanwhile Knight of the London Times is allowed to remain. Perhaps it is because he was so nearly drowned in trying to land, but our expulsion was unjust and illogical and disgraceful to the Spanish government.

"As seen a week ago it would be impossible for a stranger to imagine that Havana was starving or that the city was blockaded. The band was playing on the Prado and a merry crowd was promenading. Every seat in the cafes was filled, and the theaters, considering the fact that not a woman was present, had good houses nightly. The hotels and shops were charging their usual prices, and we only saw a dozen professional beggars. Daily when the American blockading vessels were sighted great crowds would rush off to the seashore. Every available cab was engaged to take the people to the beach, where they spent their time in jeering the Yankees and daring them to come within reach of the Spanish guns. Then they would return home chattering and laughing as though the blockading of the city were a comic opera.

"The city was tranquil and abnormally free from crime. Havana has 20,000 volunteers, all Spaniards, and responsible men are providing for them. They wore uniforms and were provided with horses. They are armed by the government. These volunteers assure the tranquillity of the city, as they overawe the Cuban canaille. The food supplies were generally sufficient. Today there is a two months' supply of coal in port. A week ago there were 60,000 tons.

"Captain General Blanco recently issued several socialistic orders, limiting the prices of staples, reducing rents 50 per cent and abolishing payments of interest on loans and mortgages, hoping thereby to enable the poorer classes, who are chiefly Cubans, to tide over the war. No starvation exists, but the thrifty ones content themselves with one economical meal daily. The poorer classes are paid for their labor on the old basis, but are paying for their purchases on the new basis. Upon this plan they can only buy one-half what they used to get. The citizens and the army alike are eager for a fight, the officers fiercely denouncing all idea of a compromise."

DEWEY'S NEW SQUADRON.

One of His Men Tells How He Is Making a "Mosquito Fleet" of His Own.

The following letter has been received by Mrs. Kuhlwein of Sag Harbor, from her husband, L. J. O. Kuhlwein, the chief gunner of Admiral Dewey's flagship, the Olympia:

U. S. S. OLYMPIA,
MANILA BAY, May 12, 1898.

We have been very successful here in everything so far. At present I am very hard at work taking all the guns out of the Spanish men-of-war which we have sunk in this harbor, and there are about 11 of them, all having from 6 to 14 guns on board. We are going to send them all home on a steamer which we captured today. Early this morning we captured a fine Spanish gunboat, only firing four shots to do it, when they hauled down their flag without firing a shot. This afternoon I was sent out in charge of a tug, with about ten men, to run around the bay to see if I could not find some small steam launches. Well, I did find one launch only, but I captured two very fine tugs, better, both of them, than the one we had. We are getting to have a fleet here, and we are making it all ourselves. Every tug we capture we convert into a small gunboat at once, and the way we do it is to go on board one of the sunken Spanish men-of-war, take a few good guns out of her and mount them, and there is a new addition to our fleet. This harbor is filled with the American flag, and long may she wave! I also secured a large Spanish man-of-war flag from one of the tugs captured, which, of course, is my own and which I shall take home.

A Response.

The "incident wrong" that unlawfully parted
In the message that sped on the "third March gale,"
Is the wrong the confessing has far atoned
And becomes, indeed, as a "wormwood tale."

The hail of a people brave and sincere,
It comes like the clasp of a friendly hand,
An answer it finds in the hearts of us here,
For frank are we of this western land.

To claim of kinship we also are heir;
Our pulses feel the common blood.
Two nations these, but of common weal,
As their shores are kept by one common flood.

They speak their vows in the self same tongue,
Pronounce their faith through a common creed,
And nation old and nation young
Hail the soul of the "sea kings" yet in the breed.

A common gospel we preach the world—
We sons of the Anglo-Saxon race—
Wherever the stars and stripes are unfurled,
Where the shamrock and thistle and rose find place—

'Tis the freedom and manhood of man we preach;
The tyrant and craven we scorn alike.
Direct is our purpose, and clear our speech,
And our war guns thunder and terribly strike.

Then here's cheer for your cheer to a kinsman land:
The reign of the tyrant shall cease to be!
Since Saxon and Saxon clasp friendly hand,
And one's to the westland, as one to the east

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Surgeon General Van Reypen of the navy has received a full report from the surgeon with Admiral Sampson's fleet, who cared for the dying and wounded participants in the Guantanamo fight. The important feature is a definite statement that the corpses were not mutilated, but that the severe wounds were the results of a Mauser ball.

OHIO REPUBLICANS

By Associated Press to The Sun.

Columbus, O., June 22.—The committee on credentials of the republican state convention last night decided not to recognize the McKisson delegation from Cleveland. The republican state convention reconvened this morning when the temporary organization of yesterday was made permanent. There was scarcely any factional minority in the convention as it was organized. What are known as the national administration men as distinguished from the state administration men, had everything their own way without opposition.

The sub-committee on resolutions was kept up during the night because of the differences in the resolutions regarding the state administration and legislature. The sub-committee reported conciliatory resolutions to the full committee.

POSSESSION OF THE PHILIPPINES BY ENGLAND

Is Said to be Very Undesirable.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

Washington, June 22.—The new Russian ambassador, Count Cassini, will be formally received by President McKinley within a day or two.

In response to an inquiry as whether Russia was likely, alone or with other powers to look with disfavor upon the control of the Philippines by the United States, the ambassador said that he did not apprehend any change in the present good relations between the United States and Russia. He added, however, that it seemed to be quite undesirable that possession of the Philippines should pass into the hands of England as that would seriously disturb the equilibrium in the far East.

HANNA AGAIN TRIUMPHS

He Claims That Harmony Has Been Restored.

He Has Control of the Party Organization and Runs Things His Own Way.

Columbus, June 23.—The Republican state convention yesterday was a record breaker. Its session lasted less than two hours, and most of that time was devoted to unseating a small minority of dissenters. After the contests were disposed of everything was unanimous and by acclamation. Five nominations were made within 12 minutes, including the presentation and the seconding speeches. The delegates, after the convention perfected its permanent organization, were all Hanna men. If the factions were not completely wiped out, they were at least shut out. There was some doubt expressed as to two of the 21 members of the state central committee, Brown of Toledo and Crulghead of Dayton; but they were not long in announcing themselves as in accord with the majority, so that the party machinery is entirely in the hands of the friends of Senator Hanna for the next year.

MARCUS AURELIUS HANNA.

While in full sway, there were some who wanted to remove Charles L. Kurtz as the Ohio member of the Republican national committee, but Mr. Hanna's closest friends prevented even consideration of such action. Governor Bushnell was not in the convention hall, and none of his appointees were present to hear the reading of the last resolution in the platform, which is generally accepted as uncomplimentary to the governor and the dissenting Republicans in the legislature.

During the legislative investigation Cyrus Huling and H. M. Daugherty were the attorneys of Senator Hanna. Huling was made chairman of the state central committee and Daugherty is slated for the chairmanship of the state executive committee.

REPORT IS DENIED

Regarding the Attempted Shooting of Blanco.

THE CAPTAIN SAID TO BE HIGHLY ESTEEMED.

His Reasons for Detaining Hobson and Associates.

Havana, June 23.—There is absolutely no foundation for the report of an attempt to assassinate Captain General Blanco by a member of the volunteers whose brother had been shot for complicity in a plot against the government. General Blanco enjoys the esteem of all classes in Havana, including the volunteers, and is regarded with the utmost confidence as the representative of Spanish sovereignty. The Cubans admit that they are under obligations to General Blanco for the establishment of autonomy in the island. The palace guards are from the volunteers, and several officers of that body are aides on the general's staff. General Blanco's public appearance is frequently the occasion of patriotic demonstrations, and that he has no fear of assassination is shown by the fact that he often rides out without escort, visiting the fortifications about Havana without the attendance of the usual bodyguard.

Complete tranquility reigns in Havana. The greatest confidence is felt that the Spanish forces will successfully cope with the American soldiers. There is great enthusiasm among the troops and volunteers, who are all anxious to fight against the invaders.

Captain General Blanco denies that he has decided that there shall be no exchange of prisoners with the United States. At the same time, the captain general says that he cannot allow the exchange of Lieutenant Hobson and the other members of the party who sailed the Merrimac into the mouth of the harbor at Santiago, for the lieutenant and his companies have had opportunities of seeing the harbor and its defenses. The most common prudence, the captain general says, would forbid that these men be now given their liberty as proposed by the United States. Blanco added that he had not forbidden the approach of vessels bearing flags of truce, but had only ordered that no vessel be permitted to approach within six miles of the shore, so that it be made impossible for officers of the United States to make drawings of or inspect fortresses.

TO TALK INDEFINITELY.

Washington, June 23.—The anti-annexationists in the senate privately suggested to the advocates of the Hawaiian resolution that the most practical method of disposing of the question was an agreement upon a time next session to vote, but, while the proposition has not been formally declined, the leading supporters of the resolution say they will not consider it seriously. They say they are having no difficulty in maintaining a quorum, and they expect to be able to keep their men here to the end. The opponents urge that by the opening of the next session the war probably will be concluded and the entire policy of the acquisition of this territory can be passed upon. They say that if the proposition is not accepted the speech-making will go on indefinitely.

VERMONT REPUBLICANS.

A LAWRENCE BOY

HELD IN $1000 FOR GRAND LARCENY.

He Stole a Watch and Other Property.

New York, June 23.—Amos G. Towle, 16 years of age, a student at Phillips academy, Andover, was held in $1000 bonds for examination by Magistrate Kudlich yesterday afternoon for grand larceny.

Towle is the son of a well-to-do widow of Lawrence, Mass. In company with Benjamin Aubrey, a Yale student of the class of 1900, he came to this city a week ago and took lodgings at a boarding house kept by Eliza White. Tuesday night Mrs. Amos Greenleaf, who has a room next to that of Towle's, missed a gold watch. She told a detective that she suspected Towle, and on his arrest he admitted the theft. Towle said that the money he expected from home had not come, and Aubrey induced him to take the watch and pawn it, saying he could return it when his money came and before Mrs. Greenleaf would miss it. Towle telegraphed for his mother. Aubrey is still at large.

HYPNOTICALLY INFLUENCED.

London, June 23.—In the Bow street police court yesterday John Trodd, who shot Count Von Arco-Valley, the first secretary of the German embassy here, as the latter was emerging from the embassy on the evening of June 15, was committed for trial. Trodd made a rambling statement to the effect that the German, American and French nations had hypnotically influenced him and pestered him with accusations. He was not sure, he said, whether Irish-Americans were not also guilty of accusations started some years ago by United States Consul General P. A. Collins, who was supported by Germans, the latter being among his first accusers. As the home office had refused to assist him, Trodd said he thought that he would be justified in taking the law into his own hands, which, he added, would be a lesson to Germans not to interfere with the English.

FIVE WERE DROWNED.

WORK OF A MISCREANT.

Norway Lake, Me., June 23.—Considerable excitement has been caused in this vicinity by the discovery that paris green had been placed in a well owned by Emerson Kilgore. (Continued.)

infantry, of which he became adjutant. Later he went on the staff of General George H. Thomas, in command of the army of the Cumberland, and was with that hero through the notable engagements in which he participated. General Duffield's expedition is expected to report to General Shafter in about four days from the time the ships leave Newport News. It will augment the forces under General Shafter to about 10,000 men. Besides these, the present plan of sending reinforcements contemplates that General Garretson's brigade of 4000 men will go as soon as transports can be secured, which is expected to be at an early day by the purchase outright of the needed vessels.

The secretary of the navy, speaking of the general satisfaction that has been expressed with the navy department, said that in justice it should be borne in mind that the navy is always in a state of mobilization, although the coming of the war had necessitated a vast amount of special preparation and a large increase of vessels and naval force. The secretary added: "I notice that sometimes I get a word of praise and sometimes Mr. Roosevelt, who was my assistant secretary, and who certainly deserved it, as does his successor; but let me tell you that there are men entitled to special gratitude and recognition who never will get half the praise they deserve. These are the chiefs of the various naval bureaus. They have borne the real burden of preparation. When war became imminent they were given large power and were told they would be held responsible for having the work of their bureaus done properly and efficiently. That work they have discharged with the utmost ability, efficiency, thoroughness and success. It is one of the misfortunes of every great era like this that many of the men who do the work and bear the burden are rarely mentioned and never get the credit which belongs to them. If I can do anything to secure these men just appreciation, I want to do it. They are all experts and men of experience in their various lines. It is pretty hard too for some of them who know that the glories of war are won, not in bureaus, but at the front in battle. They have sometimes pleaded hard, and it has not been easy for the department to refuse their requests for active service, or for them to accept the necessity of remaining where they are. Few know the extent of what they have undertaken and done, or their high professional competency, spirit and standard."

The attorney general has decided to surrender to the ambassadors of France and Germany, as the diplomatic representatives of Spain, the non-combatants and crews of the prize merchant vessels captured by ships of our navy since the declaration of war. The department of justice, having no means of feeding these prisoners, turned them over to the war department, but Secretary Alger has now declined to continue the arrangement. The representatives of Spain here were communicated with and their consent was secured to receive the prisoners and ship them back to Spain.

The third military expedition for the Philippines will leave San Francisco Monday on six transports, namely, the Ohio, Indiana, City of Para, Morgan City, Valencia and Newport. General Merritt, commanding the new department of the Pacific and prospective governor general of the Philippines, probably will accompany the expedition on the Indiana. Major General Otis, the next in command, will accompany the fourth expedition to the Philippines.

News has reached here that 12,000 tons of coal are being loaded on shipboard at Valparaiso, Chili. As coal is worth about $18 a ton there, the purchase excites great curiosity here, and it has been suspected that it was being made on Spanish account. If this should prove to be true, it would seem to indicate a purpose on the part of the Spanish naval commander, Camara, to carry the Cadiz fleet into the Pacific and use these colliers to supply the fleet with coal. In this case the object of attack probably would be the west coast of the United States instead of the Philippines. However, the whole thing is still a matter of conjecture.

DOINGS IN THE CAPITOL.

Washington, June 23.—Opponents of the annexation of Hawaii again occupied the attention of the senate yesterday. Mr. White (Dem., Cal.) resumed his speech, but, after speaking two hours, yielded the floor to Mr. Pettigrew, who discussed the resolutions for an hour and a half.

"No one," declared Mr. White, "is seeking for a fight with us, and no one ever will. If the Pacific coast is not well defended now, how will you make it easier to defend by acquiring other territory that also must be defended? If we consummate this scheme we will be told we must have the Philippines because Hawaii is not worth much unless we can have something else to use it for; and when we have annexed the Philippines we must have something else. So we will extend our action around the globe and enter upon an imperialistic policy."

A joint resolution was passed authorizing the president of the United States to invite, through the proper channels, the governments of England, France, Germany, Austria, Russia, Belgium, Switzerland, Mexico and Venezula to send details of infantry, artillery and cavalry to this country to participate in a military jubilee to be held in Madison square garden, New York, during two weeks, beginning Dec. 26, 1898, by the trustees of the Red Cross society.

The session of the house was uneventful with the exception of a brief, but severe denunciation by Mr. Simpson of Representative Grosvenor's speech at the Ohio Republican convention. The criticised portion was relative to the alleged failure of the Democrats and Populists to vote for appropriation bills succeeding the precipitation of the war and the original appropriation of $50,000,000 for the national defense.

Naval Heroes And Their Records

Some Deeds of American Heroes That Will Live In the World's History.

The Long Roll of Names Finds Many Who Are Now Serving on American Men-of-War

It isn't always the most talked of man who has had the most thrilling experiences afield or afloat. The American navy is a proof of this. Many men in it are practically unknown because they were unfortunate in having no press agent to boom their exploits. The press agent may be a clever versifier like Buchanan Read who immortalized Sheridan's ride with a few strokes of his pen, or an every day reporter, whose story strikes the office just when it is "short" of copy, but, however, it may be it does happen time and again through the years that some are blazoned into glory while others equally worthy pass their lives in the shadows of obscurity.

Capt. Silas W. Terry went through a baptism of fire in 1864 not less than that which the heroes of Santiago have passed through. This is what Admiral Porter said about Capt. Terry in a despatch to the Secretary of the Navy May 4, 1864:

"I endeavor to do justice to all officers under my command, but have failed to mention the gallant conduct of Ensign S. W. Terry on the expedition up the Red River. He was placed on board of the transport Benefit to take despatches to me at Springfield Landing. I had a field piece and a 24-pound howitzer placed on this vessel and a part of the crew of the flagship to go with her. About fifty miles from Grand Ecore Mr. Terry discovered a battery of four guns facing down the river on which he opened fire with his howitzers and steamed on. The battery opened a quick fire on him, striking the little vessel almost every time. The river Captain of the Benefit was killed and several of the men, but the little transport fought her way through and brought me the despatches, which were important. Such cool and brave conduct gives promise of a good officer; I commend him to the notice of the department."

Capt. Richard P. Leary when senior officer at Samoa in 1888 during the troubles seized an opportunity that made him the talk of the department for some time. The German warships threatened to bombard the town despite the protestations of the American consul. Leary did not have a big enough force to make any showing against the Germans, and decided to resort to other means. The consul put out to his ship in the evening and told him that the town would be bombarded at sunrise the next day.

"I don't think it will be," said Capt. Leary. The consul returned ashore. When night fell the captain doused his lights and stood in toward land. When the German captains woke up in the morning they found Leary's vessels between them and the shore. Capt. Leary sent a launch to ask what the Germans' intentions were. There was no bombardment.

Commander Edwin White looked into portholes of a great Spanish man of war back in 1872. Then he sailed into the harbor of Colon, Central America, and found the Spanish warship Pizarro blocking the American steamer Virginius of filibuster fame. White was then temporarily in charge of the Kansas, about one-fourth the efficiency of the Pizarro. White sent word to the Spanish captain to give the Virginius a free field. The Spaniard replied evasively. White ran his small warship between the Pizarro and the Virginius. The Spaniard cleared for action and ran his guns out. It seemed as if one broadside would utterly annihilate the Kansas. White ordered his vessel cleared for action and took a defiant position.

One of the most daring exploits of the civil war was that of James Forney, who as a lieutenant was sent ashore by Commander Bell at Texas on the Gulf coast to kill cattle for the crew of the Brooklyn. The men had completed their task when a body of Confederate cavalry was seen spinning along the beach. Forney's detachment signalled frantically for the ship's boats to be sent to take them off, but owing to a sudden shift in the tide this could not be done. When the cavalry was within a quarter of a mile Forney gave the order to plunge into the surf, the men having previously taken off their clothing for the swim. The cavalry opened fire on the swimmers and although several were wounded the entire detachment managed to pass through the rain of fire and the danger of sharks and reach the ship's side in safety. For this gallant act he was brevetted a captain. Capt. Forney was born in Philadelphia.

Commander Alexander Colden Rhind, who was born in New York, and Lieut. Preston took part in an undertaking which elicited from Rear Admiral Porter the statement that "they engaged in the most perilous adventure that was perhaps ever undertaken." This estimate of the danger of their undertaking from a man like Porter who was himself indifferent to peril was a lofty testimonial to their courage. In December, 1864, Rhind was detailed by Rear Admiral Porter to command the powder boat Louisiana. On the night of the 23d the vessel was exploded within 250 yards of Fort Fisher, the officers and men being taken off by a steamer. Admiral Porter in his official report said: "No one in the squadron considered that their lives would be saved, and Commander Rhind and Lieut. Preston had made an arrangement to sacrifice themselves in case the vessel was boarded, a thing likely to happen."

"Papa," said Willie, "why did you buy a golf coat?"

"To play golf in, my son," said Mr. Willis.

"Did you require it?"

"Of course I did."

"Then I want a topcoat to play tops in. I seen 'em advertised."

"Heavens!" shrieked the heroine, "I am undone!"

"Come away, John, audibly remarked the old lady in the audience as she rose. "I ain't a-goin' ter let you watch any disrobin' act!"

Haircuts In Vogue In Dog-dom This Summer.

Summer dogs do not worry about their raiment. They do not have to. Wherein they have a large advantage over the summer girl and the summer man. They live up to the adage, "Let them do your worrying," and never an extra pant do they pant on account of their attire from the beginning of summer until the end. Their mistresses who belong to the 400, or would like to, pant for them however, designing cuts for the animals they must take with them to Newport, Bar Harbor, Lenox and other places dogs of fashion affect during the vacation season.

It is interesting to watch a "Bud" laying out her ideas in diagram and discussing cuts with the dog trimmer who stands by, his clippers, shears, combs and other implements in hand, deferentially suggesting spots or knobs or puffs and rings, "to be much worn this year, Miss." The Bud has her own ideas likely which are fascinatingly fantastic to the mental eye but sadly unsatisfactory when the shearer tries to put them into practice.

Coats of arms do not come out well, done in hair, even in the fuzzy wool of the French poodle who looks quite sufficiently strenuous and droll in bands, rosettes, and knobs. The French poodle offers all the scope there is for artistic summer cuts and is proud of himself if he has been well clipped. When the job is over and he has realized what an enchanting guy he looks he jumps gratefully over his mistress' head, smiles away back under his ears and abandons himself to ecstacy.

This year he is girt about the loins with parallel rings, has a rosette on each southern quarter, a knob on the free end of his tail, and wristlets above his paws. Here and there a face is unmasked except for certain circles and ridges that give the head the appearance of a sooty moss grown skull. Tassels on the quarters instead of knobs are well esteemed at Lenox, and doubtless will be seen more or less at Newport. They display to better advantage when the poodle is in repose than when he is in action so those interested in the tassel summer cut generally study it while the wearer is asleep. Tassels aft and slick curls about the neck with a long mop tail make a happy combination for a poodle past middle life when the irrepressible is not paramount in the animal's disposition.

The burr knob will be worn a great deal too this season, as it has been in the past. It varies in size and in arrangement from year to year, but it is fundamentally the same old knob. Much ingenuity is displayed in deciding upon the location of these burr knobs and Bud and the trimmer devote days to the problem studying it with the aid of thistle burrs and a dummy made of an Astrakhan rug and chair legs. It takes the Bud's maid some little time to clean the rug afterwards, but the satisfaction of having settled the cut before work on the hairy dog begins amply repays the Bud for this sacrifice.

Poodles generally go in for more style in cuts than do other dogs, because of their display aptitudes, but the New Foundland has his summer suit each year with regularity. He is more sedate than the smaller dogs and calmer in his style the whole year round. Indeed his chief desire is to be cool and calm and he would not care to lose himself in contemplation of his artistic habiliaments. He takes a close gray cut from behind his ears to within 2½ inches of the tip of his tail. This 2½ inches furnishes a good whisp for flies and he manages it with great dexterity. Without the whisp the musca would annoy him in his nakedness as much as the heat would torture him if his full coat of black curly hair were left on. He shows a little shyness or self-consciousness the first day of wearing his summer gray just as a schoolboy who fancies the world has stopped to stare at his new clothes, but with the native bouyancy of his disposition this sense of conspicuousness dissipates and Richard is himself again cooler and death on flies. In Boston the New Foundlander needs not so severe clipping as in other and less cultured regions of these United States, and designs, providing they be of due severity, may be tolerable as not incompatible with essential dignity. In Boston, therefore, Richard's limbs are left in their pristine curly blackness both anteriorlily and posteriorlily, but the thorax may be ornamented with panels in a chequer-board design. Knobs, rosettes and whisps are disapproved emphatically. Beyond this geometrical figures are permitted to a limited extent. It is reported that on Beacon street Richard will wear the zero mark or emblem of the Peace Society. If he is cut in such a manner, however, he will pass his summer in the rear basement.

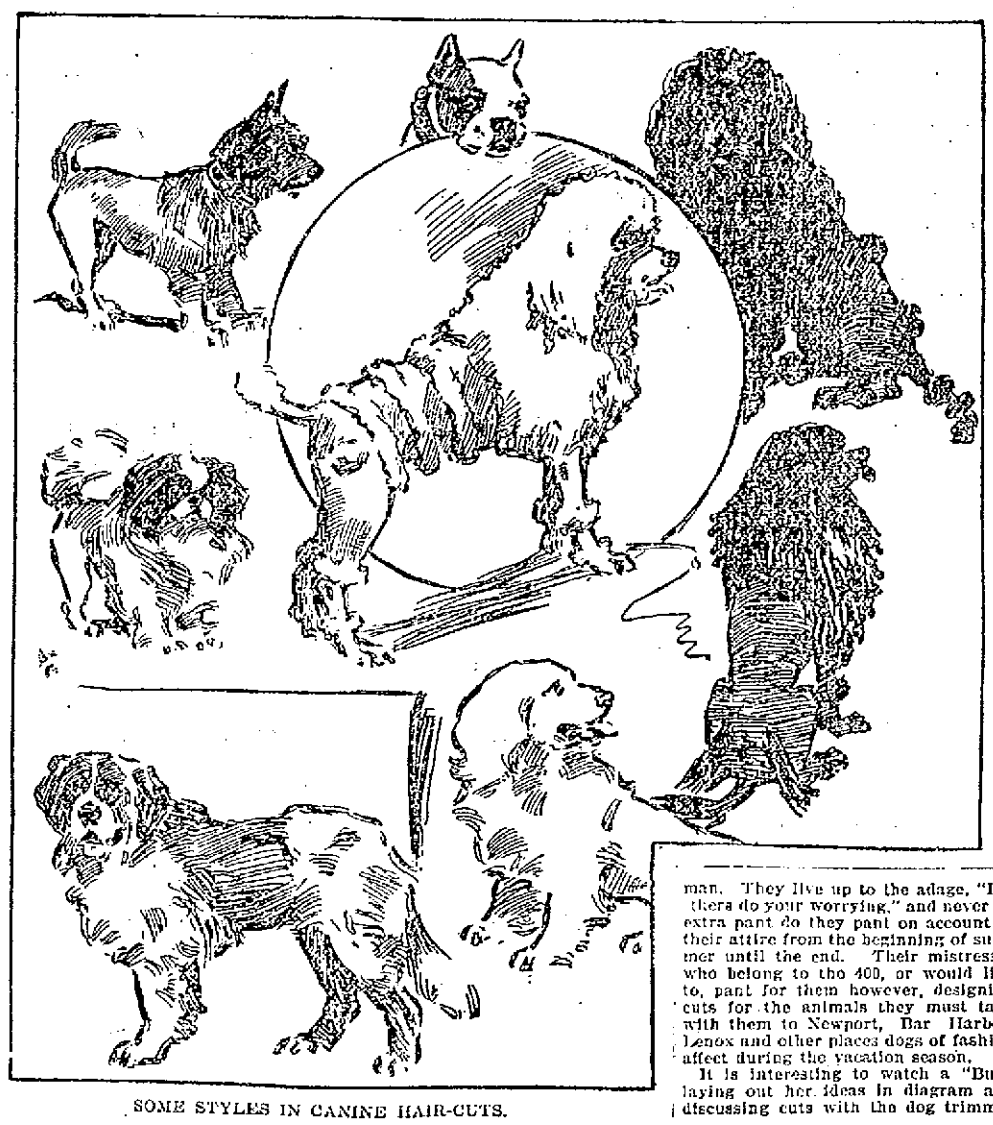

Skys and the Japanese poodles, or "Chin" as the natives call them, come in for more attention from Bud and the clipper each year. The art of shearing them is in its infancy in America, but with each summer noticeable advance is made, and though the wee dears look scrawny enough the first few days after the operation they are soon the better for it and even happier. They are so much cleaner and harbor fewer microbes. Their legs should be left with all the feathers on and the heads also, nor should the bodies be clipped as closely as possible. A good even mow medium close is best. This leaves the spines not too conspicuous and at the same time lets on the air against their overheated bodies. As to designs, these pets are too small in size to carry any. Some buds clip but half the body, the forward half or the after half, usually the latter, and this appeases the panting to a marked degree. There can hardly be said to be much style to these cuts considered by themselves, but the make for the harmony of the fitness of things, and by leave enough hair of natural length to discover the aristocracy of the breed.

At a dinner party in South Africa the hostess told the Kaffir boy to "bring the champagne." The boy left and returned without the wine. She commanded him again to bring the champagne with the same result. Then he whispered "No wine."

Nonsense," said the woman, "there is plenty."

"No," persisted the native, "me look at all the bottles; all say extra dry."

A second woman engaged a boy in September and at the end of the month gave him his wages. At the end of October she again proceeded to pay him, when he surprised her by objecting to the amount. He wanted to be paid more for thirty-one days than for thirty—not unreasonably. The woman remonstrated and broke into poetry: "Thirty days hath September," etc. "No," said the Kaffir coolly, "no month thirty-one day, all month thirty day. Your month thirty day, then thirty-one, then thirty-two. No, me no stop here," and no logic could induce him to consent to an arrangement that seemed likely to progress indefinitely in favor of his employer.—New York Tribune.

SOME STYLES IN CANINE HAIR-CUTS.

What The Mountain Man Looks Like.

He Has Abjured the Seaside and Is Half Golfer Half Hunter.

He Will Look Like An Alpine Hunter From the Waist Up.—The Rest of Him Will Do For Golf.

Then ho for the mountains,
The cliff and the scar!
Let us leave the blue sea
In the distance afar.

The Highland laddies call to his sweetheart centuries ago will be echoed by the swain who goes for recreating in this year of the Hispano-American war. The tendency toward mountainous outings has received a wonderful stimulus from the war. No self-respecting young man would face with joy the prospect of spooning on the seashore with the possibility of a great big Spanish cannon ball from somewhere out in the offing coming between him and his best girl, or ricochetting wantonly along a beach unmindful of the two lone figures half buried under sand and parasol.

The drift mountainward has been steady for the last two or three years. The wail of the hotel men by the sad sea waves has been largely founded on this. The absence of young men from the Atlantic seaside resorts is attributable to a change in taste, for there is a taste in the matter of outings as in the dress of either sex. One year it is the bicycle, another it is yachting and another it is tennis. And so the list is ever changing. The craze for loud golf hose with the natural desire to secure echoing facilities may have helped to build up the popularity of gorge and glen. Any way the mountaineer will be the really proper person this summer. Not even the European tourist will be more energic. He will be a picturesque individual, this mountain boy of 1898, vastly different from the Green Mountains Boys of 1776 who took up guns to fight the British. If clothed as the styles direct he will wear plaid golf hose that would make Handy MacGregor think he had never seen old Scotland. The stripes must be as broad as the stripes on the flag and the colors as vivid as a flash of lightning cutting through an Italian sunset.

The knickerbockers and jacket are to be nothing out of the ordinary but in the hat will lie the crowning glory of the season of 1898. When you see it for the first time, if you have ever toured through Germany, there will come back to you pictures of the young men you saw down in the Black Forest or nearer the Alps, when you thought them altogether the most dashing gallants you ever laid eyes on. Then if you went to Bayreuth to attend the great Wagnerian festivals you saw whole delegations of these young men get off the trains with those loose Alpine hats, with a feather or a squirrel's tail or some other flowing ornament stuck in them somewhere, giving the wearer a breezy Don Cesar de Bazan air that smacks of the gay gallant who makes love to the chorus girls in a comic opera. If you were young and impressionable you thought the headgear very captivating and romantic and wondered why the American men did not adopt it. You had yet to learn that the European, though bound down to older traditions in other respects, still exercises a liberty in clothing himself not enjoyed by the American. If he thinks a certain kind of hat is becoming he will wear it, no matter what style says. So it happens that this picturesque style of hat has survived and is now making its way across the Atlantic, to brighten the mountain solitudes of 1898, and give a touch of Alpine life to the Adirondacks, White Mountains, the Blue Ridge and the Rockies.

THE MOUNTAIN BOY OF '98.

Then the popularity of the mountains makes the "hunter" a fad for 1898. He will again don the stalking cape. This combines in itself a complete rig for the all-around sportsman, and effects three or four transformation scenes with a simplicity that will recommend it to the experienced traveller.

Its appearance when worn is much that of the ordinary travelling cape of fashion. To it is affixed what the tailors call an "apron," but which will best convey itself to the lay mind as the front of a Norfolk shooting coat, with cartridge pockets, and so forth. This is kept in place by being buttoned at the neck to the cape and with a strap and buckle at the waist region at the back. It is simplicity itself, for it can be detached or worn at will, according to the weather. In the occasional rigors of mountain shooting this cape and "apron" will, beyond doubt, prove themselves of great service. Beneath this cape a sleeved waistcoat is discovered, with an arrangement of pockets.

"The women, first," said she. "They all look so respectable. The men, second. They are so broad-shouldered, and they look so trustworthy, and third, American table manners, for I think the well-bred American eats in a nicer way than anybody else on earth.

CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.

The latest and more approved cure for rheumatism in Maine is for the afflicted persons to wear necktles made from the skins of the banded water snakes, which are plentiful in boggy places and muddy ponds. Hitherto rheumatic sufferers have rubbed themselves with angle worm oil, hoping to make themselves as limber as the worms are, or with fish oil, because fish can live out in the wet without getting lame. This year the fashion has changed, and no sufferer will think of using anything but the silky skins of the water snakes.

The snakes are skinned, after the manner employed on eels, and the the skins are boiled for several hours in a mixture of hemlock bark and linseed oil, after which they are stretched upon a smooth stick, and placed behind the stove to dry. When thoroughly cured they are made up into bows or four-in-hand ties, according to size, and are worn by those who believe in their efficacy. The colors are alternate rings of dark bottle green and straw yellow, and when these tints are set off with a bright scarf pin and placed in contact with a white linen shirt front, the effect is rather pleasing. The effect of the ties upon rheumatism has not been reported fully enough to pass accurate judgment, but the wearers believe they will be cured if the charms are worn long enough.

I met an especially charming woman the other day, who has just returned to America, her native land, after twenty years spent in Paris, says a writer in the Washington Post. Contrary to the custom of most Americans who have lived abroad, she is exceedingly enthusiastic in her admiration of America and everything and everybody American. I asked her what things had pleased her most.

CRISP GOSSIP.

He looked very determined when he entered the recruiting office and walked up to the officer in charge.

"The boys down our way," he said, "told me I was afraid to enlist. They've just been daring me ever since this war broke out, so something had to be done."

"And that's why you're here?" suggested the recruiting officer in a tone of inquiry.

"Yes, sir; that's why I'm here," answered the stranger. "There can't [illegible] at law practice [illegible] and my [illegible] and get away with the bluff. I'm here to git in line to do up the Spanish and don't want any one to forget it."

The officer picked up a pen and prepared to write.

"If you're sure you want to enlist," he said, "why——"

"Sure!" broke in the stranger. "Sure! Well, you just bet I'll prove those fellers liars or know the reason why. I don't think much of war as a general proposition, but there can't anybody stand around and dare me more'n six or eight times before something happens. Mebbe I might have stood what the boys had to say but when my wife told me I was afraid to fight it was just a leetle too much. All I'm afraid of is that you won't have me."

"Oh, we'll take you fast enough," replied the officer. "Give me your name and——"

"Mebbe I ought to tell you before you go too far," interrupted the valiant youth again, "that I am troubled with hammer toes—two of 'em, one on each foot."

"That doesn't make any difference," replied the recruiting officer.

"Why—why, I thought hammer toes interfered with a man's ability to march," suggested the applicant.

"It does," admitted the recruiting officer, "but we'll put you in the cavalry."

The applicant gave a deep sigh, and suggested that that would suit him first rate, but that he couldn't ride very well.

"Never mind," answered the recruiting officer. "You can soon learn. Now, if you will just give me your name, I'll put it down and send you to the doctors for——"

"That reminds me," broke in the man who wanted to enlist, "that I have been a cigarette smoker for the last ten years."

"No matter. We're not so particular as we were. Just—"

"I have a weak heart, too, and I'm rather short-winded."

"Oh, that's all right. If you're willing to take the chances, we are. Just give me your name and it will be all right."

The youth gave another long sigh before answering.

"Well, I'll tell you how it is," he said, "Mebbe my wife spoke in haste when she said I was afraid to go. I guess I'll just run back and ask her about it before taking a step that she may regret all her life."

The editor riseth in the morning and knoweth not what the day may bring forth. If he telleth all the news, he runneth a great risk of having a tin ear put on him, and if he telleth not the news, the people say he is a g., and there is no joy in it. The crafty man cajoleth him into giving him a 50-cent puff for a 5-cent cigar, and all fond mothers frown on him if he fails to flatter their freckled-face broods. JUNE WEDDINGS

AS THEY DID IN THE SUBURBS.

Many Prominent Young People United in Marriage.

The storm with all its fury did not detract from the happiness of the unusually large number of June brides who blossomed forth in all their beauty yesterday. It was a gala day for weddings, as the following list will show:

EMERSON—FENDERSON.

Even the names blended harmoniously at the marriage of Ralph Waldo Emerson and Miss Mabel Fenderson, who were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, 35 Gates street, last evening in the presence of a large number of congratulating relatives and friends, the ceremony being performed by Rev. C. E. Davis of Lynn, the bride's former pastor.

Mr. Emerson is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Emerson of Chelmsford Centre, a member of Troop F Cavalry, postmaster of the Centre village and a very popular young man. The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Stillman Fenderson, of this city, a very estimable young lady and a sub-teacher in the public schools. The house was very prettily decorated by Harvey B. Greene, the Highland florist. The bridal party entered the front parlor to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Miss Edith Alberta Andrews. During the ceremony, Mendelssohn's wedding music was played softly. The bride was attended by Miss Gertrude Palmer of Fall River and Charles Fletcher of Boston officiated as best man.

The bride wore a gown of white corded silk, trimmed with silk chiffon. She wore the conventional veil and carried lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid were white muslin and carried a beautiful bouquet of Victoria roses. The ushers were Messrs. Clay C. Bartlett, and A. Hawthorne Howard of Chelmsford Centre and Messrs. C. Fred Hurd and A. Howard Green of Lowell. A wedding reception followed from 7 to 8.30. Those who received with the bridal party were Mr. and Mrs. George Stillman Fenderson, father and mother of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. James P. Emerson, father and mother of the groom. The D. L. Page company catered for the event. Lemonade was served in an alcove in the main hall by Miss Edith Temple of Reading and Miss Harriet M. Emerson of South Chelmsford.

The bridesmaid was favored with a handsome bracelet from the bride. After the reception, the happy couple left for an extended wedding tour. Upon their return, they will reside in Chelmsford Centre.

Among the beautiful gifts displayed in one of the rooms above was a $100 bill, the gift of the groom's father, Mr. James P. Emerson, and alongside the bill was a check for $25, and two gold coins.

Among the guests were: Mrs. Frank S. Aiken and her daughter, Miss Florence Aiken, and Miss Clarissa Buffington of Fall River; Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Emerson, Miss Harriet Emerson and John B. Emerson of South Chelmsford; Mr. Harry B. Emerson, the groom's brother; Miss Abbie Ford of Chelmsford Centre.

ANDERSON—PIHL.

The marriage of Mr. Nils Martin Anderson of Tewksbury and Miss Hanna Pihl, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Pihl of Sweden, occurred last evening at the home of the bride's uncle, Mr. John Monson of 97 Forest street, Rev. Mr. Eckman, pastor of the Lutheran Swedish M. E. church officiated. The bride was attended by four bridesmaids, Anna Pihl, Ingrid Monson, Ingrid Pihl and Hanna Olson. The best man was Mr. Theodore Hanson and Miss Ida Pihl was maid of honor.

The bride wore a very pretty gown of white lansdowne trimmed with white lace, with the conventional veil caught up with white roses. She carried a bouquet of bride roses. The four bridesmaids were gowned in white muslin and they carried pink, white and yellow roses respectively. The maid of honor was very prettily attired in white muslin and she carried Catherine Mermet roses. The bridal party assembled up stairs and marched to the parlor, where the wedding ceremony was performed, the bridesmaids preceding, while Miss Eva Pihl Forsberg played the bridal chorus from Lohengrin. During the short impressive ceremony, Mendelssohn's bridal music was played softly.

The ushers were Ernest Pihl, Martin Pihl, and Otto Pihl. After the ceremony, an informal reception was held and a large number of guests came forward to congratulate the happy pair. A genuine Swedish wedding feast was served by waitresses gowned in white. The D. L. Page company furnished the ices.

The presents bestowed were very numerous and costly, which proves the popularity of the two young people.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Anders Thomasson, Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Dexter, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Tyler Shaw, Mr. John Munson, the bride's uncle, is a popular overseer in the United States Cartridge company. The young couple will make Tewksbury their future home.

BAILEY—HALSTEAD.

Miss Lilla B. Halstead and Harry E. Bailey, one of Lowell's well known and popular young men, were united in marriage by Rev. C. L. Merriam, yesterday, at 76 Fremont street.

The happy and popular couple were wedded in an alcove of the parlor, which was aglow with the rarest of cut flowers and tropical plants. The house throughout was laden with the presence and perfume of wild and cultivated flowers and the stairways, doors and mantles looked the perfection of loveliness in their artistic trimmings of daisies which were arranged in cross, heart and shield, effects. Many beautiful presents were received, which speak volumes for the love and esteem in which the young couple are held.

The newly wedded pair left Lowell at 9 o'clock last night on a wedding tour of indefinite duration. They will welcome their friends at 76 Fremont street after Sept. 1.

WALSH—MURRAY.

A very pretty marriage was solemnized at St. Michael's parochial residence, when Mr. Patrick Walsh of the Massachusetts Mfg. Co. and Miss Mary Murray, an estimable Centralville young lady were united in wedlock, Rev. William O'Brien pronounc-

She was attended by her sister, Miss Rose Murray, who wore violet silk and carried American Beauty roses. Mr. Patrick Murray, brother of the bride, was best man. Immediately after the ceremony, a bountiful wedding collation was served at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Susan Murray, 41 Hampshire street. During the evening an elaborate program was rendered consisting of vocal and instrumental selections prominent among which were the piano solos by Mr. George Carey and Miss Maude Quinn and vocal solos by Mr. John Gilbride and Misses Katherine F. Bailey and Annie McKenna. At 9 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Walsh left for an extended bridal tour including Washington, New York and a number of other large cities on the trip. On their return to this city, they will reside at 43 Bridge street where they will be pleased to meet acquaintances. Many out-of-town friends and relatives were present from Nashua, Lawrence, Haverhill, Andover, and surrounding towns. The wedding gifts, which are very numerous and costly, denote the esteem in which the young people are held by all who know them.

BOXING GOSSIP.

Over in New York speculation over the probable outcome of the Hawkins-Sullivan contest is brisk, the Californian ruling favorite at odds of 100 to 90. And at that good judges say that no lightweight contest of recent years will carry as much money as will be wagered on Friday night's battle.

Hawkins has a strong financial following and pool room keepers of San Francisco and other western cities have sent large commissions east to place money at prevailing odds. Sullivan's friends are not loath in picking up all the bets laid down by the Californian's admirers.

The proposed match between Frank Erne and George Lavigne is off, for the present, at least. Jack Herman, manager of the Olympic A. C. of Buffalo, offered a purse of $2500 for the contest, naming July 25. Lavigne refused on the ground that the purse wasn't large enough.

Warren Lewis has been deposed as manager of the Greater New York A. C. Jack Dowdell, one of the club officials, succeeded him.

Jack Bonner and Australian Jim Ryan have accepted terms for a twenty-round contest at catchweight at the Metropolitan A. C. of Wheeling, W. Va., on July 6. Ryan is also matched to meet Mysterious Billy Smith at Louisville July 27. Just why Ryan should be in demand is what is puzzling the best informed sport followers. He is noted as a "jobber" and last spring quit in three rounds with Pepper Griffin, who never shone as a dangerous man in any company. It is true that Ryan whales "Doc." Payne, but the latter was knocked out by his head striking the floor rather than from the effect of his opponent's blows. Jim will have his hands full with Billy Smith, and if Bonner doesn't whip him in jig time, it will be a big surprise.

Says George Tuohey in the Post:

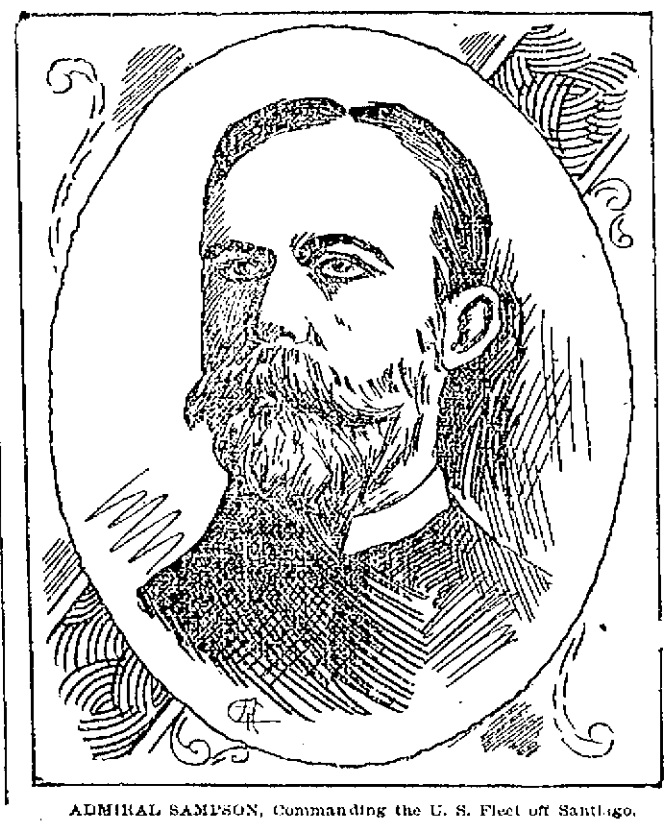

The New York fistic scribes are waking up to the fact, long since told in this column, that George Byers, the Boston middleweight, is good enough for the best. He has been badly managed, however, and this accounts for his failure to get to a position and rank his ability entitles him to occupy. He demonstrated beyond all doubt his skill and gameness when he bested Dan Murphy in their twenty-round meeting at Waterbury and he clinched his popularity among Connecticut lovers of boxing by outpointing the much touted Californian, middle weight, Charley Goff, although a draw was declared. Time and again Byers has fought under discouraging conditions but up to date has never been defeated.

Johnny Pollock, the New York fistic expert, asks: "Is Dave Sullivan afraid of Kelly?" Not on your life. When Dave gets ready to meet Kelly, I am inclined to believe that Sammy will be the more difficult to bring to terms. Dave is a hard-headed and hard-fisted little fellow and he doesn't know what fear means. He is careful about making matches and to this trait may be attributed much of his success in the ring.

Kelly is undoubtedly deserving of a return match, for there are many who believe that their last meeting should have been declared a draw. Sam is naturally anxious to try to reverse the result of that contest, but he should bear in mind the fate of Patsy Haley, who was satisfied that he could whip Dave until the latter proved conclusively that he was Patsy's master by administering a second defeat. It is to Kelly's credit that he seeks another match with Dave, but it is unfair to the latter to accuse him of cowardice or even to hint it.

A. O. H. CONVENTION.

Next Sunday the delegates to the national convention of the A.O.H. at Trenton, N. J. will leave Boston by the Fall River boat. A reception will be tendered the delegates by the Boston divisions at Broadway hall, South Boston at 2 o'clock. Afterwards there will be a parade of escort to the train. Two uniformed companies will accompany the delegates. After the convention, the New England delegates will make a side trip to Camp Algar. It seems to be a foregone conclusion that the Hon. E. J. Slattery will be elected national president. James O'Sullivan and John P. Mahoney are delegates for Middlesex county.

TO CELEBRATE FOURTH.

The members of the Highland club will celebrate July 4 in a fitting manner. Arrangements are being perfected for an excellent program, including a band concert afternoon and evening, a grand display of fireworks in the evening, and dancing in the evening. The club will keep open house for the benefit of the members and their friends and light refreshments will be continuously served.

ORDINATION IN LAWRENCE.

At the Second Baptist church yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, a council, composed of delegations from the Baptist churches of the Merrimac valley convened to examine C. L. Charron, who is a candidate for the gospel ministery. Mr. Charron is engaged in the work among the French people of the community. The First and Second churches unite in caring for this work. In the evening at 7.30 o'clock the exercises of ordination took place. Rev. Smith T. Ford of Lowell preached the sermon and the other exercises were of a high order.

COMMUNICATION.

Dear Editor—Do the landlords of Lowell ever think of lowering the rents which take every cent from the poor working man whose pay maybe is five dollars per week? But he has to pay it all out for rent. Provisions have risen and so has every thing necessary to the household, but still the rent is no cheaper. No matter how hard the times are rents will be no cheaper. I am a poor woman and pay an awful high rent. When the fathers of families get home Saturday night, one child cries, "I want some boots;" another one cries, "I want a new dress, papa. Please buy them tonight." But the landlord will not wait. He must be paid or else have his tenement vacated. Is it not time to reduce the rents that are so high?

A Cuban From Santiago Reaches Garcia's Camp—He Says That the Spanish Soldiers are on Half Rations—Uprising in Santiago Feared.

IN GENERAL GARCIA'S CAMP, AURREN DERAS SANTIAGO DE CUBA, June 22, per the Associated Press Despatch Boat Wanda, via Kingston, Ja., June 23. (7a. m.)—A Cuban who left the city of Santiago on Monday night arrived at General Garcia's camp on Tuesday morning with accurate maps of the harbor and of the earthworks surrounding it. The ships of Admiral Cervera have moved from the positions they were i nthree days ago, and they now lie in almost a circle, surrounding a small island and lighthouse about half way up the four mile harbor. The armored cruiser Cristobal Colon, which is uninjured, lies to the west, commanding with her port battery the narrow neck of the harbor while the Vizcaya, also uninjured, lies to the east, her starboard battery looking down upon the same neck. Both of the Spanish torpedo boats are temporarily injured, one struck by fragments of the shells that sunk the Reina Mercedes and the other having her boiler tubes and engines in course of repair.

The most important statement made was in substance that the torpedo boats have not since their arrival here, made any attempt to leave, being unable to do so. The ships have only half their supplies of coal, although some coal arrived by overland route two weeks ago.

The shell that sunk the Reina Mercedes was fired during the first bombardment by the Massachusetts. Beyond this loss and some loss of life there was little or no damage done. The earthworks were disturbed and one smooth bore gun was dismounted on the west battery. Seven new guns are now being put up facing the sea, three of which on the west, are ship's guns of the six-inch rapid fire type and automatic guns of all descriptions are being dismounted from the ships and mounted on the earthworks surrounding the city.

A new line of trenches has been dug about a mile and a half from the city. The Spanish soldiers known as the regular troops, are on half rations and no rations or supplies are furnished to the local Spanish forces numbering about 3000 men. They are compelled to forage for themselves.

The spirit of discontent, it seems, is very widespread among the Spanish troops and an uprising in Santiago is feared. The crews of the Spanish warships are on half rations.

CONFERENCE HELD.

A conference was held between Gen. Shafter and Gen. Garcia, and the fate of Santiago was decided upon. They will act in conjunction with the fleet.

Yale Comes in Second and Harvard a Poor Third--The Time: Cornell 23.48, Yale 24.02, Harvard 24.35--Cornell's Victory Wildly Cheered.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

New London, Conn., June 23.—The first collegiate boat race on the Thames since 1895 was rowed this afternoon, Cornell, Yale and Harvard meeting for the second time in a triangular contest. Cornell won the last race at Poughkeepsie, and had, therefore, the right to choose this year's course, but gracefully yielded to the solicitation of the two New England colleges to race on the Thames, which, for 13 years, has been the scene of a score or more of college races, principally between Harvard and Yale.

The two latter colleges have now been rowing races regularly, 1896 excepted, since 1876, and previous to that date had met in races with half a dozen other colleges.

The following is a summary of the Harvard and Yale 'Varsity races at New London:

June 28, 1878—Harvard, 20.44¾; Yale, 21.29.

June 30, 1882—Harvard 20.47; Yale, 20.50½.

June 28, 1883—Harvard 24.26; Yale 25.59

June 26, 1884—Yale 20.31; Harvard 20.46.

June 26, 1885—Harvard 25.15½; Yale, 25.20.

July 2, 1886—Yale 20.41¼; Harvard, 20.05 ¾.

The three famous coaches, COURTNEY for Cornell, COOK for Yale, and LEHMAN for Harvard.

Notwithstanding the fact that the weather conditions for the big triangular 'Varsity race between Cornell and Yale and Harvard this morning were fully as propitious as at the same time yesterday, the thousands or more boating enthusiasts who remained over night in town under the most adverse circumstances viewed the sky and wind after yesterday's unfortunate experience, with suspicion. The damp, northerly winds still blew down the river at dawn, and while it had but little life it brought from over the Connecticut hills a mass of towering clouds that proved anything but attractive to those who had tickets for the observation train

The wind, however, did not materially affect the water and during the early morning hours there were the best of prospects that the crews would fight it out for the four miles at the scheduled time, half-past twelve

Fully half of the crowd of yesterday remained over night although there were scores who could find no accommodation and were forced to walk the streets all night

The crowd began to gather on the big draw bridge and on the banks of the river near the finish about noon and the excursion boats moved up the line The observation train slowly crawled up to the starting line and the thousands of spectators waited for news that the crews were off.

Yesterday the tickets for the observation train were selling at a premium but this morning it was almost hard to give them away

The sporting fraternity found enough to discuss last night as to which of the crews would suffer the most by the postponement. It was generally admitted that as both Yale and Harvard had been trained for the day and as Cornell had still another race next week, the latter might be cosidered as having the best of it, for the reason that the crew would not be over the danger point. The betting was light for about all those who cared for it had placed their money and only the late comers were looking for a chance to back their favorites today.

The disappointment of yesterday's postponement did not appear to have affected the Cornell oarsmen. The Varsity crew did not go out for a row, but Coach Courney sent the freshmen out for a paddle about 10 o'clock. The water at the time was in beautiful condition.

In the boathouse, Mr. Courtney was to be found. He said to the Associated Press man: "The statement accredited to me, that I refused to have the race rowed at 4 o'clock yesterday is untrue. I wanted the race rowed. Moreover, that race should have been rowed yesterday afternoon, if the crews were ready to start and I understand they were."

Redtop, the Harvard headquarters, was early awake this morning and the opening of the day found the oarsmen of Harvard as well prepared for the important work of the day as they were yesterday. The men spent a good night and tumbled out of bed at 7 o'clock. Every eye was turned upon the water of the Thames and at the great Harvard flag in front of the quarters which served as a weather vane for the oarsmen. Harvard was satisfied with the early morning conditions and preparations for the university race were speedily completed.

At 10.15 the members of the Varsity eight were given a light lunch, after which they went to the boat house. The riggers took a last look at the shell and at 11.30 Harvard was ready to go to the starting line as soon as the word could be given.

At Yale quarters in Broadview this morning, the men, the coach, and the attendants were taking things as quietly as if the events of the day were as unimportant as those of a day of training. Bob Cook contented himself with strolling to the river bank to take

Sampson and Shafter Report Debarkation Without Resistance.

Successful Ruse Employed by the Warships—Conference With Gen. Garcia—Prisoners Taken on Prize Vessels to be Sent Back to Spain—One Man Killed on the Texas.

Washington, June 23.—Official dispatches received last night by both Secretary Alger and Secretary Long indicated that the landing of troops near Santiago was progressing most favorably. The first landing was effected at Daiquiri Wednesday morning and met with comparatively slight resistance. This was stated in a dispatch received by Secretary Alger, which though brief was full of news and meaning. It was sent from Playa Del Este, and read as follows:

"Off Daiquiri, Cuba, June 22.—Landing at Daiquiri this morning successful. Very little if any resistance.

(Sig.) "Shafter."

Secretary Alger expressed himself as delighted at the expedition with which the landing was being effected and with the fact that no serious obstacle was being offered by the enemy. He construed the text of Shafter's message to mean that the enemy had made merely a normal and ineffective resistance by firing from the hills at long range.

Shortly after Secretary Alger received his dispatch Secretary Long received a more extended cablegram from Admiral Sampson. It, too, was dated at Playa Del Este. The text translated from the navy department cipher is as follows:

"Landing of the army is progressing favorably at Daiquiri. There is very little if any resistance. The New Orleans, Detroit, Castine, Wasp and Suwanee shelled the vicinity before the landing. We made a demonstration at Cabanas to engage the attention of the enemy. The Texas engaged the west battery for some hours. She had one man killed. Ten submarine mines have been recovered from the channel of Guantanamo. Communication by telegraph has been established at Guantanamo. (Sig.) Sampson."

In both army and navy circles the information contained in the dispatches of General Shafter and Admiral Sampson was received with intense satisfaction. The landing of so large a body of troops as General Shafter's is a task of immense proportions. A prominent official of the war department said that the complete debarkation of the troops, animals, field guns and supplies within a week after their arrival off the Cuban coast would be a task well accomplished. It is probable that only a partial landing of the troops was effected, and that the landing will be continued from day to day until completed. It is not unlikely too that the troops will be landed at several places along the coast, of course within a short distance of the headquarters which General Shafter will establish.

Admiral Sampson's dispatch indicated that he was carrying out his instructions thoroughly to clear a way for the landing of troops. The demonstration which he made with the Texas before Cabanas, which is just east of Guantanamo, may easily have led the Spaniards to suppose that a general landing was to be attempted in that immediate vicinity. It was evident from the text of Sampson's dispatch that a considerable landing had already been effected near Guantanamo, as he noted that communication by telegraph had been reestablished at that point, and that the channel had been cleared of submarine mines. In the opinion of naval officers the landing at Guantanamo was of marines rather than of land forces.

The reinforcement of General Shafter actually began yesterday in the departure of a regiment and a battalion of the troops at Camp Alger for Santiago. They go to Newport News and then by steamer to Santiago. If expectations are realized, these troops are likely to occupy less time in the passage than did the first contingent which left Tampa, notwithstanding the distance is twice as long. Formal orders were issued placing General Henry in charge of the new division of troops composed of Duffield's and Garretson's brigades. Probably some of the troops now at Tampa will be attached also, in which case they will be dispatched in separate transports.

The Thirty-third Michigan and one battalion of the Thirty-fourth Michigan were selected to go first, comprising 1350 men and 53 officers. It is expected that the Harvard will be the ship first ordered. The remaining regiments and battalions of General Duffield's command will leave on Saturday next, taking the Yale. The entire expedition will then proceed under command of General Duffield, whose brigade consists of the Ninth Massachusetts, the Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Michigan and the Third Virginia regiments. General Duffield had a conference with Secretary Alger on Tuesday night, during which the details of this move were gone over. The general has the fullest confidence of the secretary, being a Detroit man and bearing a personal relation to Secretary Alger. General Duffield is regarded as one of the best equipped officers of the volunteer service. He had a long and distinguished service during the civil war, going out with the Ninth Michigan

Held Over the Remains of Mrs. Mansfield

AT ST. MICHAEL'S CHURCH THIS MORNING.

Large Attendance at the Funeral.

Solemn service was held in St. Michael's church this morning over the remains of Mrs. MaRhow Mansfield.

Within the church every seat was occupied, the attendance testifying to the grand esteem in which the deceased was held by those who knew her and respected her for her many fine traits of character and her sweet, beautiful disposition.

In the large congregation were many of Lowell's leading citizens and several city officials, with whom the young husband of the deceased has been associated during his service in the city council. The funeral cortege, which left the home on Shedd street, reached the church shortly after 10 o'clock. The seats in the main aisle were reserved for the relatives and mourners and so many of these were there that they occupied every pew and some were compelled to sit in the side aisles.

Solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. John Olliday with Rev. Fr. Sullivan of Somerville, deacon and Rev. David J. Murphy of Salem, sub-deacon. The master of ceremonies was Rev. Richard Boland. The altar was heavily draped and the beautiful candelabra had coverings of black, relieved with bows of white. The handsome casket, which contained the remains rested on a catafalque, which was also draped in mourning.

The choir was composed of the choice of the Catholic choirs of the city. There were singers from St. Peter's, the Immaculate Conception, St. Patrick's, the Sacred Heart, as well as St. Michael's church. John Warburton directed and the organist was Miss Teresa Corbett. Schmidt's mass was sung, the chorus parts being sung by the choir of forty voices being particularly strong. At the offertory the "Domine" was sung with solo by Mrs. Mabel Ware Murphy.

At the conclusion of the mass Mrs. Murphy sang the hymn, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought." The final prayers were pronounced and just prior to the time of leaving the church Mr. James E. Donnelly sang, "I Love To Hear My Savior's Voice" the rich baritone notes filling the edifice. The casket was borne from the church by the pall bearers, Messrs. William Foley, of Boston, Charles Burns, John Sullivan, James J. Gallagher, John H. Barry and Bernard Callahan. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Mr. Charles R. Murray, assisted by Mr. Joseph Sullivan.

The funeral cortege numbered about forty carriages and proceeded to the Catholic cemetery. Here a service for the dead was held and the body was lowered to its resting place in the family lot. Around the grave were assembled the many relatives and friends of the deceased and as the grave was covered all knelt in prayer. On top of the mound of earth were placed some beautiful floral tributes, which were sent by friends, regardless of the family's request that there be no floral tributes. At the head was a pillow inscribed "Chris" and arranged around the sides were standing wreaths, crosses, anchors, and various other designs, while at intervals were strewn pretty sprays.

TRAINMAN INJURED.

Conductor Jacob Murphy of Billerica, a brother of J. Stuart Murphy, was knocked from the car at Ayer Junction yesterday morning and very badly hurt.

Conductor Murphy runs on the Stony Brook train between this city and Ayer Junction and has been in the company's employ for many years.

At the time of the accident, he was standing on the steps of one of the cars which were moving at a rapid rate and in some manner unknown came in contact with a telegraph pole. He was hurled to the ground and rendered unconscious, in which condition he remained for some time. He was picked up by railroad employes and taken home.

WITHOUT LOSS OF LIFE

Not Even an Accident Attended the Landing of Troops.

Great Cheering When the United States Army Landed on Cuban Soil—Mounted Cubans Join Our Forces.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

On Board the Associated Press Despatch boat Wanda off Baiquiri, Wednesday, June 22, (noon) via Playa Delest Guantanamo Bay, Wednesday afternoon, June 22.—At nine o'clock the hour supposed to have been fixed for commencing the disembarkation, came and passed the exepidition was in suspense, but the squadron lay rocking complacently outside the little bay.

About 9.15 a. m., the bombardment of the hills surrounding the village of Jurague, some six miles off, suddenly began to distract our attention from the town affairs. Then steam pinnacles trailing strings of empty boats began speeding to and fro among the transports and gradually, though imperceptibly, filling up with troops. At 9.45 Cuban scouts appeared west of Baiquiri, and immediately the New Orleans, Machias, Detroit Suwanee and Wasp commenced bombarding. Forty five rounds were fired into the bush during the first quarter of an hour, and many rounds from the quick-firing guns. Not a shot was fired in response.

At 9.50 the first boat load, containing the men of the Eighth and First infantry, started for the shore, followed by the Twenty-Fifth (colored), the Tenth and Twelfth Infantry at 10.10. Prodigious cheering from the shore caught up by the nearest ships and flying from vessel to vessel through the squadron, announced the momentous fact that the American army had begun a landing on Cuban soil, the honor of setting the first foot on the island falling to a detachment of the Eighth infantry that was towed ashore by the tug Wampatuck.

This important operation completed without loss of life or accident, the troops on land formed and moved up and away to quarters without confusion. A force of mounted Cubans, which had been under cover during the bombardment, now arrived and congratulations were exchanged. The inhabitants of the village, assured that the worst was over, came out—colored women and children creeping into sight from subterranean shelters.

At 11.20 a detachment of the Second Mass. volunteers started for the shore and by noon probably three thousand men had landed. Other detachments were following as rapidly as the steam launches could be made available.

The sea was suspiciously calm and the sky clear. A cool breeze was blowing. The troops were in the highest spirits and the strains of yesterday were greeting every string of boats going in. The correspondent of the Associated Press going ashore at 12.10 p. m. found that the Spaniards had done little wanton mischief. A roundhouse, a locomotive, several cars and the rail way office had been destroyed, but the bulk of the town was left standing intact. The firing on Juroga still continues, as this despatch passed, but it is desultory and is directed over the first line of hills to clear the country beyond.

a look at the course and consider the weather conditions. He returned shortly afterwards to the quarters and summoning his university oarsmen instructed them as to the tactics to be used during the race under the weather conditions which promised.

At 11.36, the Cornell launch with the boat in tow started up the river toward the starting point. The launch kept on toward the Harvard headquarters where Cornell decided to board her shell fro mthe Harvard float. The referee's boat ran two miles down the course and then turned back toward the starting line. A few minutes later, the observation train, consisting of 41 tier-seated flat cars, well loaded with spectators, pulled for the starting point. The boats on the river began to fall in line giving clear course to crews. At 12.08, the referees boat pulled into the Harvard float and signalled, by whistles to Yale to get ready. In the meantime, the Cornell launch was at the starting point. The Cornell crew entered their shell at the Harvard float at 12.06. The water was as smooth as glass.

It was just 12.17 when the Cornell boys rowed for the starting point and a minute later, Harvard dropped her shell into the water. The two boats were near the starting point. At 12.22 Yale was on her way to the scratch. The crews lined up at 12.32, Cornell having the course at the west bank of the river; Yale was next in position and Harvard on the outside.

The start was made at 12.37, Harvard taking the water first, Yale second, and Cornell a stroke behind. Yale caught Harvard at the 1200 yards mark. At the quarter mile Yale had a clear lead over Harvard and was slightly ahead of the Cambridge men. All were rowing about 34 strokes to the minute. At the half-mile mark, Cornell crossed first, Yale one boat-length behind, and Harvard two boat-lengths behind.

At the one-mile mark, Yale was rowing 33 strokes and Cornell and Harvard were rowing 34 also. Cornell crossed the mile line in six minutes, 34 seconds and a half. Yale followed half a boat length behind, and Harvard was two boat-lengths in the rear.

At the two-mile mark, Cornell still led, pulling a stroke of 38, Yale 35, and Harvard two lengths in the rear.

Coming to the third mile, Cornell was two open boat lengths and a half in the lead. Harvard five lengths behind Yale.

At the third mile, Cornell was still two open lengths in the lead of Yale and was rowing 32 stroke, while Harvard was six lengths behind. Yale was now pulling up with 34 stroke. The time at the third mile was 18.18½.

At the three and a half mile, Cornell led by one length, with Harvard six lengths behind.

Approaching the end of the three and a half mile, all th crews pulled beautifully with 32 stroke.

Cornell maintained her position at the three and a half mile mark.

Entering the last half, Cornell maintained her position at the head of the procession but Yale determined to fight it out Harvard was hopelessly in the rear.

Down the finish, the crews pulled furiously. Cornell's crew bent to their work and moved beautifully. Yale fought hard to cut down the lead. At the finishing point, the crowd was yelling itself mad. Strongly Cornell pulled over the line in 23.48, two and one-half lengths ahead of Yale. Harvard was 12 boat-lengths behind Yale.

The official time was: Cornell, first, 23.48; Yale second, 24.02; Harvard, third, 24.32.

MADE ENOUGH RUNS IN THE EIGHTH TO COME OUT AHEAD.

The Lowell High school team went down to Haverhill yesterday and gathered in 19 runs and the game on the deliveries of O'Connor and Fountain, the opposing twirlers. It was a most exciting contest until Fountain went to pieces in the eighth when Capt. Boyle's team made enough runs to win. Yesterday's defeat was the second dose Lowell had administered to the down-river boys, who would much rather receive the medicine from any other team in the league. If the Lowell bunch only wins that game tomorrow with Lawrence, then the trophy will assuredly come Lowellward and the High school will recognize the efforts of her boys.

THE GRADUATION

First Portion of High School Exercises Held

IN HIGH SCHOOL HALL YESTERDAY.

Several Creditable Essays Delivered.

The first portion of the graduation exercises of the High school was held yesterday afternoon in High school hall.

Potted plants were placed on the platform and the large semi-chorus occupied seats on the stage.

The opening number, "Let Our Voices Be Glad," was sung by the chorus ,directed by Dr. Rix. The paper read by Miss Margaret S. Jamieson on "Coleridge's Ancient Mariner" was written by Miss Helen D. Swain.

The grand plea that he made for the American colonies was recalled in Clinton H. Robinson's essay on "Burke's Speech on Conciliation with America," read by Henry A. Ferrin.

"The Vision of Sir Launfal," written by Miss Florence A. Manahan, was read by Miss Annie V. Donoghue. There was poetical sentiment in the written story.

After a "Swing Song" by the chorus Miss Kate M. Snow read an original paper on "Sir Roger de Coverley, that fine old English gentleman who boasted that his coat had been in and out of season twelve times, and whose servants so loved him that they preferred to remain in his service rather than go into business through his generosity.

An extract from one of Hon. John D. Long's memorial addresses was finely given by Lloyd B. Haworth.

Miss Bertha L. Johnson read a very clever paper on "The Flight of the Kalmucks." She told the tragic story of the exodus from Russia, across the desert into China, in a narrative that had action and color.

"Exercise; Its History and Its Need," was the title of a paper by Arthur W. McLean. He argued very strongly for a more general physical training as necessary to the advancement of the race, and predicted a new era of strength for America.

The chorus sang a waltz song and Miss Florence E. Williams recited Edgar Fawcett's "The Tears of Tullia," a difficult poem to handle.

James W. Mudge, spoke for an Anglo-American alliance in his "England and America."

Miss Ethel T. Neale recited Thomas D. English's "Akertos," with spirit and Herbert D. Sixby read the final essay on "Admiral Nelson," one of the best things in the afternoon The chorus sang the new "Hail Columbia" as the finale to the program.

CRISP GOSSIP.

It is stated that one of our Lowell teachers recntly called the attention of her pupils to the fact that bright and cheerful colors prevail in nature. She asked them why, in their opinion, God ordered that the foliage in vegetation should be green rather than black. Promptly one of the small boys replied: "Because he is an Irishman." It is needless to say what was his country, but the "Kid" is now receiving considerable "kidding" in that part of Lowell known as Councilman Lang's "neck of the woods."

John Morley has been received into the Roman Catholic church at the Brompton Oratory ,according to the Irish Independent.

Leo XIII had the highest admiration for Mr. Gladstone, whom he regarded as the greatest Englishman of modern times, and during the illness of Mr. Gladstone, his holiness followed the daily bulletins with the keenest sympathy. His death is the occasion of great grief to the Pope. His holiness has on several occasions told Mgr. Angeli, his private secretary and confidant, that he would die soon after the death of one of the great ones of the century—that is, after the death of either Queen Victoria, Mr. Gladstone or Prince Bismarck. It was therefore, with great caution that Cardinal Rampolla broke the news of Mr. Gladstone's death to him. The news reached the Vatican about eleven o'clock, while the Pope was at mass. After mass Cardinal Rampolla entered the papal apartment and shortly afterwards informed the pope, who said: "Requiem eternam dona ei, Domine", to which the minister replied: "Amen." His holiness was much affected. Last Friday he requested to be kept daily informed of the health of Queen Victoria and Prince Bismarck. His mind is running on his own end and a frequent remark of his to Mgr. Angeli is: "Remember Pius IX ascended to Heaven a month after Victor Emmanuel."—Vatican correspondence London Daily Mail.

TRANSFERS EXCLUDED.

A change has been adopted on the Lowell, Lawrence & Haverhill Street railway in the line of ringing fares. The management of the road has decided to discontinue the registering of transfers by the conductors. Hereafter when a person boards a car with a transfer, it will be taken up as usual but not rung in by the conductor as a fare. Since the change went into effect it has been noticed on occasions that the indicator registered eight or ten fares less than there were passengers on the car and passengers wondered how that could be. The above mention of the change explains all.

AT THE CIRCUS

Big Crowds Visit the Fair Grounds Yesterday

AND SAW AN EXCEPTIONALLY CLEVER SHOW.

Some of the Many Fine Features.

At the risk of being called behind the times, I'll express the opinion that there is no circus like the old two-ring affair where one gets a chance to see everything at once without any danger of wrecking his nervous system in "rubbering" his neck out of all proportion, especially when every performer is an artist and every act a feature.

Such a circus is the Walter L. Main circus, and I suppose that following in the argument to its conclusion, there is no circus like the Main circus. There are certainly no more enjoyable circuses.

Yesterday being circus day, the streets were packed with all kinds of humanity for the good impression made by the Main show last year was still about and all turned out to see its street parade which was good, even to the music, an unusual feature of circuses.

But in the tent performance, lies the charm of this particular circus, and despite the terrific downpour of rain and hail the big tent was comfortably filled at the afternoon show. As it cleared up toward evening, it was not surprising to find the tent crowded, to the doors almost when the blast of the trumpet announced the coming of the grand opening pageant which introduced the evning's how. A feature of the pageant was young "Dewey" the smallest elephant in the world, who came into the world on Decoration Day and was immediately christened after the hero of Manila. "Dewey" has has been written up at length in the New York papers recently and hence suffice it to state that he is the most interesting little elephant that ever wiggled a trunk.

When the pageant was over the performance was formally opened with an exhibition of man's superiority over beast, in the shape of a den of performing wild animals directed and controlled by one man. To see elephants, horses and dogs perform may be common and not at all startling, but to see a shaggy maned and ferocious African lion jump on the back of a horse and ride around the ring, doing also a hurdle act from the animal's back and to see any ugly-looking leopard jump over elephants and jump through hoops of fire are sights worth going miles to see. It certainly excels any exhibition of trained wild animals that the country has ever seen.

But that is only one feature. There are others For instance, there's Crandall ,the clown donkey rider, who outrides any trick rider in the country and his side splitting antics filled the area with continual roars of laughter.

The clowns, the delight of the children, are numerous and clever workers. In latter day circuses, the clowns are inclined to be loafers but in this show, each one has some comedy part of his own and each one executed his part with button-bursting completeness. But to enumerate the features would fill columns as each individual act is worthy of mention. The aerial and trapeze acts, particularly that of the Zenos are among the finest, while the acrobatic and tumbling turns are so far advanced that the double somersault that once we greeted with open-mouthed wonder, in the Main show is only one of the hard turns of the performers. The performing horses were marvels of equine grace and beauty while their riders know no superiors.

Special mention in this feature must be given to Tony Lenando, the most graceful bareback rider in the world, who performed first with two horses and then with four, in the latter act the handsome young performer appearing in evening attire. Prof. Lenando's act was one of the most daring ever seen in any circus and last night one's admiration for him must have been increased upon learning that though apparently gay and dashing, amid smiles and bows in response to the plaudits of the admiring throug, he was ill at heart, his beautiful and talented wife, one of the cleverest indy riders in the circus, being dangerously ill at the Framingham hospital.

The show concluded with well contested and exciting hippodrome races and the great audience left the tent with the firm conviction that there is no better circus on the road than that of W. L. Main.

NURSE GRADUATED.

At St. John's hospital last evening Miss Catherine A. Doogan of Waltham, having completed the two-year course, received her diploma as a trained nurse. All the Sisters of Charity and the pupil nurses were present at the interesting ceremony. The diploma was presented by Rev. John McKenna of St. Peter's church, a cousin of the nurse. Rev. William D. Joyce, O.M.I., was present. After the exercises a little feast was enjoyed in the nurses' refectory, which was patriotically trimmed for the occasion.

FORGOT THE CIRCUS.

RECRUITS LEAVE

For Camp Alger to Join the 6th. Regt.

NAMES OF THE SUCCESSFUL APPLICANTS.

News of the Old Military Companies.

Again the armory was yesterday the scene of tearful farewells when another batch of raw recruits took up their grips and marched manfully from home to the depot in order to board trains for Camp Alger where they will augment the Lowell companies now in camp. It was a fateful day for all the applicants, for each was earnest in his endeavor to get into the army and some dreaded the rigid examination of Dr. Dutton, the medical examiner. Shortly after 11 o'clock the result of the examinations was known and about 50 men were soon busily engaged at their homes packing up what belongings they might need at Camp Alger.

In the afternoon, friends of the recruits began to flock into the armory and among them was Mayor Bennett, who made a brief but encouraging speech to the soldier boys.

A little after 5 o'clock the company was drawn up in line in the armory boxes of food distributed and at 5.15 Major Taylor, who was detailed to recruit for the Sixth regiment gave the order to march and after a pause of two or three minutes for goodbyes, the boys took up their grips and bundles and started for the station. They found several hundred people there ahead of them and awaiting their arrival and hasty farewells were said as one after another stepped on the train. Then the handshaking went on, the soldiers leaning from the windows, and in spite of the fact that they had smiling faces for their friends, the seriousness of it all could be seen.

At 5.25, the conductor called out the "All aboard," and the train moved away while a cheer went up from the spectators.

Dr. Dutton conducted an examination that was severe enough to reject 32 out of 70 men.

Among the well known recruits who were rejected at Camp Dewey and passed here were "Doc." Miles, Corp. Golden and Corp. George E. Worthen and Algernon Varnum. These men are all on their way to Camp Alger and a happier quartette cannot be found in the country.

Corp. Frank Dodge sent down 13 men for Company G as follows:

Charles E. Johnson, 21½ Loring street.
Walter E. Worthen, 27 Forest street.
Wm. N. Prescott, 67 London street.
Fred H. Clifford, 85 South street.
John H. Cannon, 5 Watson street.
Waldo F. Miles, 313 Central street.
Arthur T. Baker, 67 French street.
William E. Golden, 35 Massachusetts corporation.
Napoleon E. Fisher, 17 London street.
Joseph F. Murphy, 103 Congress street.
Joseph L. Maitrijean, 113 Lakeview avenue.
Francis J. Howe, 175 Smith street.
John W. Wroe, 21 Kirk street.
John J. Connelly, 201 Middlesex street.
Guy R. Barclay, 7 Common street.
John P. Cryan, 49 Clare street.
John W. O'Brien, 167 E. Merrimack street.
Napoleon Sarvais ———
Frederick R. Cheney, 29 West Ninth street.

Corp. Kittredge sent the following men for Company C:

Arthur Blennerhasset, 5 Rookdale avenue.
George E. Worthen Jr., 27 Forrest street.
Albert R. Archibald, 815 Merrimack street.
John Halloran, 23 Kidder street.
Odina Desmarais, 45 Salem street.
Algernon Varnum, 92 Shaw street.
Addresses unknown—Frank Parks, Frank Kelly, John Brophy, Francis J. O'Hearn, John Williamson, Edward Flannigan, Charles H. Tilton, Willard D. Pratt, Philip E. Abbott, Frank McLaughlin, Orvilla Morin, Thomas Ellis.

The men were under the command of Corp. George E. Worthen, Jr. Upon their arrival at Camp Alger, they will be uniformed.

Corp. Dodge and Sergt. Kittredge will continue to take names but the chances are against another physical examination in this city. The next one will be held for Lowell men in Wakefield with the same surgeon presiding.

John J. Caldwell, John J. Donohoe, and Michael Murray passed the exam., but they did not start with the others. Their turn will come at the latter part of this week.

The company organized to take the place of C was mustered in by Col. Gordon Dexter last night with 43 members present. Immediately after the ceremony an election of officers was held which resulted as follows: Captain, George E. Worthen, Sr.; first lieutenant, A. D. Colby; second lieutenant, George L. Fowler, Jr.

Capt. Worthen is one of the best known military men in the city. His most recent position with the militia has been that of first lieutenant in Company D, Second Corps Cadets. He has two sons now on their way to Camp Alger.

Oscar P. Ellis of 83 White street, Pawtucketville, has passed the mental and physical examinations for the U. S. Engineer Corps, and will leave for the front on Saturday of this week. It is understood that the men recruited in Boston for this department of the service will go direct to Cuba. Mr. Ellis was instructed to that effect before he was accepted.

PIAZZA PARTY

MR. AND MRS. J. CLARK GLIDDEN ENTERTAIN FRIENDS AT THEIR RESIDENCE.

The beautiful residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. Clark Glidden at 1235 Middlesex street, was the scene of a very pleasant piazza party last evening, by the members of the Epworth union. On both the first and second floors the verandas were illumined with Japanese lanterns. There was an impromptu entertainment given as follows:

The entertainment was largely impromptu, but was none the less enjoyable. A series of tableaux, prepared under the direction of Mrs. Howes, assisted by Mrs. Cleworth, was given on the lawn. The tableaux and those taking part were: "Faith, Hope and Charity," Flossie Holgate, Mabel Howe and Bertha Cleworth; "The proposal," Bertha Cady, Bert Keniston and Bertha Cleworth; "Cuba Freed," Lillian Holgate and Mrs. Chas. Dane; "Off for a Wife," Carl Staples and Bertha Cleworth; "Evening Prayer," Bertha Cleworth, Flossie Holgate, and Mabel Howes; "Sleeping Beauty," Addie Howes and Carl Staples; "Goddess of Liberty," Addie Howes; "Good night," the whole company. The red fire used in the tableaux was contributed by Charles E. Carter.

Refreshments were served immediately afterward. Rev. L. W. Staples spoke of his recent trip to Sterling camp ground, expressing his appreciation of the fine building there which is owned by the Lowell union. An Italian harpist was stationed at one end of the hall, and played sweetly as a closing feature. It was a pleasant event, and the members of the union and others who attended feel grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Glidden for their generous hospitality.

ANOTHER SENTENCE.

Plymouth, June 22.—In Superior court, the jury in the case of John Reed for bunooing Martin Wood of Bridgewater out of $3500 returned a verdict of guilty, and he was sentenced to not more than four or less than three years in state prison. Reed took his sentence very coolly and chatted with the lawyers afterward. This makes 11 years Reed has now to serve. Harry S. Richmond of Brockton, for forging a note of $6800 on the Abington Savings bank and one on the Rockland Savings bank for $9000, pleaded guilty.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Y.W.C.A. was held last night at the rooms. Mrs. Carll, the president, was in the chair.

The treasurer's report showed $33.81 on hand June 1. During the year $1292.40 was received and $1258.89 was paid out on hand June 1, 1897, $31.34.

The same board of officers was re-elected for anoter year as follows: President, Mrs. Francis Carll; first vice president, Miss R. B. Bailey; second vice president, Miss M. Ella Russell; treasurer, Miss Nellie Brown; secretary, Mrs. S. H. Thompson, Miss Russell, Mrs. Alvah Sturgess, Dr. Elizabeth Newcomb and Mrs. M. L. Hamblett were elected directors.

PENSION FRAUD REPORT.

Detectives Bowran and Fairbanks of Boston who have been in town several times in connection with the pension business, have narrowed their case down to one man, against whom, it is probable they will press charges of fraud. The charge may or may not be sustained and this is the only foundation for the alleged pension scandals.

CHARETTE'S CHUM

PAID A FLYING VISIT TO LOWELL YESTERDAY.

George Charette and He Enlisted Together.

It was almost like seeing George Charette himself in town when yesterday afternoon I grasped the outstretched hand and received the gorgeous smile of "Mickey" Howard, or to give him his title, Captain of Division, Michael Howard of the U. S. S. San Francisco, who after a long absence of three years, came into town on 48 hours leave, "just to take a look at the place, and see if Lowell appreciated the fact that it is again to the front in war and to see if Lowell is coupling the name of Charette with Ladd and Whitney as she should do."

It took a few minutes for me to assure myself that the handsome fellow in the picturesque uniform of the American tar with the eagle and crossed anchors on his sleeve betokening his rank was Mickey Howard, but he was Mickey, as handsome, gay and muscular as ever with not a word to say about himself but shouting the glory of his old chum of South Common days and later his messmate in the navy, George Charette.

Captain Howard, being a landlubber I'll call him "captain" was the guest of the Belvidere hotel yesterday, stopping there, as he said, in order to talk over old times with Sammy Cox who was the only one of the little band of South Common heroes who didn't follow the sea.

When I asked him to take about himself, he said: "Never mind me until I get a chance to do something. "Dutchy" (Charette) is the boy to talk about. Didn't he do a trick to talk about? And he was from Lowell, a product of the Lowell school. Since we heard about the sinking of the Merrimac, I've got the whole ship talking about Lowell.

"Charette, as you know, left the San Francisco when his time expired and after coming home for a short stay paid his own way to Key West and enlisted there. He didn't have any trouble in enlisting, for Charette is an expert torpedo man and without boasting because he's from Lowell, it's my honest opinion that there is at a man in the entire navy, commissioned, warrant, non-commissioned or common seaman, who knows more about torpedoes than George Charette. But I'm running ahead.

When Charette left the ship, I was the last one he shook hands with. He said: 'Mickey, here's where old Lowell friends have got to part.' 'Mickey,' he continued, shaking my hand for all he was worth, "if ever I get the chance I'm going to make my mark and put my name in Lowell history and if you get the chance, you do it, too, and some day we'll do Lowell honor." Then he left me. He's had the chance and he more than made his mark, and if ever I get it, I'll make mine if I have to die to do it, for we must hold up the reputation of the old Eliot street and Edson schools, though I must admit I wasn't the best scholar they ever had. I don't suppose Miss Dillon and Mrs. Turner will ever forgive me. They were fine teachers, though.

"When Charette went off the ship they asked him to stay as chief gunner's mate ,a job where you wear a uniform like a street car conductor. George couldn't see it, though. He wanted to get in the thick of the fight right away and he got there with both feet.

"'And while I'm talking of Charette I want to tell you that there is'nt a man I know of that knows more about foreign navies than George Charette. I believe he could tell you the tonnage displacement and armament of every ship of any importance in the world. If he ever opens up in Morro, they'll kill him as a spy, for he knows Cervera's fleet as well as if he had served in that navy. It was Charette himself who rigged up the torpedo, as it is called, that blew up the Merrimac with Hobson and the others and himself on deck. It was gun cotton in a common can like the tomato cans you have around here, and it took George to rig it up so fine that it got a perfect result.

"George is a great friend of Admiral Schley, and Schley knows what a valuman he is. McKinley did the best official act of his life when he said he'd hold Blanco personally responsible for the lives of the eight boys of the Merrimac."

Captain Howard then paid a glowing tribute to Lieut. Hobson and explained to me the use of gun cotton, rapid fire guns etc., which unfortunately, for lack of space, I must omit.

Then speaking of himself, he said: "Charette, Frank Stickney and I went into the navy practically together. Charette went in December of 1894 and Stickney and I went a few weeks later. I haven't seen Stickney for some time, but he's all right and is still on ship. Since I went into the service I have been on the Wabash, New Hampshire, Saratoga, Juniata, in which I went round the world, Portsmouth Vermont, Boston and Philadelphia, in which we took in the Chilian war, and the Constellation. I left the Constellation a couple of years ago and settled in Brooklyn, but they sent after me and I re-enlisted and went aboard the San Francisco, where I met my old friend 'Dutchy.' ".

"We are now doing duty along the New England coast and as we stopped at Boston for coal I got leave to come up here and see my folks. We chased one merchant ship that I really believe was a Spanish auxiliary cruiser. We didn't overtake her though we were within range of her. We sail for Provincetown tomorrow and later we expect to be reinforced by the Harvard, Yale, Yosemite and Prairie and sail across for a little fun along the coast of Spain or a crack at that hide-and-seek Cadiz fleet."

CHEATED

The merchant who pays for advertising and doesn't get it cries out that advertising doesn't pay. He is wrong. Advertising pays if you get it. If you pay for any commodity that is never delivered, you lose money on it, just the same as you lose on advertising that you pay for but never get.

When merchants learn to buy their advertising space in the newspapers as they buy their merchandise—by measure and weight—it will pay them. Buy space by the inch per thousand of circulation and see that you get what you pay for. Then you will never be cheated in advertising and it will pay you. The Sun will give you more advertising for your money than any other paper in Lowell

LOWELL'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

We are to have another battleship named after the ill-fated Maine and one named in honor of Ensign Bagley who fell at the battle of Cienfuegos.

The legislature before adjourning must pass the Boston aldermanic bill providing that each party shall nominate twelve aldermen. This will leave the voters twenty-four candidates from which to choose one-half that number.

Congressman Bailey of Texas is proving an able leader in congress. He is severely criticised by republicans for drawing party lines. They seem to assume that it should be their exclusive right to draw party lines during the war.

Col. Whitney of the Fifth regiment has caused some surprise in turning down Lieut. Col. Oakes and appointing Capt. E. W. Weaver to that position in the Fifth regiment. Col. Whitney's act is for the good of the service and should be commended.

General Miles has requested Governor Wolcott to give his son a commission in the army. This request comes with poor grace from General Miles. If he followed military principles, he would let his son rise in the ranks by his own merits rather than have him pushed ahead by influence.

The state legislature has refused to grant Mayor Quincy his request for power to appoint temporary heads of departments. He wished to appoint a successor to Col. Bogan, who has gone to the front with the Ninth regiment. Colonel Bogan was inspector of public buildings in Boston, and although the office is now vacant, the legislature refused to allow Mayor Quincy to fill it temporarily.

THE TEXTILE SCHOOL.

The city council has appropriated $5,000 for the Textile school in order to secure the $15,000 offered by the state. It was not intended that the city should have to pay even this amount but certain legislators had matters so arranged and there was no alternative except to close up the school.

There is a sentiment that it is of no benefit to the operatives, but any ambitious operative can easily fit himself for admission to the school and can then pursue any course of instruction he may select.

The chief trouble is that the operatives and the people at large do not seem to appreciate fully the advantages offered by the school.

If parents instead of starting their sons to be lawyers or to fill some other position supposed to be a soft snap, would send them to the Textile school, they would be enabled to earn much more money than they can in the overcrowded professions to which they are assigned by their parents. In many cities and in Lowell among the number, some of the professions are overcrowded. There are too many law-yers to allow any except those who have built up a reputation to make the business pay.

Of such importance have the mechanical trades become—such, for example, as electricians, mill engineers and many others—that men who enter them can earn more than can men of average ability in the professions. There is a fatal tendency prevalent among ambitious young men, which is, that they are afraid to use their hands; they think it somewhat of a disgrace to have to depend upon manual labor for their sustenance. But the sooner this false sentiment disappears, the better.

The Textile school is the only one in Lowell that teaches technical trades, and any young man who avails himself properly of the advantages it offers, will find no difficulty in securing a good position. If the operatives and the young men avail themselves of the courses at the Textile school, the institution will be worth more than $5,000 to the city. If the school fulfills the aim of the founders it will produce skilled workmen and render unnecessary their importation from Europe; it will enable the manufacturers to advance to finer grades of goods and thus defy outside competition, which paralyzes the mills and causes low wages and shutdowns to the injury of the entire community.

ALL SHOULD SWIM.

From the number of drowning accidents which occur every summer around Lowell for the sole reason that the victims cannot swim, it would appear to be a good policy for every boy to learn to swim. As no special place is provided for this purpose, the boys have to resort to the river, and in so doing run the risk of being drowned before they acquire the art of swimming. This brings up the question of public baths. The economic policy now supposed to be in force at city hall will preclude any movement towards providing public bathing places for the people. Public bath houses are provided in Boston and every progressive city. They are doubly needed in inland cities, where the people have not the advantage of the seashore. There may come a time when the city council will be progressive enough and will so overcome the economic pressure that it will be able to provide public bathing houses. From the present aspect, however, this ideal time seems to be lagging a couple of centuries behind the millenium.

OFFER SERVICES

BALTIMORE SISTERS OF MERCY VOLUNTEER TO NURSE OUR SICK AND WOUNDED.

The Sisters of Mercy who have charge of the city hospital, Baltimore, recently sent the following letter to Washington:

To Surgeon General Sternberg:

Dear Sir—As it is the vocation of the Sisters of Mercy to nurse the sick and as the Baltimore community was among the first to offer their services during the late war in these states, so with the approbation of His Eminence James Cardinal Gibbons, we are again ready to care for the sick and wounded soldiers.

Should it be necessary to establish a military hospital in Baltimore, we are willing to take charge. If our services are needed elsewhere in the army we are ready to go. Stipulations can be made when our services are called for. Hoping that this will prove satisfactory, we have the honor to be Very respectfully,

The Sisters of Mercy of the Archdiocese of Baltimore.

B & M. AGENTS.

THEIR MEETING HELD IN MANCHESTER, N. H., TUESDAY.

The monthly meeting of the Boston and Maine agents at the larger stations was held at the Manchester House, Manchester, N. H., by nineteen agents from all over the Boston and Maine system. The affair opened with a banquet at noon followed by the reading of a paper on "Memorandum Way Bills, Their Use and Misuse," by Agents Taft and Dane, criticism of which was participated in by nearly all present, the views expressed receiving very general endorsement.

Following the paper and a discussion, the entire party went for a trolley ride about the city on one of the Manchester street railway's special cars. Messrs. E. W. Harvey and E. J. Powers, the local agents, were untiring in their efforts to give the boys a good time.

The agents present included C. H. Cummings of Worcester, president of the association; F. F. Grant of Portsmouth, vice-president; G. H. Thorburn of Lynn, secretary and treasurer; Oliver E. Clark, Mystic Wharf, Boston; C. E. Hayward, Lakeport; E. F. Tower, Springfield; A. H. Robinson, Sanbornville, N. H.; A. B. Kimball, Rochester; E. J. Powers, Manchester; C. D. Parkman, Keene, N. H.; R. A. McClutchey, Portland; E. W. Harvey, Manchester; E. F. Baird, Woodsville; F. J. Bonser, Concord; O. S. Day, Newport; J. K. Horne, Nashua; H. C. Taft, Lowell, Supt. C. E. Lee of the W. and P. division, Nashua was the special guest of the occasion. The next meeting will be at Portsmouth in July.

THE ARENA OF POLITICS

Plutocracy Is the Enemy That Threatens the Life of the Republic.

The people of the United States have two wars on hand—a war with Spain and a war with the plutocracy. The war with Spain is a war to avenge the assassination of the Maine, to free Cuba, to put an end to Spanish ferocity on this continent. It is a war for humanity, and unless sinister motives control, if not manipulated in the interest of the bondholders or to influence the coming election, this war will be fought to a successful finish in a very few months.

How about the war against the money power? This is not the first time we have had to wage war against the plutocracy. We waged it 100 years ago, when Jeffersonianism triumphed over Hamiltonianism. It was renewed in the days of Jackson and the United States bank, when the cause of the people again proved victorious. It recurred at the close of the civil war and would long ago again have been decided for the people but for the untimely death of Lincoln. It has been on ever since. It is on now. By flaunting the "bloody shirt," by false appeals to passion and prejudice, the money kings succeeded in intrenching themselves in power in the early seventies and managed to control both of the leading parties up to 1896.

Shall the Spanish war serve to so divert the minds of the people as to prolong the reign of the oligarchy of wealth in the United States?

Unfortunate indeed would it be if it should so result. What would it profit us to conquer Spain and lose our own liberty? How, forsooth, can Cuba be free if America is enslaved? Mammon is no respecter of times. The nation's extremity is Shylock's opportunity. The usurer is not moved by patriotism. While the people are engrossed in the effort to protect the honor of their flag, providing the sinews of war and giving themselves and their sons a willing sacrifice to their country Moneybags is busy getting fat contracts, cornering the supplies of wheat and other necessaries, forming trusts and combines whereby to extort at once from the government and the people, dictating the terms of war revenue bills, so that taxes shall fall not on property but on the necessaries of life and demanding that bonds shall be issued to be owned by the rich and powerful, to be paid by the poor, out of their poverty. If opposition be made to this high handed injustice, the opponents are denounced as narrow minded partisans and obstructors of legislation and as enemies of the country—although they offer to raise, by other methods consistent with the public weal, all the money required to carry on the war. The time has come to be truly patriotic, to unmask the pseudo patriots, to expose their villainy, to refuse to aid or abet, in time of war as well as in time of peace, public robbery and public plunder. We must cast aside all fear that the people will believe the false charges of the tools of the plutocrats and courageously resist the machinations by the exercise of every legitimate power. We must remain true to the people.—National Intelligencer.

The Armor Plate Robbers.

The government is now paying $400 a ton for its armor plate, notwithstanding the fact that a committee reported only a short time ago that it could be manufactured at a profit for $160 a ton. An expert committee admits that a plant involving the expense of $1,000,000 could turn out this armor plate for the government for a much less figure than $160 a ton. Why is it the government does not establish its own plant for the manufacture of this plate when by the simple investment of $1,000,000 or $2,000,000 it could do so? The cost of armor plate for the new boats now being built will amount to nearly $2,000,000 apiece at the rate of $400 a ton. What a shame and what a commentary upon the good business sense and decency of our administration that goes into cahoots with Carnegie, Hanna and the rest of the scallawags to rob our country in its distress!

We have intimated that we would like to see a Spanish gunboat go up to New York harbor and bombard J. Pierpont Morgan's office. We would like to add that as soon as this war is over we would like to see our navy or the Spanish navy go up to Portland, Me., and bombard the home of Dingley. Hear and the rest of the schemers who have been hacking this armor plate scheme to rob the government.—Denver Road.

The Coming Revolution.

There is no further any doubt that the administration is negotiating an alliance with England, but the encouraging feature of the whole business is that such high handed acts of infamy will the sooner bring about the end. This will help to awaken the people and by no means prevent the coming revolution, and when it comes the present ruling dynasty of both England and America will be wiped from the face of the earth. Go right on, McKinley, and make your alliance; agree to build the Nicaragua canal and give it to England; promise to help her hold Canada in subjection if that great empire ever tires of the despotic rule of some London dude who fills a British throne. Make all the contracts you please. Some time the people will tumble the whole cargo overboard just as surely as they threw the tea overboard in Boston harbor.—Chicago Express.

The Two Patriots.

While our lads on sea and on land will be fighting to take the yoke from the necks of the oppressed of another country the gold ring will be working strenuously through congress to still further tighten its clutch on the throats of our own people. The men who can prevent that infamy will be no less patriots than those who go forth to battle. The men who war against it, even if unsuccessful, will deserve the thanks of their countrymen.—Sacramento Bee.

CYCLING NEWS.

What promises to be one of the most interesting contests of the season in paced racing will be the 50-mile match between William Martin and Harry Elkes at the Charles river track next Saturday afternoon. It will be the longest race of its kind with unlimited pace that has been run on an American track.

It is practically Martin's first big race since his return from Australia, and it will give the followers of the sport an opportunity to judge of his ability at the middle-distance paced game. In his training Martin has given every indication of being a fast, powerful rider. Perhaps he is not as well posted as Elkes in middle distance work but what he lacks in experience, he apparently more than makes up for in strength. Yesterday Martin was pushing a 122-gear, and he took out a three-mile spin, unpaced. The first mile was cut out in 2m., 12 sec., the second in 2m., 15 sec., and the third in 12m., 19 secs. In the afternoon he took a spin behind his pacemakers and reeled off 20 miles in reasonable time considering the wind.

At the present time, Martin is training behind a team of 36 pacemakers, but neither of the contestants has announced how many men he will use on the day of the race.

Martin is a man of large frame and big bones. He is a seasoned athlete; Elkes is a slender youth, but on previous occasions, has demonstrated that he is a rider of great endurance and excellent staying powers. One of the oldest trainers in the sport, recently said that if Elkes did not grow old fast he would be the coming champion. Dave Shafer has great confidence in the boy's ability or he would not have added him to his string, and Dave seldom makes a mistake in picking a winner. With Elkes and Michael, Shafer undoubtedly has the two best middle-distance men in America with the exception of McDuffee and Linton. Great things are expected of French Taylore, but it remains to be seen what he is capable of when he meets McDuffee, Michael or Elkes.

For the past month Elkes has been training under the watchful eye of Shafer and the youngster has shown great improvement. He has improved in his position, and makes his pickups much more smoothly than he did in his race with Linton. Training in second place behind Michael has been excellent practice for him, and if it should come to a pinch, where a pickup is missed his experience will prove of value to him in the coming match.

Martin's pace is handled by Frank Waller, a veteran long-distance man, and a man who performed heroic service for Michael in his 15-mile match with McDuffee a year ago. There is little in connection with the pacing game that Waller does not understand. At the same time he will be met by Dave Shafer who always uses great generalship in the handling of pacemakers under adverse circumstances and in tight places.

When one considers the remarkable time made by McDuffee in his recent match with Major Taylor, it is hardly probable that the records will begin to go inside of the 30-mile mark.

Tom Barnaby of Revere and J. H. Berwin of Manchester, N. H., met yesterday and agreed to ride a match race at ten miles, paced, the latter part of July in Manchester. The purse will be $300 and the side bets are $100.

The racing committee of the Roslindale C. C. denies the report that a protest is intended by that club against the P. C. C. team on the ground that P. F. Logan was not a member of the club the required thirty days.

The Orient C. C. is getting together a pursuit team and will ride a five-mile pursuit race the latter part of August at Charles River park, with the Winthrop C. C. as probable opponents.

Entry blanks for the Spiers road race at East Boston are now out and can be obtained. A full list of prizes is to be announced. As Captain Irish is very particular about bells, it is suggested that no rider attempt to start unless his wheel has one. Otherwise, he may not be allowed by the police to ride.

A. A. Zimmerman is still on his back at his father's house in Manasquan. He cannot lift hand or foot nor move his head, but is mending slowly. So far, only Charlie Wells, the big California racing man, outside the immediate family of the champion, has visited him.

A new scoring device for middle distance races has been set up at Manhattan Beach. It consists of a large dial, on which the time, in minutes, seconds, and fifths is shown, while the number of miles and laps to the credit of each man are indicated by numbers shown through holes in the dial.

Betting on the Michael-McDuffee match is about even, though some of McDuffee's warm admirers have offered as good odds as three to one. The Michael supporters are quietly picking up every bet in sight, whatever the odds.

The mayor of Chelsea, Mass., has appointed 34 L.A.W. members to serve as special police to prevent careless riding. Any plan which tends to lessen the nonsense of ignorant scorchers is a commendable one and worthy of imitation.

Boisvert, it was voted to present to George Charette, in behalf of the Canadian-Americans of the city, a medal commemorative of his daring act of bravery. Desertion Is the Charge Made.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

Trenton, N. J., June 23.—John Chatterton, known on the operatic stage as Signor Perugini, today filed a petition in the court in this city, asking for a divorce from his wife, Helen Chatterton, otherwise known as Lillian Russell, the opera singer, on the ground of desertion.

The papers in the case were served on Mrs. Chatterton in Jersey City yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Chatterton will have at least two weeks to file answer to the complaint.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED BY A CLOSE VOTE.

The Debate Was Full of Excitement.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

Cape Town, June 23—A motion of "No Confidence" in the colonial government was brought yesterday by W. P. Schreiner, the former attorney general of Cape Town, and adopted by a vote of 41 to 36, whereupon the assembly immediately adjourned. The greatest excitement prevailed throughout the debate, which in reality is an Afrikanderbund attack on Cecil Rhodes. Transvaal agents have been busy lobbying against the minister.

Skaguay, June 15, via Seattle, June 23.—The first mile of track of the first railway in Alaska was laid through Skaguay today. Grading is finished for a distance of five miles beyond the place.

EXCEPTIONS SUSTAINED.

The plaintiff's exceptions in the case of the Lamson Consolidated Store Service company vs. the Prudential Fire Insurance company, were sustained. The court holds that it should have been left to the jury to decide whether the defendant did not rely on the provision in the insurance policy on which the suit was brought that the amount or loss should be referred to arbitration.

ANOTHER SCOOP.

THE SUN FAR AHEAD OF RIVALS ON THE BOAT RACE.

The hundreds who crowded Merrimack Square to watch the bulletins on the big boat race at New London today will appreciate the fact that the Sun gave the news of the race fully an half hour before any other Lowell paper. The result of the race was bulletined by The Sun about ten minutes after the line was crossed, and the other papers with their usual enterprise and celerity spent about half an hour in copying it. Besides, The Sun has the only full account of the race published in Lowell. The public at large can appreciate these facts and the circulation of The Sun indicates that the public is no ingrate. The Sun caters to the public demand for the news, the whole news at the earliest possible moment. That is why The Sun leads the other local papers. It is another case in which merit wins. This scoop is not surprising. It is but a repetition of what The Sun is doing every day. It is the only paper that has the full Associated Press despatches and therefore, the only one equipped to give all the news at the earliest moment.

MAY FIGHT TODAY.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—General Miles received an interesting despatch today from one of his aide-de-camps who is now with General Shafter's army at Baiquiri. He declined to give its text to the public, but said that it merely announced that the landing of the troops was made all right without any casualty whatever and that the only men met were the Cuban insurgents on the ground. About 5700 insurgents well armed and under good discipline were met.

General Miles' correspondence also stated that the troops were in splendid spirits and ready for a fight. "And," said he, "there may be a fight today."

REBELS HELP US.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

London, June 23.—The Manila railroad company having offices in this city has received a cable message saying that though the Philippine insurgents have captured all but the inner city of Manila, they are respecting property and are refraining from looting.

A London agent of the insurgents claims to have information that General Aguinaldo has made a compact with Admiral Dewey not to attack the walled city until the American troops arrive, when the Americans and insurgents will co-operate.

HOW THEY LANDED.

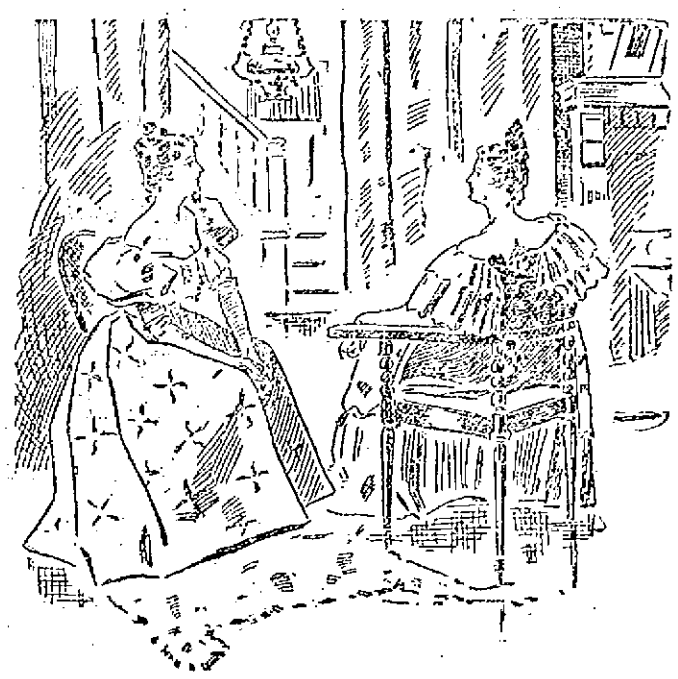

By Associated Press to The Sun.

On board the Associated Press Despatch boat, Wanda, Jaiguiri harbor, Wednesday, June 22.—6 p m, via Kingston, Jal, Thursday, 2.35 a. m.—At five o'clock 6000 trained American soldiers are encamped in the hills in and around Daiquiri and 10,000 more rest on their arms on board transports off shore, ready to join those who disembarked as soon as the available launches and small boats can carry them ashore.

Time and sea and weather were propitious for the army of invasion. The army and navy co-operated splendidly and as the big war ships closed in on the shore to pave the way for the approach of the transports, and then went back again, three cheers for the navy went up from 10,000 throats and on the troop ships and three cheers for the army arose from ship after ship as the troop ships moved in to take their share in hazardous game. It was war and it was magnificent.

The Cuban insurgents, too, bore their share in the enterprise honorably and well. Five thousand of them, in mountain fastnesses and dark thickets of ravines lay all last night on their guns watching every road and mountain path leading from Santiago to Guantanamo. A thousand of them were within sight of Daiquiri, making the approach of the Spaniards under cover of the darkness an impossibility.

At 4 o'clock, this morning, as the Associated Press despatch boat approached Daiquiri, the entire land of Cuba seemed wrapped in soft mist like that of the dog days in northern latitudes. Dull, leaden clouds lay on the eastern horizon and the color was reflected in the gray waters of the ocean which gently undulated in the lazy breeze. Distant objects loomed dimly but it was seen that many of the troop ships that had been lying several miles in the offing had drawn in towards shore, while three of four war ships lay menacingly near the harbor approach. All around the transports, steam launches and small boats were bobbing about like corks.

A society lady in a busy Connecticut town recounts an extremely trying experience. "I have suffered," said she, "about everything possible from weak stomach and chronic constipation, and many a night have had to sit in bed, propped up with pillows and get what sleep I could that way. I could not lie down; if I did I would feel a terrible choking sensation which made me gasp for breath. Everything seemed to ferment the moment it got into my stomach, and often I felt bloated and generally miserable. Since I began using

RIPANS TABULES

I have been so greatly relieved that I fully believe they will soon cure me entirely."

GERMANY IS VERY ANXIOUS

To Have Posession of Some Pacific Islands.

Camara is Boasting of What He May do—Great Activity at Key West—Doings at Washington.

London, June 23.—The Berlin correspondent of The Times, commenting on the continued discussion of the Philippine question, says: "There would be a storm of indignation in the German press if the United States were to become master of the Philippines while Germany got nothing. In the view of many German politicians anything would be better than that, and they would even prefer to see the intervention of several European powers to protect the life and property of their subjects from the rebels, followed by the acquisition of a naval station for each of them. There is in fact a strong inclination to repeat the Chinese drama at Kiao-Chou wherever an opportunity is afforded. Relatively to what Germany already possesses she has everything to gain by such a policy of fair shares all around.

"There can be little doubt that no European power or combination of powers would venture to prevent the United States and Great Britain from settling the future of the Philippines conjointly, or at least under the protection of their conjoint naval forces. Continental opinion would not only speedily acknowledge the strength of an Anglo-American naval alliance, but would be practically unanimous against incurring the risk of the commercial consequences of a breach with the United States."

CAMARA'S BRAGGADOCIO.

London, June 23.—The Gibraltar correspondent of The Daily News says: "No credence need be given to rumors that the Cadiz fleet will return to that port. Admiral Camara could not return without riots at Cadiz and Madrid, particularly as he said at the banquet before his departure that he would never return until his flag had been steeped in American blood. You will find that the next move of the squadron will be to the Canaries."

SOUNDED AS TO MEDIATION.

London, June 23.—The Berlin correspondent of The Standard says: "The queen regent has privately caused those sovereigns who are her relatives to be directly sounded, and those whom she regards as friends to be indirectly rounded, as to whether they are willing to mediate; but the stage of diplomatic negotiations has not yet been reached, and it is very doubtful whether it will be reached for some time to come.

"The semi-official Post hears from Antwerp that persons commissioned by the Washington government to enlist seamen on neutral soil are said to have enlisted more than 1000 German sailors for the American navy and the auxiliary cruisers. This would explain the difficulty German captains have experienced of late in manning their ships."

PRODIGIOUS ACTIVITY.

Key West, June 23.—A warship which arrived yesterday from the blockade of Havana reports that nothing of interest can be seen from the ships there except prodigious activity in the construction of defence works on shore.

The vessel brought in Chief Armorer Henderson and J. Herman, gunner's mate of one of the gunboats, who were wounded while at work in the armor room of the ship trying to extract the fuse from a shell. Henderson was struck in the abdomen by a piece of the shell, and Herman had his right arm lacerated. Both will recover.

LINES DRAWN TIGHTER.

Washington, June 23.—Acting Secretary Spaulding yesterday wired instructions to all Atlantic coast collectors to refuse clearance to any vessel for Cuban or Porto Rican ports with provisions or other material which can be used in maintaining war, regardless of whether the ports are or not blockaded, or whether the cargoes are contraband or not. This action is taken under the joint resolution of April 22, the enforcement of which has been entrusted by the president to the secretary of the treasury. The power bestowed by that resolution is broader than powers under international law as now construed, and its exercise draws tighter the lines about the Spanish West Indies.

RELIABLE OF COURSE.

London, June 23.—The Madrid, correspondent of The Daily Mail says: "Reliable information has been received in diplomatic circles here from South America, that preliminary steps are being taken to summon a conference of all South and Central American republics to consider the advisability of adopting defensive measures against future aggression by the United States. The Hispano-American republics see danger in the prospect that at the moment the United States has effected its purpose in Cuba, it will seek to extend its influence and authority over the Spanish-speaking republics."

ENDORSED CHAMBERLAIN.

London, June 23.—The Marquis of Lansdown, secretary of war, addressing the Conservative unions of London last evening, endorsed the recent Birmingham speech of the secretary of state for the colonies, in which Mr. Chamberlain expressed the hope that the day would come when the stars and stripes and the union jack would wave together over an Anglo-Saxon alliance.

"Depend upon it," said Lord Lansdowne in conclusion, "these are no mere idle dreams or hazy aspirations. The change which has come over the sentiment of each country toward each other during the last year or two is almost immeasurable. One can scarcely believe they are the same United States with whom, only a two years ago, we were on the verge of a serious quarrel. The change is not an ephemeral understanding between diplomatists, but a genuine desire of the two peoples to be friends, and, therefore, it can not be laughed out of existence by the sort of comment we have lately heard."

Yesterday's game was a pitching contest in Taunton, and had McMackin received competent support, the Pawtuckets would not have seen third base. As it was, they made one run in the last half of the ninth inning. Three of their seven hits were bunched inside the diamond.

Geitig of the New Yorks lasted half an inning and was replaved by Seymour after the Pittsburgs had won. Joyce was put out of the game for questioning decisions. Score: 10 to 6.

Not a member of the Washingtons passed second base in Louisville, and only two reached that bag. The Louisvilles fielded finely and did great base running. Score: 5 to 0.

Tom Flannagan of the Fall Rivers shut the Brocktons out without a hit yesterday in the shortest game of the season. They got but two men to first and nobody to second. A wild pitch gave the Fall Rivers one in the first, and a series of hits added four more in the sixth. Outside of these innings McKenna pitched great ball, but 50 men facing him during the game. Magoon of the Brocktons has joined the Brooklyns. His place at third will be filled by George Moore. Score: 5 to 0.

Bases on balls, daring base running and stupid plays by the Rochesters gave the Providences four runs in the second inning, and the game. Score: 5 to 1.

J. B. Birmingham of Hartford has sold the Hartford franchise to a stock company formed by William Trafley, manager of the team. Barnie, until recently manager of the Brooklyn club, made an effort to buy the franchise from Birmingham, but they could not agree on the price. Barnie is now managing the Springfield club.

A wild throw by Jennings of the Baltimores in the seventh inning bounded into the grandstand and allowed Hill to make the winning run for the Cincinnatis. Score: 3 to 2.

The Quakers won yesterday by hitting at opportune times. The St. Louis team played a listless fielding game, and their errors were costly. Score: 8 to 2.

The Brooklyns could not touch Wilson, and the Clevelands gave him good support. The game was snappy on both sides. Score: 5 to 3.

Housholder's miserable work at first and errors by Wise were responsible for the loss of yesterday's game by the Buffalos to the Springfields. Reilly's work at short for the winners was wonderfully clever. Score: 10 to 4.

SINE DIE STAGE.

Boston, June 23.—By a vote of 26 to 22, the senate refused to reject the bill to prohibit the use of trading stamps, and it went into the calendar for today.

Last evening the conference committee on the street railway bill reported. The report makes the 1 percent excise tax relate to railways which have earnings of $4000 per mile, instead of $5000 as fixed by the senate and $3000 as fixed by the house.

The senate bill to prevent the desecration of the flag was referred to the next legislature.

The conference committee on the bill to prevent over-insurance reported an amendment which was practically a surrender of the house to the senate idea to provide that interest should be refunded on the premium paid on account of excess of valuation, whether the policy was originally taken out by the company then responsible or by another. The report was accepted without opposition.

The house rejected, by a large vote the resolve to authorize the state board of health to report on the advisability and efficiency of the use of tuberculin.

A petition from the mayor of Northampton for permission to remove the unused codfish from the house of representatives to his city, until Boston shall have withstood the threatened bombardment, was the first business noticed upon by the house, while sitting in mock session yesterday.

RELATING TO BOSTON.

Boston, June 23.—A circular has been issued by the New England Burglary Insurance company, which reinsured all its risks outside of this state last November, cancelling all outstanding policies and remitting the amount of unearned premium, preparatory to closing out the company. The company began business in December, 1895, with a capital of $200,000.

The body of James McLaughlin, a Fitchburg railroad yardman, was found floating in the water near the drawbridge of the Boston and Maine railroad in Charlestown. He fell through the bridge on the night of June 14 while hurrying to flag a train.

The Massachusetts Volunteer Aid association has closed its purchase of the hospital ship Bay State. The money has been paid over and possession taken.

Mrs. Mary Fullerton, who was the oldest original Daughter of the Revolution, is dead. She was 102 years of age. Mrs. Fullerton was born in Tuftonboro, N. H. Her father, James Wiggin, was a lieutenant in the American army at the time of the revolution.

ARGUED WITH A COUPLING PIN.

Providence, June 23.—Horace G. Mullen will spend 30 days in jail because of a dispute in which he participated as to the relative merits of the United States and Spain. He was in a saloon when the topic was taken up, and as he did not agree with the sentiments of some others in the saloon, he went over into a railroad yard and secured a coupling pin, which he hurled as a convincing argument against his opponents, who were Spanish sympathizers. He was indicted for assault with a dangerous weapon, but pleaded nole contendre to simple assault.

HEAD OF OBLATES

FATHER AUGIER, THE NEW SUPERIOR GENERAL, ELECTED BY A LARGE MAJORITY.

The general chapter of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate which was composed of 42 members, eight of whom were bishops, met at the convent in the Rue de St. Petersburg in Paris recently for the election of a new superior general in place of Pere Soullier, who died in October last. At the first scrutiny, Pere Augier, second assistant of the order, was elected by a large majority. He was born in the diocese of Nice in 1815, and at the age of 15 was impelled by his piety to enter the juniorate of Notre Dame des Lumieres. Three years later he entered the novitiate. He next studied at Autun, and after being ordained priest in 1860, was sent to the Grand Seminaire of Ajaccio, which had then founded a short time before by Cardinal Guibert, and at which Pere Augier professed theology for several years.

His next post was on the staff of the clergy at the Sacre Coeur on Montmartre. In 1882 he was appointed procureur general of his order and remained for the next eight years in Rome. There he founded a flourishing house for higher studies. He left Rome for Paris on being appointed assistant general, in which quality he made a visitation of the most distant missions confided to the order by propaganda in Africa and Asia.—London Tablet.

A LOWELL THIEF

CAUGHT IN THE ACT AT LAWRENCE AND ARRESTED.

James Miller of Quebec, Canada, was charged with drunkenness and larceny in Lawrence Tuesday. On Monday he entered the house of Edward Valcour, 202 Valley street in that city. Mrs. Valcour was out and when she returned she met Miller coming out of her bedroom.

He asked her for ten cents, saying he wanted to go to Lowell where he belonged. She would not give it to him and he went out. Mrs. Valcour went into the bedroom and discovered that one dollar and thirty-five cents and a valuable gold ring had been taken from her husband's trousers.

She quickly gave the alarm and a small boy ran up Broadway and got Officer Martin. He came down and arrested the man. The money and ring also a knife with Mr. Valcour's name on it, a piece of tobacco and an empty pocketbook, the property of Mrs. Valcour, were found on his person.

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

HANNA AGAIN TRIUMPHS

He Claims That Harmony Has Been Restored.

He Has Control of the Party Organization and Runs Things His Own Way.

Columbus, June 23.—The Republican state convention yesterday was a record breaker. Its session lasted less than two hours, and most of that time was devoted to unseating a small minority of dissenters. After the contests were disposed of everything was unanimous and by acclamation. Five nominations were made within 12 minutes, including the presentation and the seconding speeches. The delegates, after the convention perfected its permanent organization, were all Hanna men. If the factions were not completely wiped out, they were at least shut out. There was some doubt expressed as to two of the 21 members of the state central committee, Brown of Toledo and Craighead of Dayton; but they were not long in announcing themselves as in accord with the majority, so that the party machinery is entirely in the hands of the friends of Senator Hanna for the next year.

While in full sway, there were some who wanted to remove Charles L. Kurtz as the Ohio member of the Republican national committee, but Mr. Hanna's closest friends prevented even consideration of such action. Governor Bushnell was not in the convention hall, and none of his appointees were present to hear the reading of the last resolution in the platform, which is generally accepted as uncomplimentary to the governor and the dissenting Republicans in the legislature.

During the legislative investigation Cyrus Huling and H. M. Daugherty were the attorneys of Senator Hanna. Huling was made chairman of the state central committee and Daugherty is slated for the chairmanship of the state executive committee.

REPORT IS DENIED

Regarding the Attempted Shooting of Blanco.

THE CAPTAIN SAID TO BE HIGHLY ESTEEMED.

His Reasons for Detaining Hobson and Associates.

Havana, June 23.—There is absolutely no foundation for the report of an attempt to assassinate Captain General Blanco by a member of the volunteers whose brother had been shot for complicity in a plot against the government. General Blanco enjoys the esteem of all classes in Havana, including the volunteers, and is regarded with the utmost confidence as the representative of Spanish sovereignty. The Cubans admit that they are under obligations to General Blanco for the establishment of autonomy in the island. The palace guards are from the volunteers, and several officers of that body are aides on the general's staff. General Blanco's public appearance is frequently the occasion of patriotic demonstrations, and that he has no fear of assassination is shown by the fact that he often rides out without escort, visiting the fortifications about Havana without the attendance of the usual bodyguard.

Complete tranquility reigns in Havana. The greatest confidence is felt that the Spanish forces will successfully cope with the American soldiers. There is great enthusiasm among the troops and volunteers, who are all anxious to fight against the invaders.

Captain General Blanco denies that he has decided that there shall be no exchange of prisoners with the United States. At the same time, the captain general says that he cannot allow the exchange of Lieutenant Hobson and the other members of the party who sailed the Merrimac into the mouth of the harbor at Santiago, for the lieutenant and his companies have had opportunities of seeing the harbor and its defenses. The most common prudence, the captain general says, would forbid that these men be now given their liberty as proposed by the United States. Blanco added that he had not forbidden the approach of vessels bearing flags of truce, but had only ordered that no vessel be permitted to approach within six miles of the shore, so that it be made impossible for officers of the United States to make drawings of or inspect fortresses.

TO TALK INDEFINITELY.

Washington, June 23.—The anti-annexationists in the senate privately suggested to the advocates of the Hawaiian resolution that the most practical method of disposing of the question was an agreement upon a time next session to vote, but, while the proposition has not been formally declined, the leading supporters of the resolution say they will not consider it seriously. They say they are having no difficulty in maintaining a quorum, and they expect to be able to keep their men here to the end. The opponents urge that by the opening of the next session the war probably will be concluded and the entire policy of the acquisition of this territory can be passed upon. They say that if the proposition is not accepted the speech-making will go on indefinitely.

VERMONT REPUBLICANS.

Montpelier, Vt., June 23.—The Republican convention nominated Colonel E. C. Smith of St. Albans for governor without opposition. H. C. Bates of St. Johnsbury was nominated for lieutenant governor; John L. Bacon of White River Junction for treasurer; F. A. Howland of Montpelier for secretary, and O. M. Fletcher of Arlington for auditor.

A LAWRENCE BOY

Amos G. Towle of Phillipps Academy

HELD IN $1000 FOR GRAND LARCENY.

He Stole a Watch and Other Property.

New York, June 23.—Amos G. Towle, 16 years of age, a student at Phillips academy, Andover, was held in $1000 bonds for examination by Magistrate Kudlich yesterday afternoon for grand larceny.

Towle is the son of a well-to-do widow of Lawrence, Mass. In company with Benjamin Aubrey, a Yale student of the class of 1900, he came to this city a week ago and took lodgings at a boarding house kept by Eliza White. Tuesday night Mrs. Amos Greenleaf, who has a room next to that of Towle's, missed a gold watch. She told a detective that she suspected Towle, and on his arrest he admitted the theft. Towle said that the money he expected from home had not come, and Aubrey induced him to take the watch and pawn it, saying he could return it when his money came and before Mrs. Greenleaf would miss it. Towle telegraphed for his mother. Aubrey is still at large.

HYPNOTICALLY INFLUENCED.

London, June 23.—In the Bow street police court yesterday John Trodd, who shot Count Von Arco-Valley, the first secretary of the German embassy here, as the latter was emerging from the embassy on the evening of June 15, was committed for trial. Trodd made a rambling statement to the effect that the German, American and French nations had hypnotically influenced him and pestered him with accusations. He was not sure, he said, whether Irish-Americans were not also guilty of accusations started some years ago by United States Consul General P. A. Collins, who was supported by Germans, the latter being among his first accusers. As the home office had refused to assist him, Trodd said he thought that he would be justified in taking the law into his own hands, which, he added, would be a lesson to Germans not to interfere with the English.

FIVE WERE DROWNED.

WORK OF A MISCREANT.

Norway Lake, Me., June 23.—Considerable excitement has been caused in this vicinity by the discovery that paris green had been placed in a well owned by Emerson Kilgore. A number of families have been using the water daily, and seven persons have already been poisoned, but no fatality has resulted as yet. There is no clew to the perpetrator of the deed.

infantry, of which he became adjutant. Later he went on the staff of General George H. Thomas, in command of the army of the Cumberland, and was with that hero through the notable engagements in which he participated. General Duffield's expedition is expected to report to General Shafter in about four days from the time the ships leave Newport News. It will augment the forces under General Shafter to about 20,000 men. Besides these, the present plan of sending reinforcements contemplates that General Garretson's brigade of 4000 men will go as soon as transports can be secured, which is expected to be at an early day by the purchase outright of the needed vessels.

The secretary of the navy, speaking of the general satisfaction that has been expressed with the navy department, said that in justice it should be borne in mind that the navy is always in a state of mobilization, although the coming of the war had necessitated a vast amount of special preparation and a large increase of vessels and naval force. The secretary added: "I notice that sometimes I get a word of praise and sometimes Mr. Roosevelt, who was my assistant secretary, and who certainly deserved it, as does his successor; but let me tell you that there are men entitled to special gratitude and recognition who never will get half the praise they deserve. These are the chiefs of the various naval bureaus. They have borne the real burden of preparation. When war became imminent they were given large power and were told they would be held responsible for having the work of their bureaus done properly and efficiently. That work they have discharged with the utmost ability, efficiency, thoroughness and success. It is one of the misfortunes of every great era like this that many of the men who do the work and bear the burden are rarely mentioned and never get the credit which belongs to them. If I can do anything to secure these men just appreciation, I want to do it. They are all experts and men of experience in their various lines. It is pretty hard too for some of them who know that the glories of war are won, not in bureaus, but at the front in battle. They have sometimes pleaded hard, and it has not been easy for the department to refuse their requests for active service, or for them to accept the necessity of remaining where they are. Few know the extent of what they have undertaken and done, or their high professional competency, spirit and standard."

The attorney general has decided to surrender to the ambassadors of France and Germany, as the diplomatic representatives of Spain, the non-combatants and crews of the prize merchant vessels captured by ships of our navy since the declaration of war. The department of justice, having no means of feeding these prisoners, turned them over to the war department, but Secretary Alger has now declined to continue the arrangement. The representatives of Spain here were communicated with and their consent was secured to receive the prisoners and ship them back to Spain.

The third military expedition for the Philippines will leave San Francisco Monday on six transports, namely, the Ohio, Indiana, City of Para, Morgan City, Valencia and Newport. General Merritt, commanding the new department of the Pacific and prospective governor general of the Philippines, probably will accompany the expedition on the Indiana. Major General Otis, the next in command, will accompany the fourth expedition to the Philippines.

News has reached here that 12,000 tons of coal are being loaded on shipboard at Valparaiso, Chili. As coal is worth about $18 a ton there, the purchase excites great curiosity here, and it has been suspected that it was being made on Spanish account. If this should prove to be true, it would seem to indicate a purpose on the part of the Spanish naval commander, Camara, to carry the Cadiz fleet into the Pacific and use these colliers to supply the fleet with coal. In this case the object of attack probably would be the west coast of the United States instead of the Philippines. However, the whole thing is still a matter of conjecture.

DOINGS IN THE CAPITOL.

Washington, June 23.—Opponents of the annexation of Hawaii again occupied the attention of the senate yesterday. Mr. White (Dem., Cal.) resumed his speech, but, after speaking two hours, yielded the floor to Mr. Pettigrew, who discussed the resolutions for an hour and a half.

"No one," declared Mr. White, "is seeking for a fight with us, and no one ever will. If the Pacific coast is not well defended now, how will you make it easier to defend by acquiring other territory that also must be determined? If we consummate this scheme we will be told we must have the Philippines because Hawaii is not worth much unless we can have something else to use it for; and when we have annexed the Philippines we must have something else. So we will extend our action around the globe and enter upon an imperialistic policy."

A joint resolution was passed authorizing the president of the United States to invite, through the proper channels, the governments of England, France, Germany, Austria, Russia, Belgium, Switzerland, Mexico and Venezuela to send details of infantry, artillery and cavalry to this country to participate in a military jubilee to be held in Madison square garden, New York, during two weeks, beginning Dec. 26, 1898, by the trustees of the Red Cross society.

The session of the house was uneventful with the exception of a brief, but severe denunciation by Mr. Simpson of Representative Grosvenor's speech at the Ohio Republican convention. The criticised portion was relative to the alleged failure of the Democrats and Populists to vote for appropriation bills exceeding the precipitation of the war and the original appropriation of $50,000,000 for the national defence.

Naval Heroes And Their Records

Some Deeds of American Heroes That Will Live In the World's History.

The Long Roll of Names Finds Many Who Are Now Serving on American Men-of-War

It isn't always the most talked of man who has had the most thrilling experiences afield or afloat. The American navy is a proof of this. Many men in it are practically unknown because they were unfortunate in having no press agent to boom their exploits. The press agent may be a clever versifier like Buchanan Read who immortalized Sheridan's ride with a few strokes of his pen, or an every day reporter, whose story strikes the office just when it is "short" of copy, but, however, it may be it does happen time and again through the years that some are blazoned into glory while others equally worthy pass their lives in the shadows of obscurity.

Capt. Silas W. Terry went through a baptism of fire in 1864 not less than that which the heroes of Santiago have passed through. This is what Admiral Porter said about Capt. Terry in a despatch to the Secretary of the Navy May 4, 1864:

"I endeavor to do justice to all officers under my command, but have failed to mention the gallant conduct of Ensign S. W. Terry on the expedition up the Red River." He was placed on board of the transport Benefit to take despatches to me at Springfield Landing. I had a field piece and a 24-pound howitzer placed on this vessel and a part of the crew of the flagship to go with her. About fifty miles from Grand Ecore Mr. Terry discovered a battery of four guns facing down the river on which he opened fire with his howitzers and steamed on. The battery opened a quick fire on him, striking the little vessel almost every time. The river Captain of the Benefit was killed and several of the men, but the little transport fought her way through and brought me the despatches, which were important. Such cool and brave conduct gives promise of a good officer; I commend him to the notice of the department."

Capt. Richard P. Leary when senior officer at Samoa in 1888 during the troubles seized an opportunity that made him the talk of the department for some time. The German warships threatened to bombard the town despite the protestations of the American consul. Leary did not have a big enough force to make any showing against the Germans, and decided to resort to other means. The consul put out to his ship in the evening and told him that the town would be bombarded at sunrise the next day.

"I don't think it will be," said Capt. Leary. The consul returned ashore. When night fell the captain doused his lights and stood in toward land. When the German captains woke up in the morning they found Leary's vessels between them and the shore. Capt. Leary sent a launch to ask what the Germans' intentions were. There was no bombardment.

Commander Edwin White looked into portholes of a great Spanish man of war back in 1872. Then he sailed into the harbor of Colon, Central America, and found the Spanish warship Pizarro blocking the American steamer Virginius of filibuster fame. White was then temporarily in charge of the Kansas, about one-fourth the efficiency of the Pizarro. White sent word to the Spanish captain to give the Virginius a free field. The Spaniard replied evasively. White ran his small warship between the Pizarro and the Virginius. The Spaniard cleared for action and ran his guns out. It seemed as if one broadside would utterly annihilate the Kansas. White ordered his vessel cleared for action and took a defiant position.

One of the most daring exploits of the civil war was that of James Forney, who as a lieutenant was sent ashore by Commander Bell at Texas on the Gulf coast to kill cattle for the crew of the Brooklyn. The men had completed their task when a body of Confederate cavalry was seen spinning along the beach. Forney's detachment signalled frantically for the ship's boats to be sent to take them off, but owing to a sudden shift in the tide this could not be done. When the cavalry was within a quarter of a mile Forney gave the order to plunge into the surf, the men having previously taken off their clothing for the swim. The cavalry opened fire on the swimmers and although several were wounded the entire detachment managed to pass through the rain of fire and the danger of sharks and reach the ship's side in safety. For this gallant act he was brevetted a captain. Capt. Forney was born in Philadelphia.

Commander Alexander Colden Rhind, who was born in New York, and Lieut. Preston took part in an undertaking which elicited from Rear Admiral Porter the statement that "they engaged in the most perilous adventure that was perhaps ever undertaken." This estimate of the danger of their undertaking from a man like Porter who was himself indifferent to peril was a lofty testimonial to their courage. In December, 1864, Rhind was detailed by Rear Admiral Porter to command the powder boat Louisiana. On the night of the 23d the vessel was exploded within 700 yards of Fort Fisher, the officers and men being taken off by a steamer. Admiral Porter in his official report said: "No one in the squadron considered that their lives would be saved, and Commander Rhind and Lieut. Preston had made an arrangement to sacrifice themselves in case the vessel was boarded, a thing likely to happen."

"Papa," said Willie, "why did you buy a golf coat?"

"To play golf in, my son," said Mr. Willis.

"Did you require it?"

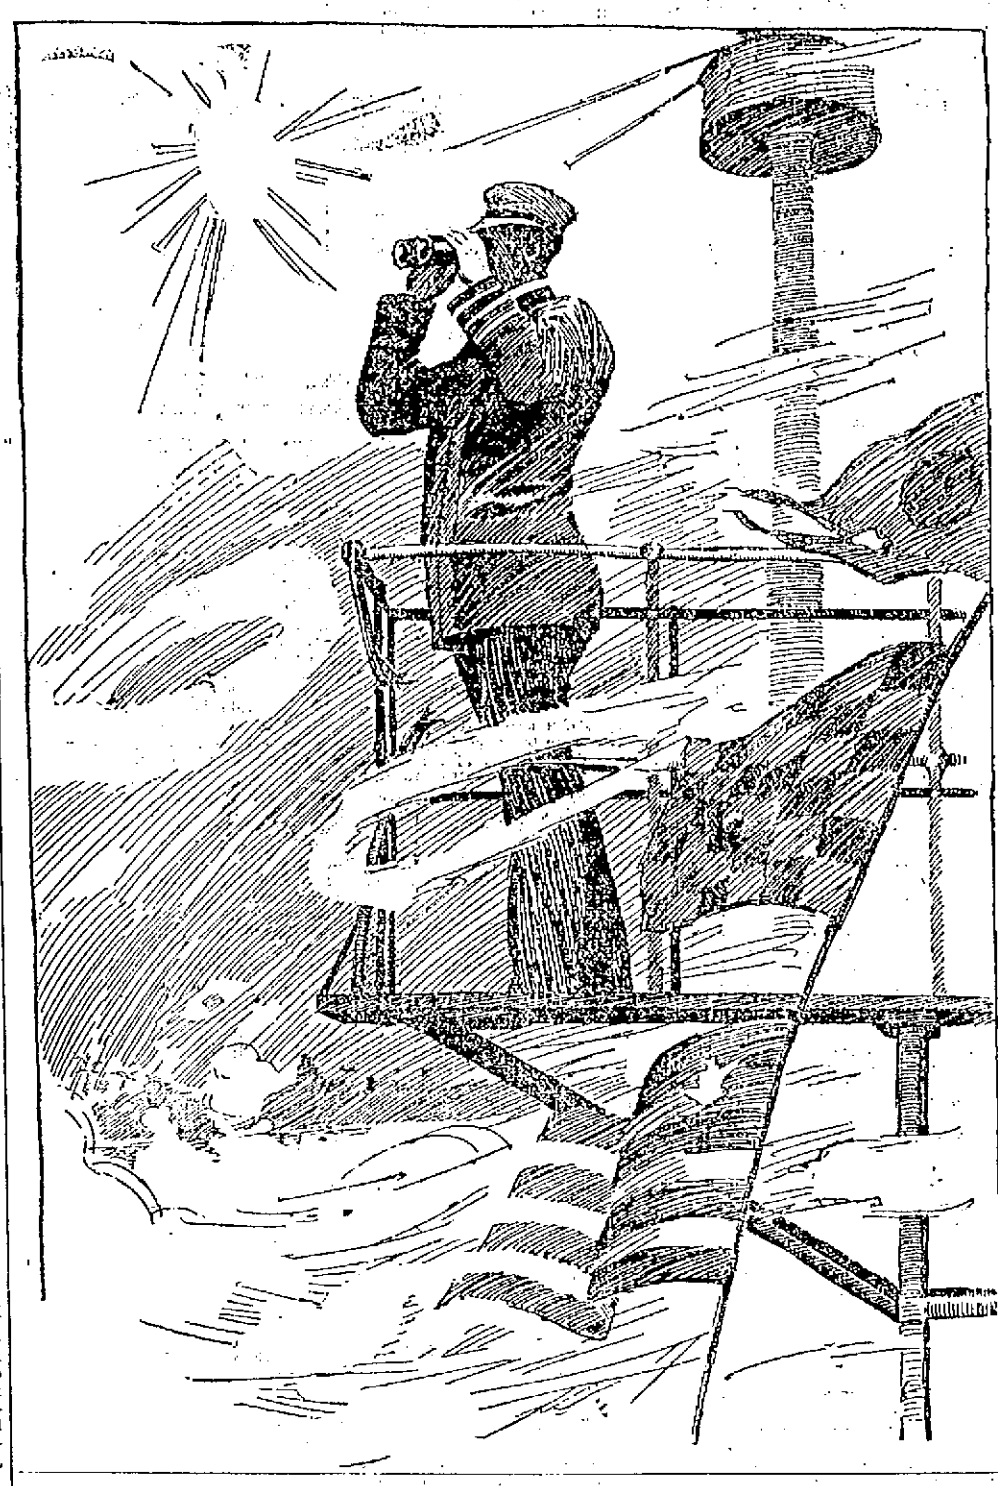

"Of course I did."

"Then I want a topcoat to play tops in. I seen 'em advertised."

"Heavens!" shrieked the heroine, "I am undone!"

"Come away, John, audibly remarked the old lady in the audience as she rose. "I ain't a-goin' ter let you watch any disrobin' act!"

Haircuts In Vogue In Dogdom This Summer.

Summer dogs do not worry about their raiment. They do not have to. Wherein they have a large advantage over the summer girl and the summer man. They live up to the adage, "Let others do your worrying," and never an extra pant do they pant on account of their attire from the beginning of summer until the end. Their mistresses who belong to the 400, or would like to, pant for them however, designing cuts for the animals they must take with them to Newport, Bar Harbor, Lenox and other places dogs of fashion affect during the vacation season.

It is interesting to watch a "Bud" laying out her ideas in diagram and discussing cuts with the dog trimmer who stands by, his clippers, shears, combs and other implements in hand, deferentially suggesting spots or knobs or puffs and rings, "to be much worn this year, Miss." The Bud has her own ideas likely which are fascinatingly fantastic to the mental eye but sadly unsatisfactory when the shearer tries to put them into practice.

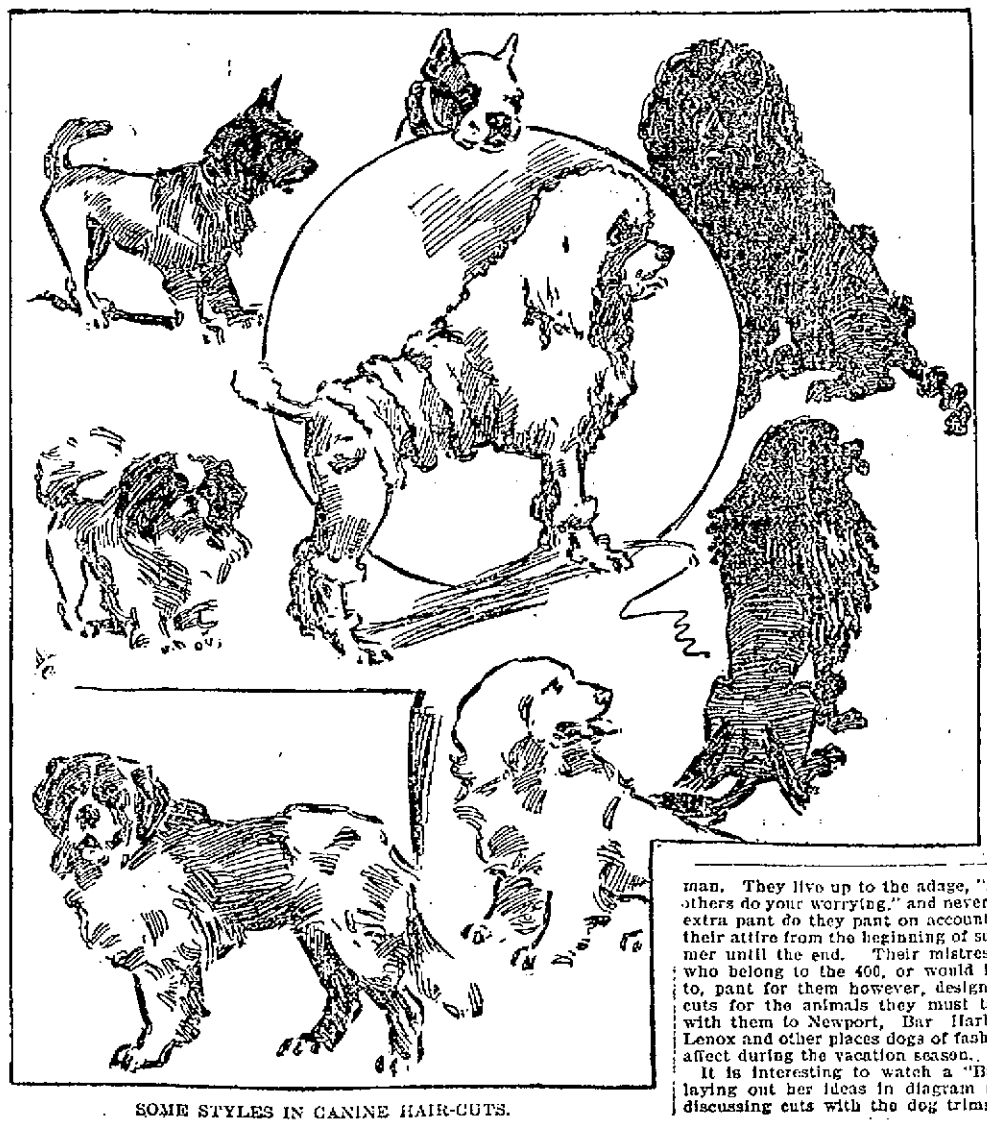

Coats of arms do not come out well, done in hair, even in the fuzzy wool of the French poodle who looks quite sufficiently strenuous and droll in bands, rosettes, and knobs. The French poodle offers all the scope there is for artistic summer cuts and is proud of himself if he has been well clipped. When the job is over and he has realized what an enchanting guy he looks he jumps gratefully over his mistress' head, smiles away back under his ears and abandons himself to ecstacy.

This year he is girt about the loins with parallel rings, has a rosette on each southern quarter, a knob on the free end of his tail, and wristlets above his paws. Here and there a face is unmasked except for certain circles and ridges that give the head the appearance of a sooty moss grown skull. Tassels on the quarters instead of knobs are well esteemed at Lenox, and doubtless will be seen more or less at Newport. They display to better advantage when the poodle is in repose than when he is in action so those interested in the tassel summer cut generally study it while the wearer is asleep. Tassels aft and slick curls about the neck with a long mop tail make a happy combination for a poodle past middle life when the irrepressible is not paramount in the animal's disposition.

The burr knob will be worn a great deal too this season, as it has been in the past. It varies in size and in arrangement from year to year, but it is fundamentally the same old knob. Much ingenuity is displayed in deciding upon the location of these burr knobs and Bud and the trimmer devote days to the problem studying it with the aid of thistle burrs and a dummy made of an Astrakhan rug and chair legs. It takes the Bud's maid some little time to clean the rug afterwards, but the satisfaction of having settled the cut before work on the hairy dog begins amply repays the Bud for this sacrifice.

Poodles generally go in for more style in cuts than do other dogs, because of their display aptitudes, but the New Foundland has his summer suit each year with regularity. He is more sedate than the smaller dogs and calmer in his style the whole year round. Indeed his chief desire is to be cool and calm and he would not care to lose himself in contemplation of his artistic habiliaments. He takes a close gray cut from behind his ears to within 2½ inches of the tip of his tail. This 2½ inches furnishes a good whisp for flies and he manages it with great dexterity. Without the whisp the musca would annoy him in his nakedness as much as the heat would torture him if his full coat of black curly hair were left on. He shows a little shyness or self-consciousness the first day of wearing his summer gray just as a schoolboy who fancies the world has stopped to stare at his new clothes, but with the native bouyancy of his disposition this sense of conspicuousness dissipates and Richard is himself again cooler and death on flies. In Boston the New Foundlander needs not so severe clipping as in other and less cultured regions of these United States, and designs, providing they be of due severity, may be tolerable as not incompatible with essential dignity. In Boston, therefore, Richard's limbs are left in their wristine curly blackness both anteriorilly and posteriorilly, but the thorax may be ornamented with panels in a chequer-board design. Knobs, rosettes and whisps are disapproved emphatically. Beyond this geometrical figures are permitted to a limited extent. It is reported that on Beacon street Richard will wear the zero mark or emblem of the Peace Society. If he is cut in such a manner, however, he will pass his summer in the rear basement.

Skys and the Japanese poodles, or "Chin" as the natives call them, come in for more attention from Bud and the clipper each year. The art of shearing them is in its infancy in America, but with each summer noticeable advance is made, and though the wee dears look scrawny enough the first few days after the operation they are soon the better for it and even happier. They are so much cleaner and harbor fewer microbes. Their legs should be left with all the feathers on and the heads also, nor should the bodies be clipped as closely as possible. A good even mow medium close is best. This leaves the spines not too conspicuous and at the same time lets on the air against their overheated bodies. As to designs, these pets are too small in size to carry any. Some buds clip but half the body, the forward half or the after half, usually the latter, and this appeases the panting to a marked degree. There can hardly be said to be much style to these cuts considered by themselves, but the make for the harmony of the fitness of things, and by leave enough hair of natural length to discover the aristocracy of the breed.

SOME STYLES IN CANINE HAIR-CUTS.

At a dinner party in South Africa the hostess told the Kaffir boy to "bring the champagne." The boy left and returned without the wine. She commanded him again to bring the champagne with the same result. Then he whispered "No wine."

Nonsense," said the woman, "there is plenty."

"No," persisted the native, "ine look at all the bottles; all say extra dry."

A second woman engaged a boy in September and at the end of the month gave him his wages. At the end of October she again proceeded to pay him, when he surprised her by objecting to the amount. He wanted to be paid more for thirty-one days than for thirty—not unreasonably. The woman remonstrated and broke into poetry: "Thirty days hath September," etc. "No," said the Kaffir cutely, "no month thirty-one day, all month thirty day. Your month thirty day, then thirty-one, then thirty-two. No, me no stop here," and no logic could induce him to consent to an arrangement that seemed likely to progress indefinitely in favor of his employer.—New York Tribune.

What The Mountain Man Looks Like.

He Has Abjured the Seaside and Is Half Golfer Half Hunter.

He Will Look Like An Alpine Hunter From the Waist Up.—The Rest of Him Will Do For Golf.

Then ho for the mountains,
The cliff and the scarf
Let us leave the blue sea
In the distance afar.

The Highland laddies call to his sweetheart centuries ago will be echoed by the swain who goes for an outing in this year of the Hispano-American war. The tendency toward mountainous outings has received a wonderful stimulus from the war. No self-respecting young man would face with joy the prospect of spooning on the seashore with the possibility of a great big Spanish cannon ball from somewhere out in the offing coming between him and his best girl, or richochetting wantonly along a beach unmindful of the two lone figures half buried under sand and parasol.

The drift mountainward has been steady for the last two or three years, or nearer the Alps, when you thought them altogether the most dashing gallants you ever laid eyes on. Then if you went to Bayreuth to attend the great Wagnerian festivals you saw whole delegations of these young men get off the trains with those loose Alpine hats, with a feather or a squirrel's tail or some other flowing ornament stuck in them somewhere, giving the wearer a breezy Don Cesar de Bazan air that smacks of the gay gallant who makes love to the chorus girls in a comic opera. If you were young and impressionable you thought the headgear very captivating and romantic and wondered why the American men did not adopt it. You had yet to learn that the European, though bound down to older traditions in other respects, still exercises a liberty in clothing himself not enjoyed by the American. If he thinks a certain kind of hat

THE MOUNTAIN BOY OF '98.

The wail of the hotel men by the sad sea waves has been largely founded on this. The absence of young men from the Atlantic seaside resorts is attributable to a change in taste, for there is a taste in the matter of outings as in the dress of either sex. One year it is the bicycle, another it is yachting and another it is tennis. And so the list is ever changing. The craze for loud golf hose with the natural desire to secure echoing facilities may have helped to build up the popularity of gorge and glen. Any way the mountaineer will be the really proper person this summer. Not even the European tourist will be more energetic. He will be a picturesque individual, this mountain boy of 1898, vastly different from the Green Mountains Boys of 1776 who took up guns to fight the British. If clothed as the styles direct he will wear plaid golf hose that would make Handy MacGregor think he had never seen old Scotland. The stripes must be as broad as the stripes on the flag and the colors as vivid as a flash of lightning cutting through an Italian sunset.

The knickerbockers and jacket are to be nothing out of the ordinary but in the hat will lie the crowning glory of the season of 1898. When you see it for the first time, if you have ever toured through Germany, there will come back to you pictures of the young men you saw down in the Black Forest is becoming he will wear it, no matter what style says. So it happens that this picturesque style of hat has survived and is now making its way across the Atlantic, to brighten the mountain solitudes of 1898, and give a touch of Alpine life to the Adirondacks, White Mountains, the Blue Ridge and the Rockies.

Then the popularity of the mountains makes the "hunter" a fad for 1898. He will again don the stalking cape. This combines in itself a complete rig for the all-around sportsman, and effects three or four transformation scenes with a simplicity that will recommend it to the experienced traveller.

Its appearance when worn is much that of the ordinary travelling cape of fashion. To it is affixed what the tailors call an "apron," but which will best convey itself to the lay mind as the front of a Norfolk shooting coat, with cartridge pockets, and so forth. This is kept in place by being buttoned at the neck to the cape and with a strap and buckle at the waist region at the back. It is simplicity itself, for it can be detached or worn at will, according to the weather. In the occasional rigors of mountain shooting this cape and "apron" will, beyond doubt, prove themselves of great service. Beneath this cape a sleeved waistcoat is discovered, with an arrangement of pockets.

CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.

The latest and more approved cure for rheumatism in Maine is for the afflicted persons to wear necktles made from the skins of the banded water snakes, which are plentiful in boggy places and muddy ponds. Hitherto rheumatic sufferers have rubbed themselves with angle worm oil, hoping to make themselves as limber, as the worms are, or with fish oil, because fish can live out in the wet without getting lame. This year the fashion has changed, and no sufferer will think of using anything but the silky skins of the water snakes.

The snakes are skinned, after the manner employed on eels, and the the skins are boiled for several hours in a mixture of hemlock bark and linseed oil, after which they are stretched upon a smooth stick, and placed behind the stove to dry. When thoroughly cured they are made up into bows or four-in-hand ties, according to size, and are worn by those who believe in their efficacy. The colors are alternate rings of dark bottle green and straw yellow, and when these tints are set off with a bright scarf pin and placed in contact with a white linen shirt front, the effect is rather pleasing. The effect of the ties upon rheumatism has not been reported fully enough to pass accurate judgment, but the wearers believe they will be cured if the charms are worn long enough.

A good water snake tie is worth $2.50 in Maine.—New York Sun.

I met an especially charming woman the other day, who has just returned to America, her native land, after twenty years spent in Paris, says a writer in the Washington Post. Contrary to the custom of most Americans who have lived abroad, she is exceedingly enthusiastic in her admiration of America and everything and everybody American. I asked her what things had pleased her most.

"The women, first," said she. "They all look so respectable. The men, second. They are so broad-shouldered, and they look so trustworthy, and third, American table manners, for I think the well-bred American eats in a nicer way than anybody else on earth.

CRISP GOSSIP.

He looked very determined when he entered the recruiting office and walked up to the officer in charge.

"The boys down our way," he said, "told me I was afraid to enlist. They've just been daring me ever since this war broke out, so something had to be done."

"And that's why you're here?" suggested the recruiting officer in a tone of inquiry.

"Yes, sir; that's why I'm here," answered the stranger. "There can't anybody take a crack at my patriotism and my courage and git away with the bluff. I'm here to git in line to do up the Spanish and don't want any one to forget it."

The officer picked up a pen and prepared to write.

"If you're sure you want to enlist," he said, "why——"

"Sure!" broke in the stranger. "Sure! Well, you just bet I'll prove those fellers liars or know the reason why. I don't think much of war as a general proposition, but there can't anybody stand around and dare me more'n six or eight times before something happens. Mebbe I might have stood what the boys had to say but when my wife told me I was afraid to fight it was just a leetle too much. All I'm afraid of is that you won't have me."

"Oh, we'll take you fast enough," replied the officer. "Will you give me your name and——"

"Mebbe I ought to tell you before you go too far," interrupted the valiant youth again, "that I am troubled with hammer toes—two of 'em, one on each foot."

"That doesn't make any difference," replied the recruiting officer.

"Why—why, I thought hammer toes interfered with a man's ability to march," suggested the applicant.

"It does," admitted the recruiting officer, "but we'll put you in the cavalry."

The applicant gave a deep sigh, and suggested that that would suit him first rate, but that he couldn't ride very well.

"Never mind," answered the recruiting officer. "You can soon learn. Now, if you will just give me your name, I'll put it down and send you to the doctors for——"

"That reminds me," broke in the man who wanted to enlist, "that I have been a cigarette smoker for the last ten years."

"No matter. We're not so particular as we were. Just—"

"I have a weak heart, too, and I'm rather short-winded."

"Oh, that's all right. If you're willing to take the chances, we are. Just give me your name and it will be all right."

The youth gave another long sigh before answering.

"Well, I'll tell you how it is," he said, "Mebbe my wife spoke in haste when she said I was afraid to go. I guess I'll just run back and ask her about it before taking a step that she may rel gret all her life."

The editor riseth in the morning and knoweth not what the day may bring forth. If he telleth all the news, he runneth a great risk of having a tin ear put on him, and if he telleth not the news, the people say he is n. g., and there is no joy in it. The crafty man cajoleth him into giving him a 50-cent puff for a 5-cent cigar, and all fond mothers frown on him if he fails to flatter their freckled-face broods. JUNE WEDDINGS

Bloomed Numerously In Lowell Last Night

AS THEY DID IN THE SUBURBS.

Many Prominent Young People United in Marriage.

The storm with all its fury did not detract from the happiness of the unusually large number of June brides who blossomed forth in all their beauty yesterday. It was a gala day for weddings, as the following list will show:

EMERSON—FENDERSON.

Even the names blended harmoniously at the marriage of Ralph Waldo Emerson and Miss Mabel Fenderson, who were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, 35 Gates street, last evening in the presence of a large number of congratulating relatives and friends, the ceremony being performed by Rev. C. E. Davis of Lynn, the bride's former pastor.

Mr. Emerson is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Emerson of Chelmsford Centre, a member of Troop F Cavalry, postmaster of the Centre village and a very popular young man. The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Stillman Fenderson, of this city, a very estimable young lady and a sub-teacher in the public schools. The house was very prettily decorated by Harvey B. Greene, the Highland florist. The bridal party entered the front parlor to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Miss Edith Alberta Andrews. During the ceremony, Mendelssohn's wedding music was played softly. The bride was attended by Miss Gertrude Palmer of Fall River and Charles Fletcher of Boston officiated as best man.

The bride wore a gown of white corded silk, trimmed with silk chiffon. She wore the conventional veil and carried lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore white muslin and carried a beautiful bouquet of Victoria roses. The ushers were Messrs. Clay C. Bartlett, and A. Hawthorne Howard of Chelmsford Centre and Messrs. C. Fred Hard and A. Howard Green of Lowell. A wedding reception followed from 7 to 8.30. Those who received with the bridal party were Mr. and Mrs. George Stillman Fenderson, father and mother of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. James P. Emerson, father and mother of the groom. The D. L. Page company catered for the event. Lemonade was served in an alcove in the main hall by Miss Edith Temple of Reading and Miss Harriet M. Emerson of South Chelmsford.

The bridesmaid was favored with a handsome bracelet from the bride. After the reception, the happy couple left for an extended wedding tour. Upon their return, they will reside in Chelmsford Centre.

Among the beautiful gifts displayed in one of the rooms above was a $100 bill, the gift of the groom's father, Mr. James P. Emerson, and alongside the bill was a check for $25, and two gold coins.

Among the guests were: Mrs. Frank S. Aken and her daughter, Miss Florence Aken, and Miss Clarissa Buffington of Fall River; Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Emerson, Miss Harriet Emerson and John B. Emerson of South Chelmsford; Mr. Harry B. Emerson, the groom's brother; Miss Abbie Ford of Chelmsford Centre.

ANDERSON—PIHL.

The marriage of Mr. Nils Martin Anderson of Tewksbury and Miss Hanna Pihl, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Pihl of Sweden, occurred last evening at the home of the bride's uncle, Mr. John Monson of 97 Forest street. Rev. Mr. Eckman, pastor of the Lutheran Swedish M. E. church officiated. The bride was attended by four bridesmaids, Anna Pihl, Ingrid Monson, Ingrid Pihl, and Hanna Olson. The best man was Mr. Theodore Hanson and Miss Ida Pihl was maid of honor.

The bride wore a very pretty gown of white lansdowne trimmed with white lace, with the conventional veil caught up with white roses. She carried a bouquet of bride roses. The four bridesmaids were gowned in white muslin and they carried pink, white and yellow roses respectively. The maid of honor was very prettily attired in white muslin and she carried Catherine Mermet roses. The bridal party assembled up stairs and marched to the parlor, where the wedding ceremony was performed, the bridesmaids preceding, while Miss Eva Pihl Forsberg played the bridal chorus from Lohengrin. During the short impressive ceremony, Mendelssohn's bridal music was played softly.

The ushers were Ernest Pihl, Martin Pihl, and Otto Pihl. After the ceremony, an informal reception was held and a large number of guests came forward to congratulate the happy pair. A genuine Swedish wedding feast was served by waitresses gowned in white. The D. L. Page company furnished the ices.

The presents bestowed were very numerous and costly, which proves the popularity of the two young people.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Anders Thomasson, Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Dexter, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Tyler Shaw, Mr. John Munson, the bride's uncle, is a popular overseer in the United States Cartridge company. The young couple will make Tewksbury their future home.

The happy and popular couple were wedded in an alcove of the parlor, which was aglow with the rarest of cut flowers and tropical plants. The house throughout was laden with the presence and perfume of wild and cultivated flowers and the stairways, doors and mantles looked the perfection of loveliness in their artistic trimmings of daisies which were arranged in cross, heart and shield, effects. Many beautiful presents were received, which speak volumes for the love and esteem in which the young couple are held.

The newly wedded pair left Lowell at 9 o'clock last night on a wedding tour of indefinite duration. They will welcome their friends at 76 Fremont street after Sept. 1.

WALSH—MURRAY.

A very pretty marriage was solemnized at St. Michael's parochial residence, when Mr. Patrick Walsh of the Massachusetts Mfg. Co. and Miss Mary Murray, an estimable Centralville young lady were united in wedlock, Rev. William O'Brien pronouncing the words that made them man and wife. Immediately after the ceremony, a bountiful wedding collation was served at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Susan Murray, 41 Hampshire street. During the evening an elaborate program was rendered consisting of vocal and instrumental selections prominent among which were the piano solos by Mr. George Carey and Miss Mamie Quinn and vocal solos by Mr. John Gilbride and Misses Katherine F. Bailey and Annie McKenna. At 9 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Walsh left for an extended bridal tour including Washington, New York and a number of other large cities on the trip. On their return to this city, they will reside at 43 Bridge street where they will be pleased to meet acquaintances. Many out-of-town friends and relatives were present from Nashua, Lawrence, Haverhill, Andover, and surrounding towns. The wedding gifts, which are very numerous and costly, denote the esteem in which the young people are held by all who know them.

COMMUNICATION.

Dear Editor—Do the landlords of Lowell ever think of lowering the rents which take every cent from the poor working man whose pay maybe is five dollars per week? But he has to pay it all out for rent. Provisions have risen and so has every thing necessary to the household, but still the rent is no cheaper. No matter how hard the times are rents will be no cheaper. I am a poor woman and pay an awful high rent. When the fathers of families get home Saturday night, one child cries, "I want some boots;" another one cries, "I want a new dress, papa. Please buy them tonight." But the landlord will not wait. He must be paid or else have his tenement vacated. Is it not time to reduce the rents that are so high?
